In order to be reasonable and fair, I will reduce price, which belongs to me, but never quality, which belongs to you.
"QUALITY" seeds were germinated and later each one transplanted from the strongest in 7½ cu. ins. of sterilized soil as a sure preventive against disease that works havoc in the plant's future life.
They are as good as from 2-in. pots, stocky, clean and healthy and are ready for either benching or field planting.
Queen of the Market, white, pink and lavender.
Peerless, large flowers on long stems, appearing about the middle of August, pink and white only.
Daybreak, excellent for cutting, flowers large and double, shell-pink color.
Purity, similar to Daybreak, pure white color.
Semple's Giant Branching, extensively used for outdoor planting as well as under glass, white, pink and lavender.
Crego's Giant, best late in existence, large flowers borne on good stems, white, pink and lavender, $1.00 per 100, $7.00 per 1000. Cash. 5000, $32.00; 10,000, $60.00, net.

LETTER FROM FERD. FISCHER.
To My Customers in America:
Those who are in the market for high grade Cyclamen seed, I wish to advise you that I have perfected the finest strain of Cyclamen seed I have ever offered, as for the past four years I have devoted my attention to improving my varieties. Cyclamen offered by me this season are all true to name and selected only from the best and healthy plants which in turn give very good results.
I have paid strict attention to my salmon and red shades particularly for the American trade. My seed soon will be offered by the American Bulb Co., who are my sole agents, and none is genuine unless purchased through the American Bulb Co. It is with pleasure that I recommend to all florists who are growers of high class plants to try out my seed. I hold recommendations from the best growers in the world. Yours very truly,
FERD. FISCHER.

In shipping out our transplanted seedlings, we surely pleased our trade, as one customer at Reading, Pennsylvania, who ordered 1000 wrote back: "Well, I can only say they are wonderful, never expected plants like these."
One at Columbia, South Carolina, wrote: "I want 200 more like the ones sent." Another at Baltimore, Maryland: "Cyclamen just arrived and they are surely fine."
This stock will be shipped during June and July, and you must expect to get selected plants as fine in every respect as you have ever received in 3-in. Cyclamen, for some plants now run as high as 18 to 21 leaves and they will be strong for 4-in. pots the day you receive them.

PELARGONIUMS

HURRAH FOR EASTER GREETING.
Look on page 17 March 26th issue of Review and see what advertising we got free. The panel photo on next page was taken by us March 17, 1915—note the date March 17th.
This article is wonderfully well written except that it minimizes the great superiority of Easter Greeting over the common sorts. We do not deny the regal beauty of all pelargoniums, but we should all think of the housewife, the ultimate buyer and judge. The old type are sure to disappoint.
Every claim we made for Easter Greeting when we introduced it in March, 1914, has been doubly vindicated. Our claim that it blooms from early March to October has never been denied.
But now, we have a nice stock of 2¼-in., some of which should go to you, if you would have Easter Greeting in it's grand perfection for Easter 1922. Only $7.00 per 100.

"It is a pleasure to me to express my opinion in regard to your patent LEAK-PROOF gutter. I wish to state that I speak of many years' experience as an architect and know when material is fit for a certain place. The fact is that your gutter really is the best gutter on the market up to date. It is second to none; it really has no equal."

PLANNING VENTILATORS.

What is the proper size for ventilators for a small house, 14x24 feet, which is four feet high at the eaves and eight and one-half high at the ridge?

L. J. S.—Pa.

The exact size of the ventilators will vary with the dimensions of the glass used for the remainder of the roof, which we presume is somewhere from twelve to sixteen inches in width. It would be advisable to use ventilator sashes with from four to five rows of the narrow sizes to three or four of the wider glass, using, of course, the same width of glass as for the roof itself. For a house of this width the ventilators will not require glass more than sixteen inches long, especially if the row of sashes is continuous or with only one row of glass between the sashes. If the latter method is used, from three to five sashes will be required, according to the size of the glass and the number of panes in each. If there is glass in one or both of the walls, it is often desirable to have two or three sashes in one or both walls, especially if the house is to be used in the summer. These sashes should have two rows of glass of the size used in the walls.

SOW BUG.

We use HAMMOND'S SLUG SHOT on Currant Bushes in the Spring before the leaves are started. We put it on around the roots and have done it for two years, and find that the worms are killed before they get on the bush. For potatoes we put on SLUG SHOT as soon as the bugs come, and we have good vines, plenty of tubers and no bugs. It is the best thing we have ever used. For Sow Bugs in greenhouses it is sure death. We had a lot of them before using SLUG SHOT but they got out where it is used.

Slug Shot for Sow Bugs.

It is with great pleasure each week I read your valued paper, and I like to give a helping hand when I can. I do not wish to say anything against the use of Paris green and sugar, or bran, or any other material, for I know these are all good to kill bugs, such as wood lice (sow bugs), etc. But I would like to state, as I have done formerly, for the benefit of anyone bothered with sow bugs that I have thoroughly cleared my greenhouses of this pest by dusting freely with HAMMOND'S SLUG SHOT, spreading it well in the walks, under the benches, along the side walls and between the plants, using about 20 lbs. to a 20 ft. x 100 ft. house. This Slug Shot will not injure Carnation plants. I hope that this recital of my experience will be of help to others in trouble and especially recommend its use as it is not dangerous to human life as is Paris green.

Schiller the Florist, Chicago, says "the show house almost doubled our sales."

Ever hear of the shaking jar?

Well, it's a glass jar containing a number of round balls. Some of them are large, others medium and most of them are small.

Now, you can place these balls in the jar with the large ones on the bottom and the small ones on the top, if you wish. Then take the jar in your hands and shake it.

What happens?

Just this:

The small balls work their way down to the bottom and the large ones shoulder their way to the top.

"But what's the idea?" you say.

Why, that's life all over, and more especially right now.

Watch it, check up on it and—you'll see.

When the business jar is shaken, the really big men get to the top, or if they're already there, they stay there. And the little men, that is, those who are little in vision, foresight and nerve—stay at the bottom if they're there, or if they happen to be near the top by accident, they soon get shouldered to the bottom. That's life.

Don't Lose Your Balance

Getting its balance, that's what the whole country has been doing lately.
It sure did look one time as if a lot of somebodies, sure were going to fall through the glass.
But happily for all of us, things are now back in balance and we are whistling again while we work.

Business is sure fast getting back on the sunny side of the street.
Of course you and I know there are still a lot of fellows who, like this chap in the gutter above, don't dare take their eyes off their feet.
You know, however, that looking where you are walking to, is quite as important as looking where you are walking.

A lot of your friends, right now have been looking down so hard on the cost of building materials, that they haven't lifted their eyes up enough to see that it isn't what a thing costs that's the important thing.
It's how much, you can make that thing, make you.
Or it's the difference between the money to be made from a new house, this year, and the money you lose if you don't build.

What's that you say? "Prices have not yet struck bottom."
Are you sure?
Is anybody sure?
Haven't you lately heard a good bit of talk about all building materials being higher this fall?
If that's so, aren't you running the chance of waiting so long for things to go down, that you have waited just long enough to see them go up?
Let's figure out together the cost of a house.
You say when and where and we'll be there.

This center gutter of ours is not as wide as Atlantic City's Board Walk, but it's wide enough to easily walk in, but not so wide it casts too much shade. Sold by the foot or mile. See page 40, Handy Hand Book.

FREESIA PURITY---Improved

We believe we are the largest handlers of high-grade Purity Freesia bulbs in America. All our fields are thoroughly examined during their growing stage by members of the firm, to insure our customers the best the crops can produce. We can deliver Freesia bulbs early enough to enable you to get them in bloom for Christmas, if properly handled. Our bulbs are not grown in the wet district of California, but are properly watered by irrigation. They are all grown near Los Angeles, which florists in California recognize as the best place to grow high-grade bulbs. The fact that we sell quantities in California of our own growing is evidence that florists know where the best quality is produced.

Bulbs offered in the following sizes, all up to size:

Up to ½	$ 7.50
½-⅝	12.50
Mammoth Bulbs, ⅝-¾	16.50
Jumbo Bulbs, ¾ and up (quantity limited)	22.00

M. WEILAND, Florist, 602 Davis St., Evanston, Ill.

American Bulb Company, Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sirs:

The Freesia Purity you sold me this year were as good as ever. I have found that I can always rely on your Freesia Bulbs. The large ones for early forcing were in for the holidays as usual.

The Rainbow Freesias are fine, growing tall and have very stiff stems. The colors are very fine and sell readily. Yours truly,

GEORGE C. WEILAND.

Gentlemen:

Just a word about the Freesia bulbs you sold me last year. I have grown Freesia bulbs for the past 20 years, but I have never before cut so large a percentage in December. I cut fully 50 per cent of my crop for the Christmas holidays. They were fine and sold well at the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange in Detroit.

Your Dutch bulbs are also fine.

Yours truly,

ROBERT KLAGGE, Mt. Clemens, Mich.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

BIG BUG OF THE BEDDING PLANTS

As bedding plants and as inexpensive pot plants for spring holiday sale, geraniums have had a strong demand this spring. In planning to grow them another year you will want the assistance of the cultural information in this article. Keep it for reference after you have read it.

GERANIUMS have been what is colloquially known as "good property" this spring. For reasons not easily ascertainable in a time of depression in all other lines of business, bedding plant sales have been the best ever enjoyed by florists. They are, the country over, cleaned up as closely as the trade could wish. Nor was the supply markedly short, except in comparison with a strong demand. Though the demand for cut flowers has caused some growers to begrudge space to plants for bedding, nevertheless the number of inquiries concerned with the culture of geraniums in particular which have been received this spring in the office of The Review indicate that many new hands were engaged in preparing batches of stock for this season's business. To satisfy many requests, general cultural directions for this most popular bedding plant are presented here.

Types.

The geranium needs no introduction, for if there is a plant known universally, it is the geranium. Within thirty years an immense improvement has taken place, both in the habit of the plant and in the form and color of the flower. The earliest double ones were a curiosity when they first came out, but they were so double that they were of little use, and now a form called semi-double has entirely displaced them. The semi-doubles have this advantage, that the petals are not knocked off by a rain storm. But they have also a disadvantage: Some of the varieties, although excellent growers and remarkably free-flowering, become unsightly by the inner florets' losing color or decaying before the outside florets have opened.

The single varieties are still most useful for bedding. The ivy-leaved section has been improved as much as the zonals, having beautiful semi-double flowers, and now we have double flowers on the bronze and variegated type. Some of the variegated kinds, such as the useful Mountain of Snow, are as vigorous as the zonals, and so are the yellow and bronze varieties, but those of the tricolor type are less robust.

Mme. Salleroi is a type of itself, forming no stems, but a mass of short shoots spring from the crown and the plant makes a compact little clump, especially suitable for edging.

Propagation.

All the geraniums are botanically known as pelargoniums, but the name geranium is so firmly and popularly associated with these plants that it would be absurd to write of them under the much less familiar name of pelargonium.

When planting out for your own stock, give the plants plenty of room to grow. If you crowd them, the growths will be soft and unsuitable for cuttings. Unless the season is exceptionally dry, geraniums seldom want water, but, if you must water, give them a thorough soaking and then hoe before the ground bakes. Keep all flowers picked off as soon as they are fully developed; the removal of the flowers will encourage the plants to grow.

About September 1 take off the first batch of cuttings and pot them firmly in 2¼-inch pots. A coldframe will do for the cuttings, but an ordinary bench is just as good and less liable to be neglected. They should be shaded during the hottest hours of the day only, and that can be done with newspapers, which are better than any fixed shading, because on dull days a shading would be injurious.

Potting firmly with a good, sifted loam is an important point. Don't thumb the top of the soil, but get your finger and thumb down by the side of the cutting like a wedge, and make the soil around the base of the cutting firm. The watering will take care of the surface without your wasting any time with your thumbs.

Geraniums that Make a Grower Glad.

Treatment.

Geraniums should have a good, thorough watering when first potted; after that they should be watered only when decidedly on the dry side. More geraniums turn black and rot from heat and moisture than from dryness. In a month most of them will be rooted. When they commence to make new leaves, they should be stood over, the dry leaves rubbed off and the surface of the soil stirred. From then on you will have to treat them barbarously to keep them from thriving.

Why you should wait till September 1, or about that time, before propagating is because earlier propagation in a hot spell in August is not safe. Any kind that you are short of can be propagated earlier, but it would be safer to put them in the sand.

By taking off all the leading shoots this early you will usually by the middle of October get another good lot of cuttings, which root still more certainly. If you don't have time for another batch, these plants are in excellent shape to lift and pot and propagate during winter.

Many growers, for lack of space, prefer to put their cuttings in regular cutting benches or in flats of sand. Some coal ashes at the bottom of the flats and three inches of rather coarse sand will suit them. It is advisable to leave succulent cuttings on the benches a few hours or even over night before placing them in sand. They are then less liable to damp off.

A light house should be given to geraniums; it cannot be too light and dry and airy. A night temperature of 45 degrees will bring them along fast enough.

After the holiday trade there is room to spread out, and then the geraniums should be shifted into 3-inch pots. It is not much of a shift, but it makes a great difference to the plants. About February 1 they have made good roots in the new pots and then is time to stand them over, taking off all the tops that will make a cutting and, when any are not long enough, just pinching out the center. The cuttings from the tops of these 3-inch plants will root most easily at this time of year.

Pot Culture.

An early Easter is always a blessing to a man who grows bedding plants, for just before Easter he is fearfully crowded; he has to exercise all his wits to keep things from spoiling, and one of the principal crops that need attention is the geraniums. Then they are shifted into the 4-inch pots, from which they are bedded out. The February-struck plants get a 3-inch pot as soon after the others as possible and make good bedding plants that sell to late customers, and if you get a few cents apiece less than you do for your fine 4-inch plants they pay well.

One grower who is always successful in getting his geraniums into full bloom from May 15 to June 1 believes this is largely because he uses a rather heavy loam. The only fertilizer is about a fifth of sifted hotbed manure, in which there can be little ammonia, but it keeps the soil open. He pots firmly, as firmly as he can, ramming the soil down with the fingers; this, he believes, is an important point in getting the plants to flower.

The treatment described above will do for all the geraniums of the zonal, rose-leaf, variegated and bronze sections. The tricolor and more slow-growing varieties of the variegated and smaller scented kinds it is better to put in the sand and give them 5 degrees more heat during winter and a richer and lighter compost.

Mme. Salleroi Distinct.

Mme. Salleroi is so distinct in its habit that it would be waste of room to propagate it in the same way as the strong-growing zonals. Before frost, lift as many plants from the ground as your needs demand, pot them in 4-inch or 5-inch pots just as they are lifted, and store them away in some light, cool house. In January cut them up; every shoot is a cutting, which roots most easily in the sand. To alleviate the crowded state of all greenhouses before the bedding out begins, one can put the variegated, zonal, bronze, sweet-scented and Salleroi types into mild hotbeds. Put into the beds by the middle of April, they make fine plants by bedding time. In these varieties it is leaf growth that is wanted, and they are greatly benefited by the action of the ammonia on their leaves.

Ivy-Leaved Type.

The ivy-leaved sections, used so largely in baskets, vases and veranda boxes, are treated in an entirely different way. They are left outdoors as long as safe from frost. A few dozen old plants will give an immense number of cuttings. Always put them in the sand, which by that time of year is probably a little warm with fire heat.

Keep them in 2-inch pots till New Year's, then shift into 3-inch. The demand for these plants is so great for veranda boxes that it is well to shift many of them again into 4-inch. Their drooping habit makes them awkward to grow on a bench when of any size, so it is best to put them on 10-inch shelves, a row hanging over on each side.

The plants of the ivy-leaved section are beautiful and when their roots are confined they continue to flower a long time, but when planted out in good soil they grow so freely that blooming ceases.

For Winter Blooming.

In winter you are seldom asked for geranium flowers, or not enough to warrant your devoting any bench room to them, but you are frequently called upon for a geranium plant in flower, and it is just as well to have some. Should you not sell them, they will make a fine lot of cuttings in February.

Select in May a few hundred healthy young plants of the free-blooming varieties and put them aside as sold. When the rush is over shift them into 5-inch and grow along in a light house, with the pots plunged in some material to keep them from continually drying out; here is where the portable shading would be especially serviceable. A coldframe would do as well, with the glass tilted up back and front, and then you could shade from 10 o'clock till 4 o'clock.

Keep the buds always picked off these geraniums during the summer, and in August, if they are worth it, shift again, into a 6-inch pot. If you allow the buds to come up after the middle of September, you will have some cheerful, bright plants, that will be most attractive. These plants, if wanted to flower freely, should have a night temperature of 55 degrees and the lightest bench you have.

Insect Pests.

There are scarcely any insects that trouble geraniums, and this is a great point in their favor. Smoke from tobacco stems will drop the petals from single varieties. Therefore it is best to use one of the nicotine papers. They never get any aphis on them, but, of course, other plants near them may be less cleanly. Too close proximity to hot water pipes will sometimes produce red spider, but that should not occur.

Varieties to Grow.

It is unwise to grow a great many varieties. A dozen of the best semi-doubles, half a dozen singles, half a dozen of the ivy-leaved section, and a few of the standard variegated and bronze, will fill the bill for the man who has flower beds to fill. S. A. Nutt remains the most popular geranium for bedding and anyone is safe in growing as large a stock of it as of all other bedders combined. At present the following varieties seem the most popular commercially:

SEMI-DOUBLE ZONAL VARIETIES.

Alphonse Ricard, orange scarlet.
Beaute Poitevine, clear salmon.
Dagata, bright, pure pink; a superb bedder.
Frances Perkins, clear, pure pink; grand habit.
General Grant, an old reliable sort, color bright vermilion scarlet.

Jean Oberle, lovely peach pink.
Jean Viaud, bright rosy pink, a splendid one for pot culture for Memorial day.
J. J. Harrison, fine scarlet.
John Doyle, a fine bright scarlet.
La Favorite, pure white.
Mme. Jaulin, center pink with border of white; a striking and first-class bedder.
Mrs. Lawrence, soft satiny salmon, tinted white.
S. A. Nutt, crimson; still the leader among bedding zonals.

SINGLE ZONALS.

Dryden, white and rosy pink; a splendid bedder.
Eugene Sue, russet orange.
General Grant, bright scarlet, one of the best for large beds.
Granville, fine rose-pink.
Jacquerie, a magnificent crimson scarlet; equally good for pots or bedding.
L'Aube, lovely snow-white.
Mrs. E. G. Hill, salmon; a grand truss.
Paul Crampel, large trusses, brilliant scarlet; the finest single scarlet bedder.

Beaute Poitevine and Helen Michell in a Pennsylvania House.

Rosalda, crimson pink shade; a grand bedder.

IVY GERANIUMS.

Alliance, lilac white, feathered and blotched crimson rose.
Jeanne d'Arc, soft lavender, white markings.
Mme. Thibaut, clear, rosy pink, delicately feathered deep crimson maroon.
Pierre Crozy, scarlet, erect in habit.
Souvenir de Charles Turner, deep pink; fine grower.

SCENTED GERANIUMS.

Lady Plymouth, variegated rose leaf.
Lemon, delicious lemon odor.
Nutmeg, dwarf, nutmeg fragrance.
Pelargonium crispum latifolium, finely scented, of erect habit, useful for cutting for market, an excellent florists' plant.
Rose Leaf, indispensable for cutting.

VARIEGATED BRONZE AND TRICOLOR.

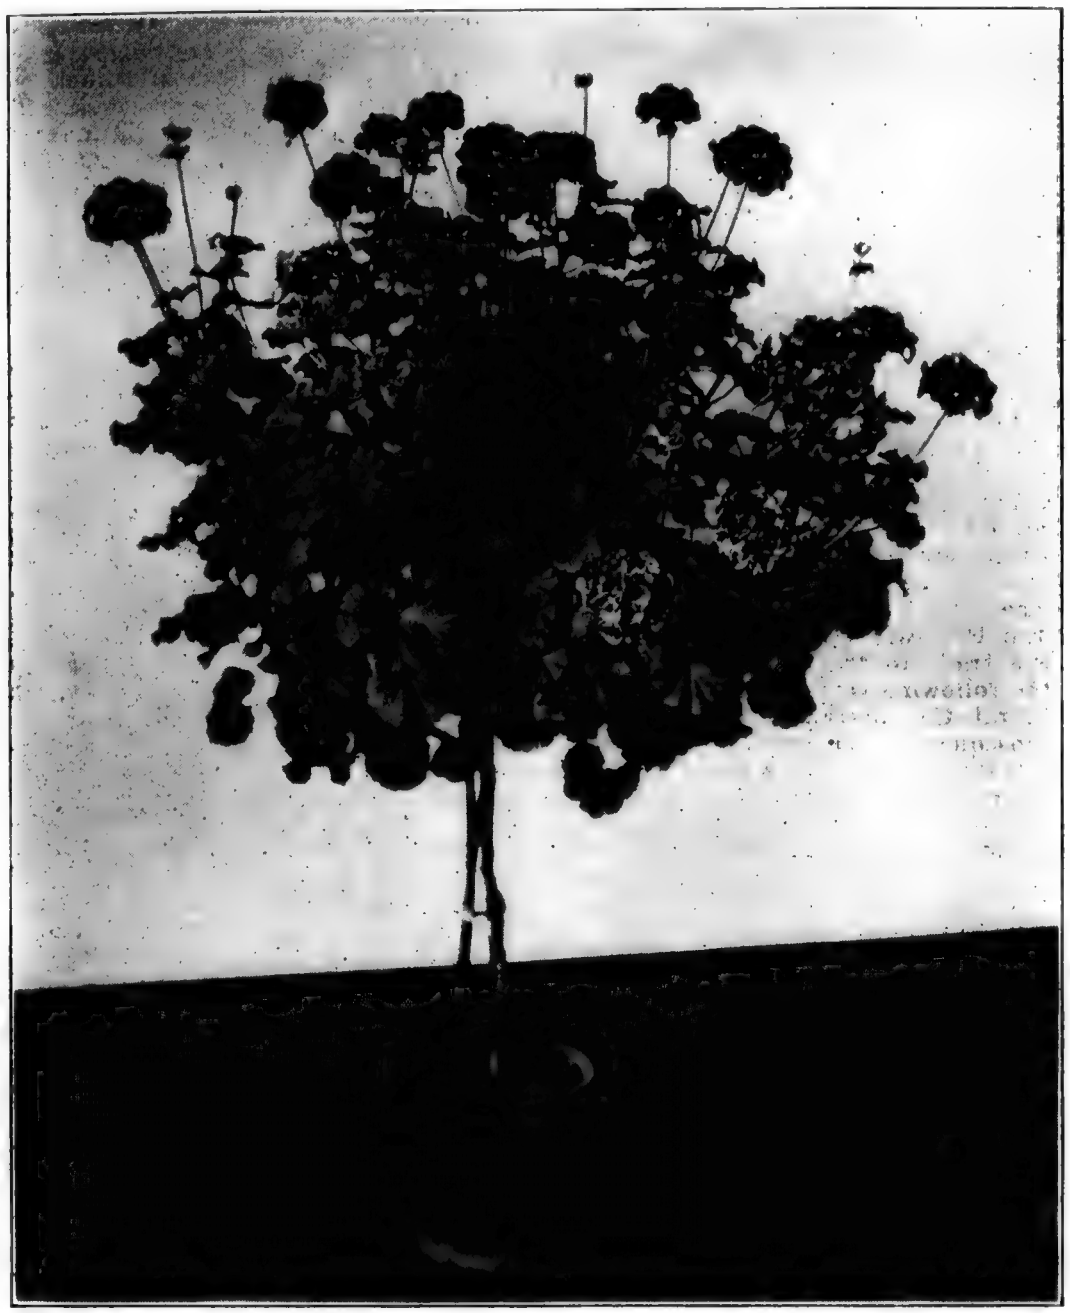
Golden Bedder, rich, golden-leaved.
Happy Thought, dark green, white center.
Marshal MacMahon, fine bronze, with distinct dark zone.
Mme. Salleroi, compact variegated plant; excellent for edging.
Mountain of Snow, pure white and green leaf; a most desirable plant.
Mrs. Parker, variegated foliage; double pink flower.
Mrs. Pollock, beautiful tricolor leaf.
Silver-Leaf Nutt, green foliage, edged silver; like the type except for the variegated leaves.

TWO GROWERS' GERANIUMS.

"Geraniums, the finest we have ever grown!" This cheerful expression, coming almost simultaneously from J. L. North, Sewell, N. J., and T. R. McGinniss & Son, of South Williamsport, Pa., is impressive of the fact that geraniums are thriving in more than one locality this season. And the view of Mr. North's house, on page 13, and that of the McGinnis range on page 14, furnishes convincing proof.

Mr. North, who operates four greenhouses, has grown 35,000 geraniums this season, the best he has ever had, he says.

T. R. McGinnis & Son grew 20,000, also the best in their experience. Those in the illustration are Beaute Poitevine and Helen Michell varieties. Mr. McGinniss and his son started in business in 1909 with one house, 22 x 60 feet. They now have 11,000 feet under cover and are planning to build an additional house, 22 x 60 feet, and a propagating house, 10 x 100 feet, this summer. In the view of their house appear both father and son.



MAKING GERANIUM CUTTINGS.

It is remarkable to see the poor judgment (or is it carelessness?) of some florists in such a simple thing as making cuttings. We have been told that cutting at a joint was not at all essential; don't believe it. Cuttings will root, of many kinds of plants, if cut an inch below a joint, but not so surely. At a joint is where the wood is most firm, and if you leave a piece of sappy, succulent stem an inch long below a joint, it is more likely to become overcharged with moisture; then the walls of the cells are ruptured, decay commences and the stem turns black. If cut at a joint, this is not so likely to occur. By "at a joint" is meant an eighth to a fourth of an inch below the joint.

Then, again, you will see men denude a cutting of all the leaves except the small, undeveloped ones, and others will leave three or four large leaves, so that if the cuttings were put into the sand or potted they would be just a mass of leaves unless you placed them far apart. These mistakes are not always by the boys or beginners, but sometimes by men who ought to know better. The trouble is due to carelessness, want of brains and want of thought.

Cuttings should be made quickly, but they should be made properly. The cutting exists largely on what the leaf absorbs from the atmosphere and sends down as material to form the root. (These remarks, of course, apply to soft-wooded cuttings that are in active growth.) So do not pull off all the geranium leaves. Leave one perfect leaf and one half developed; that will allow you to stand the small pots close together.

While the foregoing describes the way to trim a geranium cutting, it is not a guide to the hundreds of other soft-wooded plants we grow. With many of the smaller-leaved kinds a number of leaves can be left on, perhaps the more the better for the rooting process, but if too many leaves were allowed you would soon fill up your propagating bed, and to crowd the cuttings, covering the sand densely, is just the way to produce fungus on the surface of the sand, which is a calamity and often results in serious loss.

Did You Ever Grow a Tree Geranium?

GERANIUM TREES.

The illustration on this page shows a floral specimen that is rarely grown, a geranium in tree form. This was grown by Poole & Purllant, Winchester, Ky., who have grown several of these plants. This one, however, is the best plant turned out so far. It is a trifle less than 3 years old, is five and a half feet high, is three feet in diameter and, at the time of photographing, carried fifty blooms. The method of growing it was a bit of labor, but it is interesting.

It was grown from a fall, 1918, cutting of the variety Heteranthe. This plant, with several others, was left over from the spring sale of 1919; so it was decided to train it into a plant of the tree form. It was put into a 6-inch pot sometime during the latter part of August, 1919. All the shoots but the center one were cut off. That one was allowed to grow until it was twenty-six inches high. Then the center was cut out and the plant was allowed to grow at its own free will until late in the fall, when each shoot was topped and rooted with other cuttings for the spring.

It was kept cool and was practically untouched until March, 1920. Then it was repotted into an 8-inch pot. During the fall of 1920, it was again topped at each shoot and treated the same as the year before. In February of this year, it was put into a 10-inch pot and grown in a warmer place. The result is the plant as it stands in the illustration.

The soil used was heavy and was enriched with bone and watered occasionally with liquid manure.

FLOOD HITS PUEBLO FIRM.

Washes Away One Store.

The flood at Pueblo, Colo., sweeping through the business center, spared most of the florists there, but the Pueblo Floral Co. was unfortunate enough to have both its stores in the path of the flood. One was a complete loss, even the furnishings being completely swept away, while the other was in such shape that business was speedily resumed. The recovery this firm made was in the spirit that marked the rapid rebound of the Pueblo citizens as a whole from the disheartening disaster. The Review's effort to get tidings of the trade in the flooded city brought the following response from the Pueblo Floral Co., describing its plight and subsequent quick recovery:

"Fifteen feet of water covered the entire business district during the flood at Pueblo, but we are digging out and gradually drying off. To our brother florists we wish to report that we are again open for business and shall appreciate all orders that might come our way. Being the only floral establishment in the city that suffered from the flood, we are really in a position to say that this is a good old world after all. We are operating two stores here, and the flood did not spare either one of them. The store located at 216 North Main street was a total loss, the flood entering by the way of the front windows and making its exit through the rear wall. There is nothing left. The refrigerator, counters and ribbon cases to date have not been found and we are awaiting word from some florist in Kansas saying that he has located our equipment hanging in some tree on the river bank.

"Our total loss will amount to more than $3,000. The three greenhouses we are operating are not damaged in the least and are producing every day.

"Three days after the big wash we hung out our sign, 'Open for Business,' and being the only floral house in the city that produces its own stock, you can be sure that we did business. The store located at 523 North Main street was left intact except the large stock of supplies and boxes that were stored in the basement.

Rapid Recovery.

"We have been educating the people in our city for the last three years as to the uses of flowers and the necessity of using them, and even the great disaster that has befallen us did not stop them from buying. At every funeral of flood victims where there were no flowers we managed to see that the necessary floral sunshine was present. It certainly made one glad to see the happiness that the few flowers brought to these poor people who had nothing left in the world. We took several loads of flowers to the several hospitals where the sick and the bedfast refugees were taken.

"Everyone of our organization is safe and well and ready to be up and at 'em, and as long as one's organization is intact the fight is easy. You will hear from us again soon as to the campaign for the use of flowers we have been putting over. Until then you may be assured that we are digging mud and helping to make our city a bigger and better town. No one here is downhearted, and everyone is busy. We extend our invitation to all florists who may come to Colorado this year on their vacation to come to Pueblo and make the Pueblo Floral Co. their stopping place."

A postcript was added by George Bolt, Jr., manager of the Pueblo Floral Co., reading, "Please send the last two issues of The Review. Can't get along without it."

OHIO GROWERS' PROGRAM.

The one subject that affects all florists, whether they be growers or retailers, is, "What does it cost to grow our stock?" At present there seems to be little information on that subject, so Herman Knoble will discuss it at the time of the first annual meeting of the Ohio district of the National Flower Growers' Association, to be held at Columbus, June 21.

During the last three years Mr. Knoble has made an exhaustive study of cost systems for the grower. A few years ago he, with one or two associates, took over one of the old, rundown greenhouse ranges of Cleveland. The first thing he did, when taking control, was to call in an expert accountant to install a cost system. Mr. Knoble says that the subsequent success of the business may be largely ascribed to the cost system, as it has enabled him to know the exact cost of every detail in operating the greenhouses. He knows what every department is producing, what it costs and what the profit or loss is from day to day. Mr. Knoble will illustrate his talk with the forms and charts which he uses in the system and will tell how they may be used by the average grower.

Other subjects which will be discussed at the meeting will be the cooperative buying of supplies, credits, legislative protection, and the standardizing of the grading of cut flowers, plants, etc. Committees will be appointed to carry on this work during the ensuing year.

In other words, it is going to be a big business meeting, devoted to developing plans which will be of daily help to the grower in his business.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Chicago, Ill.—The Grossberg-Tyler-Finnerman Co. finds itself embarrassed financially. A meeting of its creditors was held Tuesday, June 14, at the offices of the Chicago Association of Credit Men, in the Otis building. The accounts receivable of the company were shown as $1,141.92, and the inventory of merchandise as $1,085, making a total of $2,226.92 in assets. The liabilities were listed at a trifle over $7,000. A committee of three of the representatives of the largest creditors was appointed to go over the books, study the whole situation, form some plan for settling or liquidating and report at a future meeting of the creditors. Several of the creditors said that they had known the boys for years and that they would be willing to give them a chance to get back on their feet if the other creditors would agree. The committee is also going to give a report on what the various creditors wish to do, and what they would advise doing under the circumstances.

Chicago, Ill.—Theodore Johnson, attorney, 722 First National Bank building, has addressed a circular letter to the creditors of Roy White, doing business as the No-drip Basket Shop and the Wonder Plant Irrigator Co., North Clark street. White is stated to be indebted to the extent of $4,000, with assets which the attorney says probably would not realize over $500 at forced sale. The request is made to give further time by accepting notes running six months and a year, the debtor to pay cash for all purchases until the notes are paid.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Harold W. Pierce recently entered the florists' business in this town. He owns a small greenhouse and garden.

BATTLING ROSE BEETLE

A paper read by Herman Junge, of Indianapolis, before the meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association June 7 at the Smith & Young Co., Indianapolis.

THE strawberry beetle, Typophorus canellus, is rather an ambitious insect. It is always striving to get into the limelight. It first succeeded in getting its name into print by destroying strawberry plants; next it caused a stir by attacking apple orchards in New England; but it did not arrive in the "Who's Who" until it began to attack roses under glass.

As mentioned, the Typophorus canellus was first known as the strawberry root-worm, because of the fact that the larva of this insect works under ground, destroying the roots of the strawberries. To the rose growers, the adult, the beetle itself, is of greatest concern, since it is the beetle that does the greatest, at any rate, the visible damage to the rose plants. It feeds on the leaves and on the tender bark of the young growth, also on the eyes as they begin to swell. How much damage is done by the larvæ feeding upon the roots is difficult to determine. At times it must be great, for Mr. Dietz, our entomologist, has told me of a case where the tender white roots have been almost entirely destroyed.

Begin in June.

In June, generally between the first and the fifteenth, the signs of the beetle's destructive work increase rapidly, until in a badly infested place there can hardly be found a leaf or a bud or four inches of young growth unmarred. For all this damage the beetle itself is little in evidence, because it feeds on the under side of the leaves, keeping well out of sight. It also has the habit of "playing possum;" that is, at the slightest disturbance it will drop to the ground and lie there motionless, and being small and of dark color, it is almost invisible. If you wish to get a correct idea of the number of beetles, blow tobacco smoke among the plants. If you listen carefully, you can hear them drop and so get an idea of the number present. Another good way of ascertaining the number is to shake the bushes and immediatly afterwards let the flame of a gasoline blow-torch play upon the ground between the bushes. The heat of the torch will make the beetles run or fly.

When the grower sees the increasing signs of another onslaught of the pest, he realizes that his strenuous efforts of the previous season have failed, once more, to rout the enemy. If rose growing is not absolutely vital to his business, he may decide, as a number have done, to drop rose culture entirely, but if he is not so fortunately situated, he takes up the battle anew. He smokes, sprays, powders or gasses; he uses arsenate, tobacco, cyanide or some of the patent remedies, but no matter what he uses, it seems to be effective. For, beginning about the middle of August, he notices a decrease in damage done and flatters himself that he has found a remedy to cope with this evil. Encouraged by his apparent success, more diligently than before he attends to spraying or dusting the plants. As the season becomes cooler and the days become shorter the damage and the number of beetles continue to decrease, until sometime in November the rose houses appear about normal. Then the grower, after reconciling himself to a loss of one-half or one-third of his rose crop, discontinues his efforts at the very time when winter weather puts his enemy at the greatest disadvantage. And so it goes, year after year, and so it will continue until we resolve to fight and watch our enemy, not only when he goes over the top in the balmy days of June, but also while he is lying low during fall and winter, preparing for another campaign.

THE TRADE'S AID

Combative measures of the Philadelphia rose growers against the strawberry beetle were described in The Review of May 6, 1920. To aid rose growers throughout the country further in their fight against this dangerous pest, the Indiana State Florists' Association voted to submit for publication in the same columns this excellent account of steps taken against the insect in Indiana.

Knowledge Needed.

To win this battle, we must learn all about this beetle; in order to apply our remedies intelligently, we must know all about its habits and its life cycle; we need facts, scientific facts, that only an entomologist is qualified to establish, and here I am glad to report that Harry Dietz, of our state conservation department, and C. A. Weigel, of the United States Bureau of Entomology, are making good progress in their efforts in that direction.

Under natural conditions, according to our state entomologist, the typophorus lays eggs in spring; the larvæ are feeding upon the roots of the strawberry during June and July and in fall the mature beetles appear above ground, feeding upon the strawberry leaves. The beetles pass the winter in a dormant or semi-dormant state and conclude their life cycle by depositing their cluster of eggs in spring at the base of the plants.

This is a simple and orderly plan of life and leaves little to surmise. Unfortunately for us, however, the beetles under glass have adopted a more careless way of living. No longer do all the beetles deposit their eggs within a week or ten days, but eggs may be found from early spring until late in July, so that at the present time we are uncertain whether there are not two or even more broods reared annually. At the end of last July I found, at one time and within a few inches of each other, eggs, two sizes of larvæ, pupæ and beetles in different stages of development. Indications are, however, that at least from October 15 to February 15 the ground is free from these insects in any form, and the beetles above ground are all that we have to contend with during that time. The beetle in winter, say from November until February 15, is sluggish, lying or crawling slowly on the ground. It seldom and only during the warmest hours of the day appears on the plants, and it never flies. That means, and this is important, that at this time of the year it is not likely to go from one bench to another, so that if one bench is cleaned of beetles there is no immediate danger of its being again infested.

Remedies Tried.

As to the remedies, arsenates are most frequently used. We have tried both arsenate of lead and Paris green, and according to our experiments with beetles confined in catches, dusting with a mixture of eight parts of flour to one of poison, Paris green is the more effective of the two; it also has the advantage of being less conspicuous upon the foliage. At best, however, arsenates and all other stomach poisons, whether applied as dust or liquid, will reach only a small number of beetles, because this insect habitually feeds on the under side of the leaves and on such other parts of the plant as are the hardest to reach with the poison. Hydrocyanic acid gas, using two ounces per thousand cubic feet of space, will kill practically all beetles caught above ground, according to Mr. Weigel. Since, however, the gas also injures the plants more or less, its use is practical only during a brief period in summer and at that time, as we have shown, new beetles are continually emerging from the ground. Mr. Weigel also reports good results from applications of wood ashes and tobacco dust in controlling the larvæ. He writes: "These materials are applied at intervals of five days and at a rate of thirty-five to forty pounds per

It certainly made one glad to see the happiness that the few flowers brought to these poor people who had nothing left in the world. We took several loads of flowers to the several hospitals where the sick and the bedfast refugees were taken.

"Everyone of our organization is safe and well and ready to be up and at 'em, and as long as one's organization is intact the fight is easy. You will hear from us again soon as to the campaign for the use of flowers we have been putting over. Until then you may be assured that we are digging mud and helping to make our city a bigger and better town. No one here is down hearted, and everyone is busy. We extend our invitation to all florists who may come to Colorado this year on their vacation to come to Pueblo and make the Pueblo Floral Co. their stopping place."

A postcript was added by George Bolt, Jr., manager of the Pueblo Floral Co., reading, "Please send the last two issues of The Review. Can't get along without it."

OHIO GROWERS' PROGRAM.

The one subject that affects all florists, whether they be growers or retailers, is, "What does it cost to grow our stock?" At present there seems to be little information on that subject, so Herman Knoble will discuss it at the time of the first annual meeting of the Ohio district of the National Flower Growers' Association, to be held at Columbus, June 21.

During the last three years Mr. Knoble has made an exhaustive study of cost systems for the grower. A few years ago he, with one or two associates, took over one of the old, rundown greenhouse ranges of Cleveland. The first thing he did, when taking control, was to call in an expert accountant to install a cost system. Mr. Knoble says that the subsequent success of the business may be largely ascribed to the cost system, as it has enabled him to know the exact cost of every detail in operating the greenhouses. He knows what every department is producing, what it costs and what the profit or loss is from day to day. Mr. Knoble will illustrate his talk with the forms and charts which he uses in the system and will tell how they may be used by the average grower.

Other subjects which will be discussed at the meeting will be the cooperative buying of supplies, credits, legislative protection, and the standardizing of the grading of cut flowers, plants, etc. Committees will be appointed to carry on this work during the ensuing year.

In other words, it is going to be a big business meeting, devoted to developing plans which will be of daily help to the grower in his business.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Chicago, Ill.—The Grossberg-Tyler-Finnerman Co. finds itself embarrassed financially. A meeting of its creditors was held Tuesday, June 14, at the offices of the Chicago Association of Credit Men, in the Otis building. The accounts receivable of the company were shown as $1,141.92, and the inventory of merchandise as $1,085, making a total of $2,226.92 in assets. The liabilities were listed at a trifle over $7,000. A committee of three of the representatives of the largest creditors was appointed to go over the books, study the whole situation, form some plan for settling or liquidating and report at a future meeting of the creditors. Several of the creditors said that they had known the boys for years and that they would be willing to give them a chance to get back on their feet if the other creditors would agree. The committee is also going to give a report on what the various creditors wish to do, and what they would advise doing under the circumstances.

Chicago, Ill.—Theodore Johnson, attorney, 722 First National Bank building, has addressed a circular letter to the creditors of Roy White, doing business as the No-drip Basket Shop and the Wonder Plant Irrigator Co., North Clark street. White is stated to be indebted to the extent of $4,000, with assets which the attorney says probably would not realize over $500 at forced sale. The request is made to give further time by accepting notes running six months and a year, the debtor to pay cash for all purchases until the notes are paid.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Harold W. Pierce recently entered the florists' business in this town. He owns a small greenhouse and garden.

BATTLING ROSE BEETLE

A paper read by Herman Junge, of Indianapolis, before the meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association June 7 at the Smith & Young Co., Indianapolis.

THE strawberry beetle, Typophorus canellus, is rather an ambitious insect. It is always striving to get into the limelight. It first succeeded in getting its name into print by destroying strawberry plants; next it caused a stir by attacking apple orchards in New England; but it did not arrive in the "Who's Who" until it began to attack roses under glass.

As mentioned, the Typophorus canellus was first known as the strawberry root-worm, because of the fact that the larva of this insect works under ground, destroying the roots of the strawberries. To the rose growers, the adult, the beetle itself, is of greatest concern, since it is the beetle that does the greatest, at any rate, the visible damage to the rose plants. It feeds on the leaves and on the tender bark of the young growth, also on the eyes as they begin to swell. How much damage is done by the larvæ feeding upon the roots is difficult to determine. At times it must be great, for Mr. Dietz, our entomologist, has told me of a case where the tender white roots have been almost entirely destroyed.

Begin in June.

In June, generally between the first and the fifteenth, the signs of the beetle's destructive work increase rapidly, until in a badly infested place there can hardly be found a leaf or a bud or four inches of young growth unmarred. For all this damage the beetle itself is little in evidence, because it feeds on the under side of the leaves, keeping well out of sight. It also has the habit of "playing possum;" that is, at the slightest disturbance it will drop to the ground and lie there motionless, and being small and of dark color, it is almost invisible. If you wish to get a correct idea of the number of beetles, blow tobacco smoke among the plants. If you listen carefully, you can hear them drop and so get an idea of the number present. Another good way of ascertaining the number is to shake the bushes and immediatly afterwards let the flame of a gasoline blow-torch play upon the ground between the bushes. The heat of the torch will make the beetles run or fly.

When the grower sees the increasing signs of another onslaught of the pest, he realizes that his strenuous efforts of the previous season have failed, once more, to rout the enemy. If rose growing is not absolutely vital to his business, he may decide, as a number have done, to drop rose culture entirely, but if he is not so fortunately situated, he takes up the battle anew. He smokes, sprays, powders or gasses; he uses arsenate, tobacco, cyanide or some of the patent remedies, but no matter what he uses, it seems to be effective. For, beginning about the middle of August, he notices a decrease in damage done and flatters himself that he has found a remedy to cope with this evil. Encouraged by his apparent success, more diligently than before he attends to spraying or dusting the plants. As the season becomes cooler and the days become shorter the damage and the number of beetles continue to decrease, until sometime in November the rose houses appear about normal. Then the grower, after reconciling himself to a loss of one-half or one-third of his rose crop, discontinues his efforts at the very time when winter weather puts his enemy at the greatest disadvantage. And so it goes, year after year, and so it will continue until we resolve to fight and watch our enemy, not only when he goes over the top in the balmy days of June, but also while he is lying low during fall and winter, preparing for another campaign.

Knowledge Needed.

To win this battle, we must learn all about this beetle; in order to apply our remedies intelligently, we must know all about its habits and its life cycle; we need facts, scientific facts, that only an entomologist is qualified to establish, and here I am glad to report that Harry Dietz, of our state conservation department, and C. A. Weigel, of the United States Bureau of Entomology, are making good progress in their efforts in that direction.

Under natural conditions, according to our state entomologist, the typophorus lays eggs in spring; the larvæ are feeding upon the roots of the strawberry during June and July and in fall the mature beetles appear above ground, feeding upon the strawberry leaves. The beetles pass the winter in a dormant or semi-dormant state and conclude their life cycle by depositing their cluster of eggs in spring at the base of the plants.

This is a simple and orderly plan of life and leaves little to surmise. Unfortunately for us, however, the beetles under glass have adopted a more careless way of living. No longer do all the beetles deposit their eggs within a week or ten days, but eggs may be found from early spring until late in July, so that at the present time we are uncertain whether there are not two or even more broods reared annually. At the end of last July I found, at one time and within a few inches of each other, eggs, two sizes of larvæ, pupæ and beetles in different stages of development. Indications are, however, that at least from October 15 to February 15 the ground is free from these insects in any form, and the beetles above ground are all that we have to contend with during that time. The beetle in winter, say from November until February 15, is sluggish, lying or crawling slowly on the ground. It seldom and only during the warmest hours of the day appears on the plants, and it never flies. That means, and this is important, that at this time of the year it is not likely to go from one bench to another, so that if one bench is cleaned of beetles there is no immediate danger of its being again infested.

Remedies Tried.

As to the remedies, arsenates are most frequently used. We have tried both arsenate of lead and Paris green, and according to our experiments with beetles confined in catches, dusting with a mixture of eight parts of flour to one of poison, Paris green is the more effective of the two; it also has the advantage of being less conspicuous upon the foliage. At best, however, arsenates and all other stomach poisons, whether applied as dust or liquid, will reach only a small number of beetles, because this insect habitually feeds on the under side of the leaves and on such other parts of the plant as are the hardest to reach with the poison. Hydrocyanic acid gas, using two ounces per thousand cubic feet of space, will kill practically all beetles caught above ground, according to Mr. Weigel. Since, however, the gas also injures the plants more or less, its use is practical only during a brief period in summer and at that time, as we have shown, new beetles are continually emerging from the ground. Mr. Weigel also reports good results from applications of wood ashes and tobacco dust in controlling the larvæ. He writes: "These materials are applied at intervals of five days and at a rate of thirty-five to forty pounds per

Combative measures of the Philadelphia rose growers against the strawberry beetle were described in The Review of May 6, 1920. To aid rose growers throughout the country further in their fight against this dangerous pest, the Indiana State Florists' Association voted to submit for publication in the same columns this excellent account of steps taken against the insect in Indiana.

750 square feet, thus assuring a continuous leaching of material through the soil.'' This remedy is doubtless one of the most promising heretofore recommended and, when used in connection with the gas, should give excellent results. It requires, however, a good deal of labor and material in quantities that might be difficult to obtain should this remedy be universally adopted.

New Suggestions.

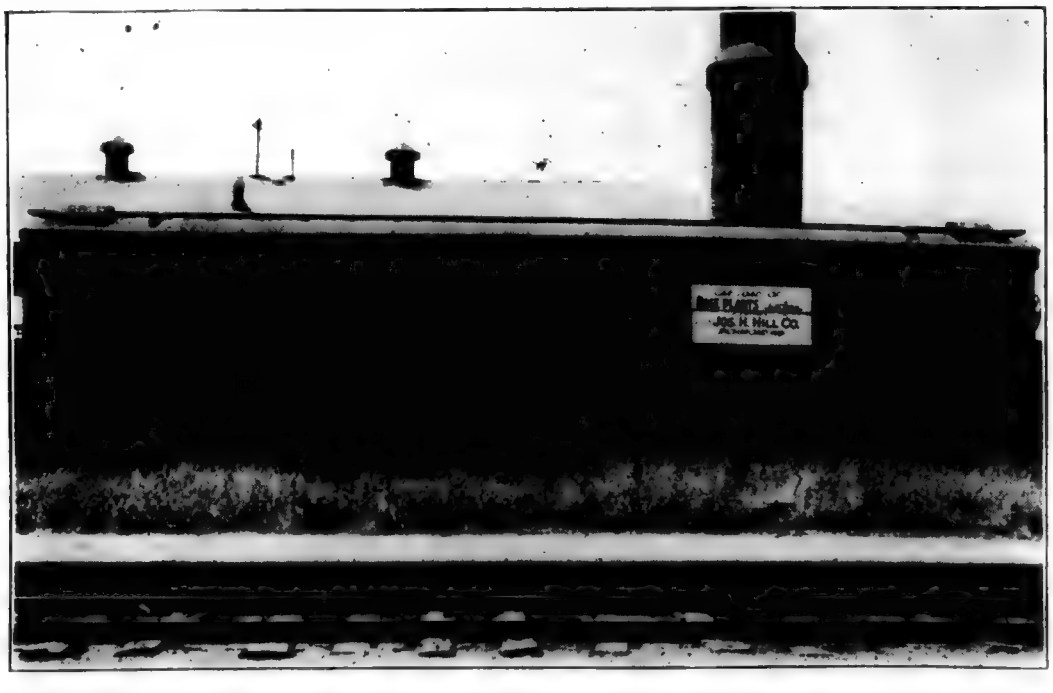
After many trials, most of them unsuccessful or partly so, we learned of a means of controlling this insect, so simple that at first we failed to grasp its full significance. Luckily, however, we recalled it just at the most opportune time for an experiment, and although we tried it only in a half-hearted way, it worked so well that we hope, if applied with the required care and enthusiasm, it will solve the beetle problem for us. This plan, as described to us by a prominent grower, is this: A layer of mulch at least one inch deep is applied to the rose beds. Then between December 15 and January 15, on cloudy, cold days, the bushes should be shaken and then the mulch should be immediately removed and with it will go the beetles. Beetle-tight receptacles should be used and one should be sure that the men entrusted with the work understand exactly the why and wherefore of this operation, so that they will do it as carefully as possible. This operation may be repeated as often as deemed necessary. If mulch is put on only for the purpose of trapping the beetle, any material may be used, provided it is neither repellent to the beetle nor injurious to the roses, and it may be removed a day or two after applied. Sawdust, fine manure, leaf-mold, chaff or dried lawn-clippings should be suitable.

Review Reader's Hint.

If this plan, contrary to our expectations, should fail or prove insufficient, we have another one in reserve. It is untried, but looks promising, and was suggested to us by the tobacco and wood ashes treatment as mentioned before and also by an article in The Review in which a lady florist recommends lye solution for ground insects. We have tried lye on rose plants and applications as strong as one ounce in a gallon of water per plant have not yet shown any bad effect on plants that were treated almost four months ago.

We expect to use the mulch treatment as described this winter, and next spring we shall examine our benches frequently for eggs, larvæ and pupæ from May 20 to June 10. If we find benches sufficiently infested to warrant the treatment, we shall apply lye, first at the rate of one-half ounce per plant and later with an increased dose if necessary. It was our intention to use lye solution, but that requires elaborate preparation as to tanks, pipes, pumps and so forth. So we are going to try another plan, developed by our Mr. Hillman. He mixes one part lye with six parts sifted dry soil; he distributes this mixture over the bench so that each row of five plants will get the required amount of lye, and then applies the hose. The first watering should be gauged so that the solution penetrates the soil at least two inches and not much over three inches. By this time next year we hope to be able to report to our fellow rose growers that this treatment has proved successful.

CAMPHOR SCALE.



The camphor scale, which has been the cause of a quarantine laid on shipments from the parishes of Orleans and Jefferson, Louisiana, holding up the supply of Ficus elastica cuttings at this time, is characterized by the United States Department of Agriculture as ''a new and serious insect pest that may prove a dire menace to the citrus fruit orchards and other cultures of the country unless its spread is checked.'' This pest first made its appearance in New Orleans, where it threatens to destroy many of the camphor trees used extensively for shade along the streets. Local authorities, it is said, are taking active steps to control the pest and have asked the United States Department of Agriculture to give assistance through its Federal Horticultural Board and the Bureau of Entomology, which has been investigating the situation at first hand.

While the insect is found attacking more or less vigorously more than 100 kinds of plants, including citrus, the camphor trees appear to be most seriously injured by it, and for this reason the name camphor scale is applied to the pest. How it got into the United States is still unknown, but entomologists believe that it was introduced but little more than a year ago, from its rapid spread during the short time that its presence has been recognized. Thus far the pest has attacked chiefly ornamentals, owing to the character of plants in the infested area, which at present includes several blocks in the residential section of the city, where many of the camphor trees are beginning to show signs of injury, a few of the lower branches dying and a large number of leaves falling off. From its characteristics, however, the insect is said to be an enemy of citrus trees, figs and live oaks, as well as other plants of economic value.

This is said to be the first establishment of the camphor scale in this country. Hitherto it has been known to exist almost wholly in India, China and Japan. Reported occurrences of its presence in the Philippines and Porto Rico are being inquired into as a result of the outbreak in New Orleans. It is described as an insect of semitropic climates and closely related to the San Jose scale, which made its appearance in this country between forty-five and fifty years ago from China. The opinion is expressed that the camphor scale would hardly go farther north than Virginia, on the Atlantic seaboard, if given a chance.

BOUND FOR THE COAST.

Not frequently are roses for greenhouse planting shipped in carload lots. Wholesale nurserymen handle bedding roses in such quantities, but propagators of greenhouse roses not often. And never before is it recorded that a firm east of the Rockies shipped into the Golden state so large a quantity of roses for greenhouse planting. The car shown in the illustration on this page, however, has started on its way from Richmond, Ind., to Santa Ana, Cal. The Joseph H. Hill Co. loaded it with Premier, Mme. Butterfly, Columbia, White Killarney and Crusader. Amling Bros., of Maywood fame, will plant the stock in the houses being erected at Santa Ana, Cal., by the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., of Chicago. The range there will comprise five connected pipe-frame houses, 40 × 400 feet.

BOSTON'S SPRING SHOW.

List of Bulb Classes.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society will hold its annual exhibition of spring bulbs and other spring-flowering plants at Horticultural hall, Boston, sometime during March, 1922. Prizes amounting to $6,000 will be offered at this exhibition. In order that intending exhibitors may be informed of the varieties required and may provide the bulbs called for, the schedule of classes of Holland bulbs, which is to be the special feature, is sent out earlier than the schedule for the other plants. The classes in the Holland bulb section open to commercial growers are as follows:

UNCERTAINTY IN BELGIUM.

Little Improvement in 1920.

"The situation of the horticultural industry in Belgium last year did not improve much over that of 1919," reports the United States consul at Ghent. "The closing of the German market to the Belgian plants of the Ghent district has caused the greatest harm to this industry, as before the war Germany took more than half of the amount exported. At present the German government refuses absolutely to let the Belgian plants come in, on the ground that they constitute a luxury.

"And from the side of France a new danger has lately arisen. The Federation of the Horticultural Industry of France has sent a request to the French minister of agriculture that the customs duty be increased on all horticultural plants, flowers, vegetables or fruit. The French federation proposes that the French parliament vote immediately a duty of fifteen per cent ad valorem. The present duty is only 5

The Federation of the Horticultural Industry of France has sent a request to the French minister of agriculture that the customs duty be increased on all horticultural plants, flowers, vegetables or fruit. The French federation proposes that the French parliament vote immediately a duty of fifteen per cent ad valorem. The present duty is only 5 francs per hundred kilos (220 pounds) on a part of the plants, and the rest are admitted free. As Belgium imports a great many cut flowers from France, it is probable that if this measure becomes a law, retaliatory measures will be taken by the Belgian government. But all this makes the future of the Belgian industry all the more uncertain.

Consul Against Embargo.

"The United States government still prevents the entry of Belgian plants into the United States, on the ground of danger to American plants. The Belgian horticulturists have the firm conviction that this danger does not exist and have not yet given up hopes that this restriction will be removed in the case of greenhouse plants at least. A thorough phytopathological service has been established in Ghent by the Belgian government, which inspects all the greenhouse plants most minutely. The Belgian horticulturists also are willing to have a representative of the United States Department of Agriculture stationed at Ghent at their expense to inspect thoroughly every shipment. Steps will be taken to carry this out if possible.

"In the interests of trade between the United States and Belgium, it is absolutely necessary to encourage Belgian exports to the United States. One of the best ways of doing this is to open again the American market for the live plants from the Ghent district. This can be done with entire safety to the American plants by taking the proper measures of protection as suggested above. Otherwise one of the oldest and most prosperous industries of this city may be ruined."

The Market.

The market has experienced a condition of dullness remindful of pre-war periods. The supply has been vastly in excess of the demand, which continues abnormally small. Undoubtedly, an excess of outdoor stock is responsible for the large supply. A few items which were profitable in this market last year at this time are this season overdone. Gypsophila, for example, which sold well last year, is now coming in such quantity that clearances of fresh stock are difficult. Delphinium, which enjoyed a fair market, now taxes icebox possibilities to the limit, and much stock passes to the ash barrel. June weddings this year are not so plentiful as formerly. This is not distressing, for weddings seem no longer controlled as to dates by seasons. The demand for flowers for funeral work, too, has, of late, been light. Flag day, June 14, caused a demand for flowers in the national colors, but the needs were supplied without difficulty and at bargain prices.

Roses are arriving of summer quality, some varieties off color, and a large percentage of most arrivals well opened. The heat of late has been hard on the roses. American Beauty is plentiful enough for the demand and moves slowly. Hybrid teas meet a limited demand, with bargain prices on clearance lots. White varieties are scarcer than others and prices firmer in consequence.

Carnations are overplentiful and of the quality usual at throwing-out time, small flower heads on long stems. The best of arrivals move within a range of 50 cents to $1.50 per hundred, the surplus going largely to street venders at anything obtainable for them.

Orchids are in scant supply and meet an equally scant demand. The best Cattleya gigas meets an inactive demand at $125 per hundred, and other grades move out at as low as $20 less.

White lilies meet a fairly regular demand, with plenty of stock available. A few shipments of Lilium regale, outdoor-grown, are arriving. Lily of the valley is not in great supply, and sales drag.

Sweet peas are in overabundance and outdoor stock is beginning to arrive fast. Prices are low and much stock remains unsold.

Additions to the line of outside flowers are campanulas, rambler roses and Iceland poppies. Jacqueminot roses are about finished. A few cold-storage and late peonies are coming, but are hard to move. Stocks, delphiniums, cornflowers, centaureas, calendulas, gypsophilas, coreopsis, gaillardias, bouvardias, gladioli, Japanese irises, pansies, snapdragons, feverfew, sweet williams and wild spiræa are available in great quantity and move slowly, at prices hardly quotable in many cases.

Various Notes.

The Allied Florists' Association put out a general advertisement last week, using eight New York papers and one Brooklyn paper. If publicity does any good at all, it should be effective when the market is dull, and that is the way most in the trade are thinking. The size of the advertisement was 4x6 inches, and the copy was well displayed.

The children of the public schools of Greater New York gave a plant show in the Sixty-ninth Regiment armory, Lexington avenue and Twenty-sixth street, June 15 and 16, under the auspices of the board of education, in coöperation with the mayor's committee of women. There were 500 or more schools to participate. The arrangement of the exhibits was in the hands of a competent landscape gardener. Prizes were offered by the different school districts, by the boroughs and by the city. The exhibition was free.

Theodore Outerbridge, Sunnylands, Bermuda, was in the city last week. He reports that the Harrisii lily stock is exceptionally fine this season.

Paul Rigo, of the Henshaw Floral Co., and Mrs. Rigo, will be in the party of Elks which will leave for Los Angeles July 3.

Letters from Sol Hanfling, of the S. Hanfling Co., are to the effect that business conditions are settling down in Europe. Last week he was in Paris, after a trip through Belgium. He expects to visit Germany.

E. J. Fancourt, of the S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia, was in New York last week.

INDIANA TELEGRAPH POSTERS.

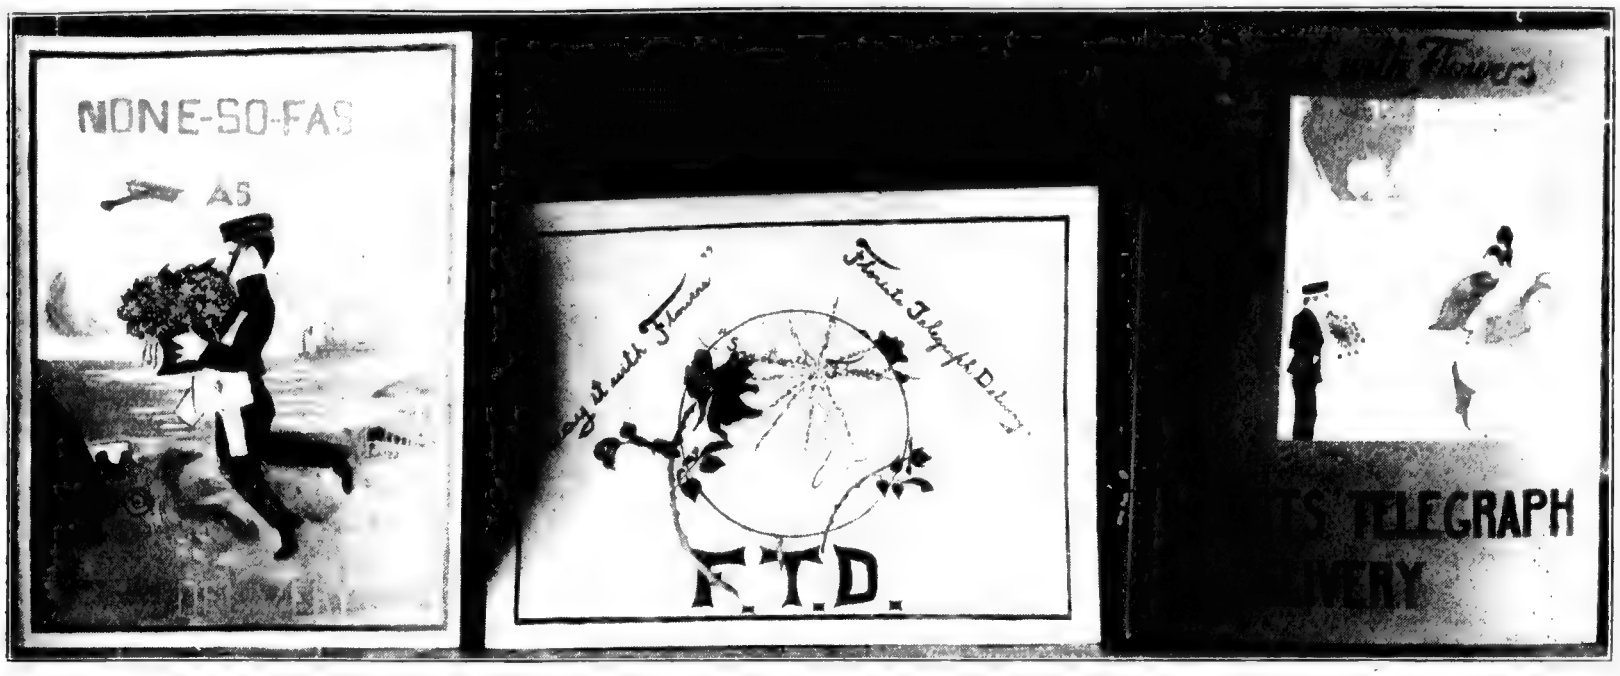
One of the most conspicuous features in the preparation for the meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association at Indianapolis last October was the contest among students of various schools in the city for the poster most expressively presenting the telegraph delivery idea. One of the important phases of the contest was the education it gave the competing students, their teachers and parents in the telegraph delivery service. This accomplishment of the contest was so impressed on the mind of L. E. Hitz, now president of the Indiana State Florists' Association, that he instituted a similar contest among the students of Madison, Ind., this spring.

The posters of the Madison students were exhibited at the meeting, June 7, of the Indiana State Florists' Association, at the store of the Smith & Young Co., Indianapolis. So clever did the members of the association think the work that they voted $20 in prizes to be awarded. Each group, the junior and senior students, received three prizes, $5 for first, $3 for second, and $2 for third. The winners are shown on this page. In each group the winners are in order from left to right, the winner of first prize being on the left.

Here is a way to stimulate interest in and increase knowledge of the telegraph delivery of flowers all over the country. The florists in each community can promote such a competition. It is not beyond imagination that a later F. T. D. convention will see an intercity poster display and contest.

DENVER'S ADVERTISING.

The florists of Denver are now included among those who have a continuous coöperative publicity campaign. The committee for conducting this campaign was organized late in the fall of 1920 and began actual advertising work in January, 1921. Both the retailers and growers are included in the organization and there is a membership of about fifty.



The finances are obtained by taxing the growers two per cent per thousand feet of glass, and the retailers pay what they wish each month. The total income per month so far has averaged about $400. The period of assessment was to run six months and ended April 30.

A recent meeting resulted in the decision to cut the assessments in half during the summer months and to resume the original schedule in the fall.

Since January advertisements have appeared each week in the several Denver papers. These advertisements have pushed the idea of using flowers for birthdays, anniversaries, sickrooms and offices. The committee believes that by calling attention to these, people can be encouraged to use flowers the year around and thus to some extent relieve the surplus of flowers which is often on hand. Twenty-six "Say It with Flowers" billboards have been placed at prominent points in and around Denver.

The majority of the Denver florists and growers believe that the advertising has brought results. In the near future the committee expects to entertain J. F. Ammann and H. V. Swenson at a mass meeting of the florists. The hope is that their talks will be the means of uniting Denver florists into a more solid organization.

TOLEDO, O.

The Market.

Last week's business was decidedly off color. Were it not for the funeral work, the slump would have reached midsummer proportions. June weddings are plentiful, but run to inexpensive work, with occasional exceptions. Roses, in general, are fair. Sunburst is of excellent color, having a big call. Indoor peas are done. Outdoor stock will be ready in about ten days.

Prices, as a consequence of poor business conditions, are at rock bottom. Another week may find conditions better.

Various Notes.

Two events of the week brought a little extra work to a few of the stores. One was the consecration of Bishop Schwertner, calling for an unusually large number of flowers. The other event was of a more serious character. Two policemen were killed trying to dislodge a maniac from the attic of a house. The funerals of the unfortunate officers called for much floral work.

Schramm Bros. are rapidly catching up in their planting work. Orders for June weddings are fully up to last year.

Metz & Bateman had a large share of the funeral work last week.

The Helmer Flower Shop turns out work of a high order, which is appreciated by the many customers, as is evidenced by the way business keeps up.

The Century Flower Shoppe is using a large-sized fountain and bridal settings in their display window.

Several florists wired orders to Cincinnati for the funeral of Fred Galbraith, legionary commander.

Hall's Flower Shop, formerly operated as the Navarre, adds new life to the trade. H. E. K.

CLUB MEETINGS

CHICAGO CLUB CLOSES SEASON.

Will Resume in October.

The Chicago Florists' Club met at the Randolph hotel Thursday evening, June 9. Owing to the fact that President Kohout was unable to be present on account of graduation exercises at Libertyville, Vice-President A. T. Pyfer presided at this meeting. Secretary Lautenschlager was in his accustomed place.

The application for membership of Irving Stein, in the florists' supplies business at 161 North Wabash avenue, was presented. Nominations from the preceding meeting included the following growers: Gustaf Bloom, 11936 Eggleston avenue; Antony Batek, Shermerville, and E. J. Delaney, Hollywood, Cal. On motion of T. E. Waters, it was decided to include the application of Irving Stein for election at this meeting, and the secretary was instructed to cast one ballot electing to membership all of the candidates mentioned.

T. E. Waters, chairman of the good of the club committee, presented a report covering the May party, theatrical performance and dance. Upon motion of Mr. Waters, the secretary was instructed to send a letter of thanks to Professor Blair, Professor Dorner and the students of the Floricultural Club of the University of Illinois for the excellent performance of the play, "The Florist Shop."

Plans for Washington.

Considerable discussion ensued concerning the Chicago Florists' Club bowling team at the S. A. F. convention at Washington. Mr. Waters, chairman of the good of the club and the sports committees, was instructed to get up a team for this contest.

Michael Barker presented the report on transportation from Chicago to Washington, which appears on another page of this issue. Mr. Barker was given authority to select the route and official train for this trip.

It was unanimously decided to dispense with the meetings during July, August and September. On motion of T. E. Waters, it was voted to open the fall season with an entertainment, which will be a stag affair for gentlemen only. Tickets will be $1 each and the sale will be limited to 300.

NEW YORK CLUB MEETING.

Last Till September.

The regular monthly meeting of the New York Florists' Club was held Monday evening, June 13, in the club's quarters in the Engineering Societies' building. President I. S. Hendrickson occupied the chair. The attendance was fair, with representatives of growers' interests predominating on account of the lecture scheduled for the evening.

The secretary read resolutions, prepared by a committee appointed for the purpose, on the death of Alfred Demeusy, of Brooklyn, a member of long standing, and they were adopted. Resolutions of sympathy addressed to Alfred H. Langjahr and Percy B. Rigby on the demise of their wives were also adopted.

Committee Reports.

In the report of a special committee on the standardization of flowers for the various months, it was recommended that the matter be laid on the table, and the recommendation was adopted. The committee believed, after due consideration, that it was inadvisable, without a wider understanding of the project and the working of the plan, to come to any conclusion at the present time.

C. Lowther, for the transportation committee, detailed the arrangements made for the travel of visitors to the S. A. F. convention, and explained that all going by rail should first get identification certificates from Secretary Young, in order to obtain the reduced rate offered by the railroad.

F. H. Traendly, for the committee on the membership drive for the S. A. F., reported progress.

A. T. De La Mare, for the new committee on good of the club, urged all members to respond as early as possible to the questionnaire which had been sent out. In a short discussion which followed, one or two points in the questionnaire were shown to be questions worthy of the immediate attention of members.

C. H. Totty, for the flower show committee, announced that the matter of continuing the flower shows was still engaging the attention of the committee, and a meeting of the interested committees would take place shortly.

President Hendrickson announced that in accordance with the by-laws he would shortly appoint a committee on nomination of officers for 1922.

John Maresca, 450 Amsterdam avenue, New York, was nominated for membership in the club, and as there is to be no meeting of the club until September, the club's rules were, on motion, suspended and the nominee duly elected.

Some discussion took place in regard to emergency drafts on the funds of the club. A motion by C. B. Weathered that a committee of five be appointed to consider amendments to the by-laws to cover such conditions resulted in the matter being left to the committee on good of the club for action.

It was announced that the next meeting, September 12, would be Long Island night, and members were urged to get out a good representation of Long Island florists.

Lecture on Insects.

The feature of the evening was a lecture by Dr. W. E. Britton, state and station entomologist, Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station, New Haven, Conn., on "Insect Pests and Their Methods of Operation." The doctor was most cordially received and gave an interesting lecture, illustrated by lantern slides, showing a large number of insect pests destructive to plants and flowers, and their depredations. While most of these pests were familiar to those present, the doctor's comments upon them were highly interesting, and at the close he was awarded a hearty vote of thanks, all present rising when it was tendered.

Exhibits.

A vase of delphinium hybrids shown by the Springfield Floral Co., Springfield, N. J., was awarded a cultural certificate. Vases of Lilium elegans, in six distinct varieties, Lilium Hansonii, Lilium tenuifolium, Japanese iris seedlings, Calla Elliottiana and several varieties of peonies, shown by John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y., were awarded a vote of thanks. J. H. P.

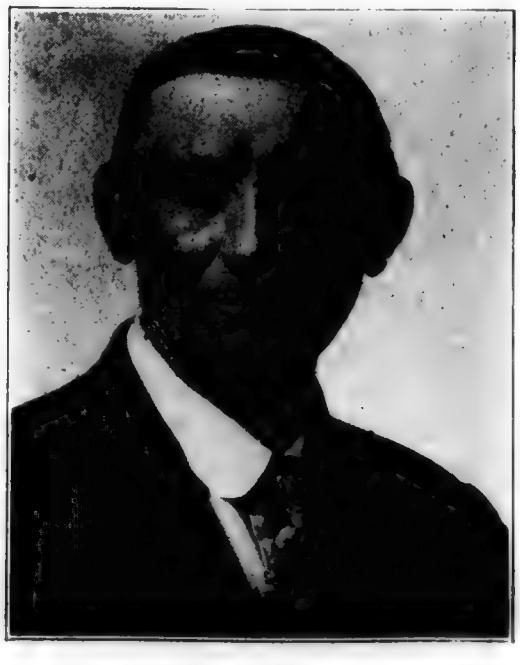
OBITUARY

Frank J. Ritzenthaler.

Frank J. Ritzenthaler died Sunday, June 5, at his home in Cleveland, O., as the result of tuberculosis of certain glands. Mr. Ritzenthaler was junior partner in the Knoble Bros. Co., of Cleveland, and a half brother of the head of the company, Herman P. Knoble.

Mr. Ritzenthaler served in Company G of the 331st Infantry during the war. In April of 1918 he entered the service and on June 3 of that year went overseas, where, at La Luze, he was made a sergeant.

He was a member of the American Legion, the Cleveland Florists' Club, the S. A. F., the Chamber of Industry, the Yacht Club of Cleveland, the Eagles and the Knights of Columbus.



The funeral services were held at St. Mary's church, Cleveland, June 8, where the floral offerings were more than 120 in number and the most beautiful seen in the church in a long time. Mr. Ritzenthaler is survived by his mother, two sisters, Bertha M. Hawkins and Ida M. Knoble, and three brothers, Herman P., Otto C. and Joseph L. Knoble.

Charles Frederick Roepke.

The death of Charles F. Roepke, president of the Roepke Floral Co., of Indianapolis, Ind., occurred June 4.

Mr. Roepke was born in Weidersheim, Germany, January 26, 1852, and came to America in 1871, locating near Cumberland, Ind., where in 1876 he married Miss Mary Koch. He moved to Indianapolis in 1887 and was street sprinkling contractor for twenty years. He later became a partner in the Roepke-Rieman Floral Co., and when this partnership was dissolved went into business with his son, William F. The company formed has been quite successful, with him as president.

The funeral services were held June 6 at the home, where many friends came and where numerous floral tributes were received. Surviving the deceased are the widow and two children, Mrs. Bertha Fischer and William F. Roepke, of Indianapolis.

Charles F. Roepke.

Mrs. Hannah Groves.

Stricken with acute indigestion, Mrs. Hannah Groves, who has been in business at Atchison, Kan., since 1865, died at her home in that city, June 2.

Mrs. Groves and her husband came from England in 1857, and in 1865 established a greenhouse at Atchison. At the time of Mr. Groves' death, in 1915, the Groves Floral Co. was organized and the business put actively in the hands of the daughters of the family.

Mrs. Groves is survived by eight children and one brother, Thomas W. Clinton, of Ireland, archdeacon of the Episcopal church.

Asa Lemon Myers.

June 7 Asa L. Myers, 76 years of age, senior member of the firm of Myers & Co., Bluffton, Ind., died suddenly of heart trouble, while transacting business in the downtown section of the city.

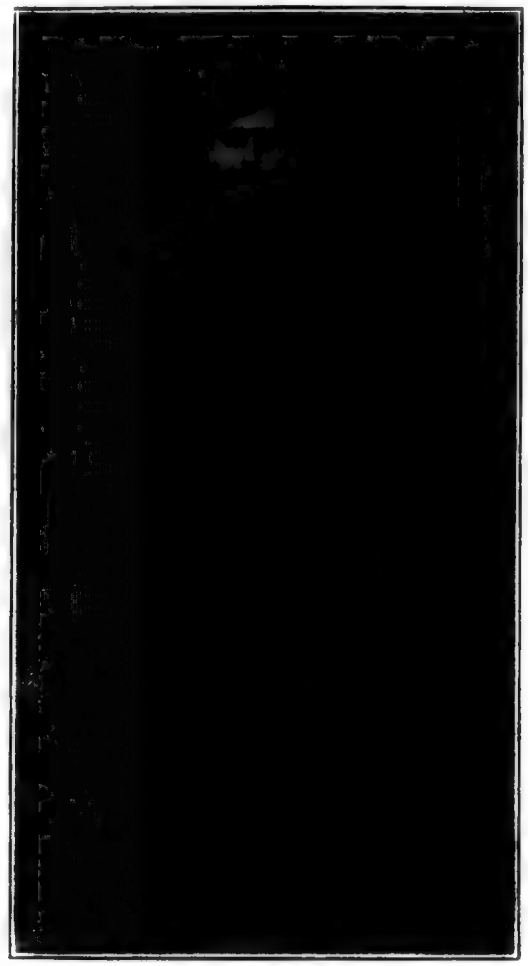
Mr. Myers was born in Guernsey county, Ohio, May 4, 1845, coming to Indiana with his parents in 1861, where the father engaged in the saw mill business. In 1866 Mr. Myers married Miss Analyza Luce and moved to Huntington county, where he engaged in the lumber business with his brother under the firm name of Myers Bros. But they were unfortunate in this venture, because fire destroyed their mills a few years later. In 1890 Mr. Myers went to Bluffton, where he started a greenhouse. In 1902 he took his son, Dillon, into partnership under the firm name of Myers & Son. This business has expanded yearly and faces a prosperous future.

Mr. Myers is survived by a widow and five children, Orion F., of Detroit, Mich.; Dillon, of Bluffton; Asa E., of McMinnville, Ore.; Mrs. G. Shopbell, of Wellington, Ore., and Mrs. Eleia Schroder, of Bluffton.

William Watson.

William Watson, who for about twenty-seven years was manager to L. R. Russell, of Richmond, Surrey, England, died May 26. He had been in poor health for some time, and at the Chelsea show suddenly collapsed and expired shortly afterwards without regaining consciousness. He was 60 years of age.

James Gosden.



James Gosden, who for more than thirty years was head propagator for James Veitch & Sons at their Coombe Wood Nursery, died from blood-poisoning contracted through cutting his thumb while trimming ivy, at Crawley, Sussex, England, recently. He was in his sixty-ninth year.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

The Rosendale Flower Shop, Schenectady, N. Y., has added a Dodge delivery car of special design. Glass panels run the entire length and the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," is conspicuously lettered. Seen on the street during the Memorial season, Proprietor Henry Eberhardt felt justly proud of the machine.

• • • •

The Mohawk Greenhouses, Schenectady, N. Y., made a big hit on Boston ferns all through the season. According to Manager Matthews, it is a most profitable plant to grow, never too large in size or number. At the next meeting of the Albany Florists' Club, President Henry Eberhardt proposes to bring grower and retailer in closer communion, showing how and where the profits are made and what is the best means for better mutual welfare. Manager Tom Tracy, of the Albany Cut Flower Exchange, opines this is the brightest idea in advanced coöperation.

Frank J. Ritzenthaler in the Army.

• • • •

E. V. B. Felthousen, Schenectady, N. Y., is planning for the usual quota of Boston ferns and chrysanthemums for fall sales. The demand for bedding stock wound up a satisfactory season.

• • • •

A tour among the plant growers of Albany and Schenectady counties found active preparations taking place for fall demand. Fred Goldring is strong on Boston ferns and bulbous stock. Henkes Bros. have many azaleas and primulas. Ericas, cyclamens and Otaheite oranges are in tiptop shape. The usual number of chrysanthemums are being planted. Some roses and carnations in the field, together with hydrangeas, need rain badly.

• • • •

Alexander Dallas, Inc., Waterbury, Conn., have enjoyed a good season, although not in such volume as last year. "We could hardly expect it," commented W. Dallas, "and taking into consideration general conditions, we are well pleased and are planning to increase for another year." Speaking of the chrysanthumum midge, the plan here is to dip the plants before setting out. This seems to make them immune.

• • • •

Saxe & Floto and Ryan & Powers, of Waterbury, Conn., are equally optimistic as to the future of the business.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

JUST two months away is the S. A. F. convention at Washington. Get ready to go.

No man ever failed in business by keeping his bills paid up, but many have met disaster through not doing so.

THERE seems to be no reason to believe otherwise than that the florists' business is due for another big boom when the tide of general business once more begins to rise.

THE better business enjoyed by this trade in comparison with other lines lately should not be allowed to make us careless. The coming summer months demand activity and earnest effort to maintain the good fortune florists have had. Go after business and get your money for it.

THIS week-end, June 18 and 19, the American Peony Society holds its annual meeting and show in Horticultural hall, Boston, and next week-end, June 25 and 26, the American Sweet Pea Society will be similarly engaged at the Museum of Natural History, in Central park, New York.

ONE of the peculiarities of the present business situation is that many articles of merchandise can be bought out of stock on hand at lower prices than for future manufacture and delivery. This is the case with coal and with fertilizer—spot quotations are below contract prices.

IT frequently has happened that our trade has had excellent business in a season during which general business was not active. This has been the case in the last year and is of special interest now that it is becoming apparent the bankers and the business leaders expect something like present conditions to prevail for another fifteen to eighteen months.

THE cost of membership in the Society of American Florists, the parent body of the trade's organizations, is, like that of a postage stamp, out of all proportion to the service bought. The annual fee of $5 should not be deemed the price of the organization's worth to each florist. Our famous slogan is worth more than that much a week to every one of us. If you are not a member, fill out the blank on page 20 and mail it to Secretary Young today.

THE supply of spring stock has proved inadequate, many growers of bedding plants having been sold out long before the trade's demands had been satisfied.

IN its two years of existence the American Dahlia Society has grown from a handful of members to an organization of more than 2,000. Secretary E. C. Vick has worked hard in its behalf and, for his pains, has still more work in caring for the business of the society, prospering under the able leadership of Richard Vincent, Jr.

THERE still are a few florists who do not subscribe for The Review, but they mostly haven't seen the paper and don't know what they are missing. So an effort is being made to gather the names and addresses of all florists to check with The Review's mailing list. A subscriber in New York state, responding to the request for the names of neighboring florists, sends the florists' page from his city directory; another sends the florists' page from his classified telephone directory. Won't you do the same?

PROMPT PAY.

Complaint frequently is heard of the so-called slow pay characteristics of florists and it is without question that there always will be those in this, as in other trades, who never will pay without considerable urging; but that our trade as a class is prompt pay The Review has plenty of evidence. Here is a straw which shows which way the wind blows:

To those advertisers who use this paper regularly a bill is sent at the end of each month. Accommodation accounts, these are called; monthly payment is expected. After the last issue in May over 1,700 such bills were rendered. Of the aggregate sum of these bills by June 11 a trifle over fifty-seven per cent had been received and sent to the bank.

Could anyone ask for greater promptness than that?

PAYING THE POSTAGE.

Once upon a time a new subscription was regarded by a publisher as additional income worth seeking. Now it is an additional loss. In the case of The Review, when a subscriber pays $2 for fifty-two copies, he does not even meet the cost of transporting the paper to him. After July 1, when Uncle Sam puts up the postage rates another notch, matters will be even worse. Then it will cost almost 10 cents to send some subscribers each of their copies of The Review, for which they pay less than 4 cents apiece.

For that portion of a publication devoted to reading matter the postage rate is 1½ cents a pound. For the portions devoted to advertising the following rates will apply after July 1:

First and second zones	2 cents per lb.
Third zone	3 cents per lb.
Fourth zone	5 cents per lb.
Fifth zone	6 cents per lb.
Sixth zone	7 cents per lb.
Seventh zone	9 cents per lb.
Eighth zone	10 cents per lb.

The preponderance of the circulation of The Review is in the fourth and fifth zones, with a fair share in the three higher zones. The average cost per copy will be, under the new rates, 4.86 cents. When the subscriber pays $2 for fifty-two issues, he pays 3.85 cents a copy, or 1 cent per copy less than the postage cost. This week's issue of The Review, down to summer weight, tips the scales at thirteen ounces. Some issues exceed seventeen ounces and the average for the year is close to one pound.

Yet The Review, so far from economizing on its postage bill, is adding to its circulation constantly. During the last twelve months 800 florists have been added to the subscription list. The $416 postage those extra subscribers cost—not to speak of the increased expense in paper, presswork, binding and mailing—was one item in what The Review pays to increase its value as the medium of this trade.

OUR SPENDING MONEY SHRINKS.

Everybody's spending money shrank by $1.99 during the last year, according to the statement by the Treasury. June 1, 1920, the per capita circulation in the country was $57.42, compared with $55.43 June 1, 1921. In the same period the total money in circulation dropped from $6,102,162,244 to $5,983,258,293, but even the latter sum seems enough so we florists might still expect business to be good.

The 1920 per capita figures were computed by the Treasury on a basis of a population of 106,275,000, while the 1921 figures were arrived at on the basis of a population of 107,947,000, as estimated by the Census Bureau. When we get to the point of selling only $1 worth of flowers per year to each person in the United States we shall have quite a business—at present it isn't much over 70 cents per person.

"IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE."

When The Review wants anything, it makes that want known through its own columns—and the want usually is immediately supplied. Having it in mind recently to study the methods used by the trade in acknowledging the receipt of orders and giving notice of the probable date of shipment, The Review printed a paragraph asking readers to send samples of such notices used or received. Within a week cards were received from:

Briggs Floral Co., Moorhead, Minn.
Butchart Floral Co., LaCygne, Kan.
Los Angeles Geranium Co., Sawtelle, Cal.
Memphis Plant Co., Memphis, Tenn.
Royston & Fenton, Evansville, Ind.
C. W. Harold, West Plains, Mo.
Frank M. Warner, Inglewood, Cal.
Wonsetler Greenhouses, Bryan, O.

The purpose of The Review was to obtain cards used for acknowledging the receipt of orders for plants and cuttings, and all those named above sent cards used for that purpose, but cards used for acknowledging receipt of telegraph delivery orders were received from the following retailers:

S. A. Anderson, Buffalo, N. Y.
Billings Floral Co., Billings, Mont.
Idle Hour Nurseries, Macon, Ga.

Perhaps the time is not far distant when the trade as a body will demand that a reply card be sent to acknowledge every order not shipped the day it is received.

The Market.

Although business for the month of May was the largest this market ever has known, so much can not be said for the first half of June. Sales have not been footing up a total equal to last year at this date. Interested persons seeking a reason for the change find it in various causes, but agree that the difference is not in the number of flowers sold, but in the price. It seems quite clear that about the same quantity of stock is being sold, but that average prices are considerably below those of the first half of June last year. Proverbially optimistic, wholesalers say the difference is the result of different weather conditions, the earlier arrival of summer, the earlier local peony cut, etc., but growers and retailers, prone to pessimism, fear the difference in prices is the first manifestation of the trade's participation in readjustment and is the result of general business conditions, which seem steadily to grow worse instead of better.

Not much can be said of the stock in market without repeating what has been printed in the two last reports. There continues to be more stock than the legitimate demand will consume. It continues to be apparent that the regular trade will take only about so much stock, no matter how low the price is made, and that the surplus must be moved, if at all, through channels other than stores handling flowers only. As the weather has been hot and the sun strong, many roses are wide open, and much sorting is necessary to get out the stock needed for the shipping orders. The discard is worth little and is the reason for the low average rose prices.

The peony is passing, earlier than usual. By the end of the present week it is thought the crop will have been moved except for two lots in storage, neither of which will be of such size as to affect the market seriously. But in place of the peony we now have the gladiolus to reckon with. The earlier season has brought this crop on a fortnight or more ahead of last year, while the great increase in gladiolus growing in America is reflected in the numerous sources and larger supply. There are all grades. Some of the indoor stock is excellent and brings 20 cents per spike in a dull market. The outdoor stock also is of fine quality and, as fields nearer home come in, arrives in better condition. There is the promise of an abundant supply for all summer.

Weddings have been numerous so far this month, with a good call for the usual flowers, valley, sweet peas, daisies and lilies. Good peas are scarce, due to the hot weather, which has rendered much of the receipts unfit for use in good work. Valley is equal to the demand and there are plenty of daisies and lilies, some of the latter coming from the east, cut in bud. Carnations are affected by the heat and are not in the favor they enjoy in winter.

Garden flowers have begun to arrive in considerable quantity, including Delphinium Belladonna, gaillardias, coreopsis, gypsophila and others. They sell well locally, but have little share in the shipping trade, which is the backbone of the market.

The arrival of new ferns in quantity has relieved the only shortage in the greens department.

Cash or C. O. D.

It is several years since the last attempt was made at concerted action in the matter of credits and collections for the cut flowers sold on this market, but there has been a steady increase in the conviction that the only money to be made off a customer who does not pay is when he buys from the other fellow. Consequently the wholesalers, particularly the commission men, as individuals, have been tightening credit lines steadily if rather slowly. Customers who do not pay with dependable regularity have been handled with increasing firmness until most of the local buyers who do not pay regularly have been placed on a cash basis and those out of town are shipped c. o. d. What can be done in this direction is shown by the statement that one of the houses showing total sales of $160,000 in May, on June 1 had only $140,000 on its books, including all past due accounts from April and preceding months.

Experience shows the wholesalers can do a retailer no greater service than to keep him from letting bills pile up—no retailer ever failed until he had been given too much credit.

Pageant of Progress.

The florists' Pageant of Progress committee, of which George Asmus is chairman, W. J. Smyth treasurer and Joseph Pollworth secretary, is bending energetic efforts to make the trade's display at the Municipal pier July 30 to August 14 one of the big features of the mayor's exposition.

It is planned to devote the central part of the section to a flower show, for which $5,000 in prizes is to be provided. The University of Illinois is expected to have an educational exhibit, where information concerning plant insects and diseases and the care of flowers will be given the public. The park boards, it is planned, will decorate the entrances to the pier and assist in adorning the florists' section itself.

The large seed houses of the city have agreed to take booths, and the June 14 a meeting was held at the pier of the F. T. D. florists of Chicago, when those who responded to the call formed a temporary organization of Chicago and suburban F. T. D. members. The officers to set the machinery in motion for a retailers' telegraph delivery service exhibit are: Chairman, George Asmus; treasurer, W. J. Smyth; secretary, Homer Lange. The plan is that the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association will appropriate $500 toward a display occupying two booths, the remainder of the expense, which will total $1,500 to $2,000, to be met temporarily by retailers subscribing $50 each. The proposition is a commercial one, for it is expected to take telegraph orders at the exhibit and from a percentage set aside on each order to realize enough money to repay, at least partly, the F. Mr. Schousboe Makes Lease.

It is announced that Peter Schousboe has taken over the north range of the Peter Reinberg greenhouses on Robey street and will conduct the place for his own account, growing roses, carnations, chrysanthemums and bedding plants. Mr. Schousboe was general foreman for Peter Reinberg for four and one-half years. The range is the one given to Mrs. Henry Zender in the will of Mr. Reinberg and the lease carries with it the good will of retail business and wholesale plant trade done there under Mr. Schousboe's direction. The bulk of the cut will be sold in the Reinberg wholesale store.

The Wrigley Florist.

The trade has been interested in the rumors concerning a flower store in the Wrigley building, Chicago's newest and most advertised office structure. It has now been decided that such a business will be opened by R. B. Cooke, occupying one of the small stores with entrance off the lobby and with a workroom at the rear. The lease has been arranged and a contract for fixtures signed with the A. L. Randall Co.

Mr. Cooke is not a florist; he will employ a manager. Mr. Cooke is secretary of the Cubs Baseball Club. He also will operate the cigar store in the Wrigley building, directly across the corridor from his flower store.

Poehlmann's Plan Removal.

Some time ago Poehlmann Bros. Co. decided that it would not renew its leases on Randolph street when they expire May 1, 1922, and that in the interval new and still larger quarters would be found in the district north rather than east of the corner of Wabash avenue and Randolph street.

Last week the entire 5-story building at 72 and 74 East Randolph street, on the second floor of which the Poehlmann cut flower store is located, was leased to the Chicago Feather & Cloak Co., the

Various Notes.

The ashes of the late Orland P. Bassett, founder of the firm of Bassett & Washburn, arrived at his former home at Hinsdale June 8. There was a simple burial service at Bornswood cemetery, in Hinsdale, on the afternoon of June 10, those present being the members of the family and the business associates of earlier days. Mr. Bassett died in Pasadena February 26, at the age of 86. The remains were cremated and brought to Chicago in a sealed copper case, which was deposited in a concrete base on the family lot at Bornswood, where it should endure to the end of time.

S. Y. Bloom has renewed for ten years his lease at 822 East Sixty-third street, in the heart of the Rialto of the south side. He will proceed at once to fix up the place, with a new tile floor and a complete outfit of new fixtures, to be built and installed by the A. L. Randall Co.

Mike Becker and John Menges, well known greenhouse glaziers, have joined the Master Mfg. Co., where they have charge of the contract glazing work.

Albert Hall formally opened his new store in the Sheridan-Plaza, on Sheridan road, June 11. He has a handsome store and facilities for a large business. In addition to the display refrigerator in the store he has a large storage box in the workroom in the basement, both boxes cooled by the hotel's refrigeration system.

Gladiolus bulbs are well cleaned up in Chicago. The larger dealers are sold out and still are receiving inquiries for stock they can not supply.

Allan Humason started June 13 on a trip through the northwest. He will be at Fargo, N. D., late in June for the Tri-State Florists' convention.

A. J. Zech spent the week end, June 11 to 14, on a fishing trip to Lake Delavan, in Wisconsin.

Edward Galavan returned June 13, after spending three weeks in New York for the A. L. Randall Co.

One of the best orders of the commencement season was received by John Mangel, for seventy-five corsages June 13 for festivities at the Northwestern Military Academy.

A shipment of boxwoods from Roy F. Wilcox & Co., Montebello, Cal., was received by A. Lange last week. They arrived in splendid condition.

A wedding procession of tiny dolls fittingly attired, by modiste, haberdasher and florist, fills one window of the store of Lewis & Rocca, at 55 East Jackson boulevard. Mr. Rocca believes the many passers who stop to examine the display will buy flowers, either bridal or otherwise.

Paul Weiss recently added a Ford sedan to his garage. He finds the small closed car extremely useful in running from one to another of his greenhouse interests in all kinds of weather. The greenhouse establishments under his management will use about 15,000 tons of coal next season, but Mr. Weiss has not yet contracted for it. Of course he keeps his sheds full at all times and thus far the spot market has been below any contract price that is offered for the season's supply.

florists' business, is secretary of the company operating the Raklios chain of restaurants, is busier than ever. The Raklios concern already operates twenty-four restaurants and last week it was announced a lease had been made at 172-74 West Jackson boulevard, close to the Raske flower shop, for a cafeteria, the fixtures for which are to cost $40,000. The rent is $15,000 a year.

Hans Jepsen, at Maywood, has had a busy spring. He says he received a demonstration of the prevailing scarcity of mum cuttings recently when he published a half-page announcement of his ability to supply certain varieties. Orders came from Oregon, Rhode Island and practically every state between—but what impressed Mr. Jepsen most was that every order mentioned The Review.

To buy a Chicago-made boiler for a Vancouver greenhouse nowadays costs the far-western Canadian a good sum besides the boiler's price for his preference. June 13 a No. 14, one of the largest sizes, was shipped to a Vancouver grower by Kroeschell Bros. Co. The freight cost $600 and the customs duty $900.

When Adolph Poehlmann was on a visit to Edward Towill's place near Philadelphia a while ago he saw a seedling rose which impressed him as excellent for corsage work and bought all the stock the raiser would let go. Now that the rose is beginning to bloom at Morton Grove, everyone connected with Poehlmann Bros. Co. believes it will displace Mrs. Aaron Ward. It is a deep copper yellow, better than Ward in every characteristic so far developed. John Poehlmann has given it the provisional name of Phantom.

On another page of this issue will be found the rates and routes of travel to and from the S. A. F. convention at Washington, as recommended by the transportation committee of the Chicago Florists' Club.

M. C. Wright spent a few days in St. Louis last week. The Lord & Burham Co. is installing boilers in several greenhouses in the vicinity of that city.

The settling of the building recently started a crack in the big front window of Joseph Foerster Co. Then a high wind split the pane from top to bottom. For several days the window has been braced and roped off, as the building when Mr. Hill told him that Red Columbia had given fifty-two flowers per plant in the last season. A few plants of it are being tried out at the Premier Rose Gardens and by Poehlmann Bros. Co.

It is no wonder that the Greenhouse Coal Co. should feature the florists' slogan in its circular matter to the trade, for one officer of the company is a florist himself. Paul E. Weiss has been able to observe amply the pulling powers of our slogan.

Visitors.

Hans Rosacker and wife, of Minneapolis, spent a day in Chicago last week on their way to Germany to visit the place of their birth. They were married twenty-eight years ago and left next day for America. This is their first return visit. They have four sons, three of whom are in charge of the business. One son runs the growing, another the selling, while the third looks after the office, which seems an ideal arrangement.

Among last week's visitors was L. F. Kleitz, secretary and manager of the Lockyear Floral Co., Evansville, Ind. He was on a week's business trip, after which he planned to retire to some lake resort for a rest after a busy season. His concern has plans for expansion.

One of last week's visitors was S. A. Kost, the inventive genius of the W. F. Kasting Co., Buffalo. Mr. Kost has invented a soil grinder, a greenhouse glazing gun and numerous other labor-saving contrivances. In a Dodge touring car he has made a business trip from Buffalo to Louisville, St. Louis, St. Paul and Minneapolis and is on his way home.

Theodore Wirth and Mrs. Wirth were recent visitors, returning to their home at Minneapolis after a trip east. They were guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Asmus and Mr. and Mrs. Guy French at a little dinner at Lincoln Tavern, at Morton Grove, the evening of their departure.

Charles Smith, of the Eastern Wreath Mfg. Co., Providence, R. I., has been here this week. He sells only through jobbers, who handled 500,000 of his wreaths last season, and he plans to sell a million frames in the next year.

Frank Goacher, of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, spent June 9 in this market.

The Market.

Retailers have had a good week, thanks to weddings, funerals, graduations and class days, and flowers at wholesale have cleaned up fairly well. The only trouble is that too many flowers are arriving for the market's needs and, as a consequence, a considerable quantity has to be sold at extremely low prices, if cleared at all. The weather is gradually becoming more summerlike, but temperatures, except on two occasions this year, have stayed down in the 80's.

Roses of good quality have been in active demand and the tone is far better than a week ago. A prominent retailer remarked that roses were costing him now as much as last December. Prices vary, the higher figures being reached by American Beauty as well as some fancy Hadley, Premier and Columbia. Carnations are of miserable quality, and the grower getting even a low price seems well satisfied. There are still quantities of sweet peas, but mostly quite inferior; the same holds good of marguerites.

Peonies are at their flood tide. Pinks are in best demand. Gladioli are more

FRAT-M'S

Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

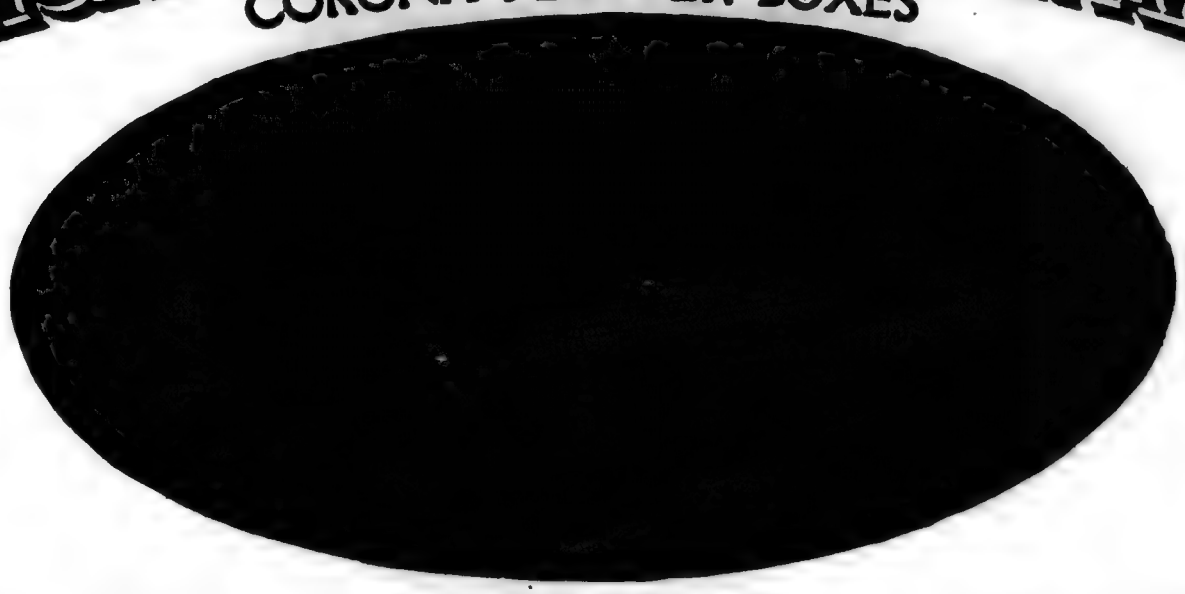
plentiful, such sorts as Mrs. Watt, Augusta, Halley and Mrs. F. King being the leaders. Callas are about over and lilies are not in much demand. Some nice Lilium regale is coming in. Such hardy flowers as delphiniums, aquilegias and pyrethrums are seen at some stands and are popular at the stores.



For valley there has been a fair call the last week. Cattleyas are now getting less plentiful, but some C. Mossiæ are still seen, as well as gigas and Gaskelliana. Asparagus has been in somewhat better demand, and some smilax has been sold for weddings.

Various Notes.

Dr. W. Van Fleet and wife, of Washington, have been spending a few days in Boston and vicinity and, piloted by that enthusiastic rosarian, Thomas N. Cook, of Watertown, some of the leading private estates, commercial growers of hardy roses and the Arnold Arboretum were visited. Dr. Van Fleet was much struck with the grand masses of Lilium candidum, six feet high in one garden, and remarked that it could not be grown to such perfection in Washington and, so far, there had been no success in growing it from seed. More's the pity, as this is the most beautiful and majestic of all our hardy lilies and it is immaculately pure.

Advanced schedules for the great fern show to be held in Horticultural hall in September have been issued. There are sixty-four classes in all and, in addition to the cash premiums, twenty-six large and twenty-eight small medals are offered. There have already been promises of some large exhibits from prominent commercial growers.

George W. Hamer, the genial and popular assistant manager of the Boston Flower Exchange, has the sympathy of many friends in the death of his mother from a stroke, at her home in Everett, June 10, in her eighty-third year. Funeral services were held June 13, and there were many beautiful floral tributes, including one from the members of the Flower Exchange.

An arrangement of the popular Lilium regale and hardy larkspur made a pleasing effect, June 11, in the windows of T. F. Galvin, Inc., on Park street.

Henry Penn says that June business this season has been extremely good; wedding orders of moderate volume have been numerous and funeral orders have also been plentiful. This year both peonies and hardy roses are available in time for weddings and class celebrations.

Welch Bros. Co. is handling a fine lot of Lilium regale received from a prominent Providence grower. This lily is becoming quite popular locally. The outdoor crop is not available until about the middle of July, as a rule, but will be a little earlier this season.

While the date is about a week late for many varieties, a good show of peonies is looked for June 18 and 19, when the American Peony Society and the Massachusetts Horticultural Society hold their combined shows. B. H. Farr, of Wyomissing, Pa., will lecture on peonies each afternoon of the show.

LINDLEY FLORIST BOX CO., QUALITY BOX MAKERS Marion, Ind.

The Boston Florists' Association is endeavoring to interest its members in an outing to a prominent hostelry at Nahant, June 21, and, if sufficient promises are received, parties will make the trip in autos. Some athletic events will be held if sufficient interest develops.

The American Medical Association closed its annual convention in Boston last week. June 9, 25,000 members and ladies enjoyed an outing which lasted over six hours. They visited the Arnold Arboretum and the estates of E. D. Brandegee, Lars Anderson and C. S. Sargent, in Brookline.

A. S. Caplan is combining song birds with plants and flowers in his store and finds that customers for one will frequently buy the other.

By the will of Miss Cornelia Warren, of Waltham, who died a few days ago, her head gardener, Henry Stewart, who for some years has been a prominent exhibitor at the Boston shows, was left the house in which he resides and a substantial sum of money, and provision is made for a college education for his children. It is pleasing to see faithful services thus rewarded.

Everything points to a fine attendance June 21, at the ladies' night of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston. A splendid entertainment has been prepared by the committee, including a noted male quartette, a lady violinist, several soloists and a reader. Everything will be equal to last year's high standard. Refreshments and dancing will follow the entertainment.

Last year Waltham fair was started, and the floral committee, E. A. Peirce, Frank Edgar and Henry Stewart, got up a schedule which produced a really grand show of flowers, in which retailers took a prominent part. This year the same committee has prepared an even finer premium list, which will guarantee a superb show.

Janiten & Kunan, of Arlington, have about 10,000 cyclamens, some in 6-inch pots, all in splendid condition. Several houses are being planted with chrysanthemums and ferns. At their farm, about 7,000 roses are planted out, also quantities of hydrangeas, berried solanums, etc. W. N. C.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Business is keeping up unusually well, and the wholesalers are cleaning up daily. In fact, there have been days this month when orders were turned down, because the desired stock was not available. In the retail stores, on many occasions, the florists have been hard put to it to find flowers enough to make up baskets and the heavy run of funeral designs that have been ordered.

The month of June this year will prove one of the heaviest non-holiday months in the history of the business. There has been some unusually desirable wedding business; funeral business has been heavy, and the weather has been cool enough to foster the sale of cut flowers for general purposes. The call for delphinium has been so heavy that it far exceeds the supply. Its popularity is increasing and it is always called for in the making of graduation bouquets, baskets and wedding decorations. It is a flower that is suitable for all purposes.

That Shasta daisies this year are better than in any previous year is the unanimous declaration. They are coming in large and in quantities, and find ready sale. Phlox, too, is all used as it comes into the wholesale houses. However, it does not last and is not, therefore, so popular.

Lily of the valley is in good demand and sells readily. Some of the wholesalers report they always sell out of this flower and do not get enough to fill the demand. Orchids are scarce. Some snapdragon is to be had, but it is small and not desirable. A good many Dorothy Perkins sprays from outdoors are arriving. These are exceptionally nice for making up baskets and table decorations.

Considering the lateness of the season, the quality of carnations now offered is good and they are bringing a good price. The outdoor sweet peas now offered are as good as the indoor stock.

Gladioli are wonderful. They are selling at a slight reduction from the prices that prevailed for the first of the season's offerings. In the standard varieties, Mrs. Francis King and Niagara are having a heavy run. In the newer varieties, War and Peace are selling well.

There has been a good demand for Sweetheart and Ward roses for use in making corsage bouquets, incident to the large number of graduation exer-

Various Notes.

Thomas Outerbridge, of Sunnylands, Bermuda, is a visitor in Washington. He looked over the lily operations at the Arlington Farms experiment station and took in a baseball game with A. E. Gude, of Gude Bros. He said both the lily experiments and the baseball were great. He is an extensive grower of lilies in Bermuda.

Business men are preparing to protest against the enactment by Congress of a Blue Sunday law, as proposed in the Senate by Senator Myers, of Montana, and in the House by Congressman Zihlman, of Maryland. The bill has been referred by the chairman of the Senate committee on the District of Columbia to the district commissioners for report. Many of the local florists keep open half a day on Sundays. Under the proposed law this would not be permissible and, as the bill is drawn, the florists could not work in their greenhouses. There is so much opposition to such a law that it is doubtful if anything will be done with the Myers-Zihlman measure.

The Senate has passed a bill prohibiting the giving or passing of worthless checks in the District of Columbia. The bill, which has gone to the House for consideration, provides fines and imprisonment for the giving of such checks with intent to defraud, when the maker thereof declines on demand to make good. The florists have been "worked" to an alarming extent by the floaters of worthless paper, and the local club some time ago went on record as favoring the proposed law.

The Market.

The week ending June 11 resembled its predecessor. There was a good demand that met a rather limited supply. Conditions were excellent for so late in the season. Close observers noticed three changes—carnations are getting poorer, sweet peas are improving with the arrival of more outdoor-grown blooms, and gladioli are coming to the fore.

The arrival of outdoor gladioli is earlier than usual by three weeks, more or less. Pink Beauty is the only outdoor variety noted so far. It is good. More greenhouse-grown gladioli are coming in. They are extremely useful decorative material. The rambler sprays are highly prized, though they were less dependable in the sudden heat that closed the week.

Penn State.

About four months ago, or to be exact, February 21, a letter was sent from the Pennsylvania State College to the Philadelphia Florists' Club, asking for a hearing, with the idea of securing a better understanding between the center of horticultural learning in this state and the center of horticultural commerce. As often happens in such cases, great events move slowly. So it was not until the June meeting of the Florists' Club, held in the City Club June 7, that the chosen representative of the state college appeared to keep the appointment. He spoke with marked ability to a thoroughly representative audience of the club membership.

The address commenced with a description of the horticultural students, necessarily a limited body of men; lack of means, lack of time and lack of ability all contribute to reduce the number. The student was described as a worker, almost invariably a good mixer, an important qualification in business, and as one who might be trusted. It was distinctly disclaimed that he had practical experience. He was capable of unraveling tangles, through his familiarity with books, and he was more accustomed to thinking and, therefore, more valuable than the man without college training.

The speaker charged that the attitude of florists toward the student was unfavorable. He said that this was unfair, that the student ought to have a chance and that he was likely to be worthy of confidence. The speaker said that, as a rule, the student wished to stay a short time at each place and, after going to two or three places, to gather practical experience, he was apt to return home to help his people, or to go into business for himself. Continuing, the speaker asked that the florists encourage college graduates by giving them employment, and that they send their sons and employees to the state college, either for the full course for four years, or for the short course, for six to eight weeks. He said that the state college was a direct benefit to floriculture through soil analysis, through insect remedies and through determining the relative values of fertilizers. Much more might be done with better equipment. Here came the surprise of the evening: Would the Florists' Club coöperate with the state college? Not that kind of coöperation that merely meant good will, but the active, positive sort? Would the Florists' Club and each one of its members bring every influence within their power to bear in order to secure for Pennsylvania State College a modern range of greenhouses, to replace the small, old-fashioned houses now there?

Plans were produced of such an elaborate character as to be positively startling. The greenhouses on these plans can be best described as large and thoroughly modern. They would certainly not be inexpensive. The club was confronted by a serious question. It stands for progress in floriculture, but that progress must be thoroughly practical; would the state college be able to secure results in any way proportionate to such an outlay? The speaker was sure that it would. He spoke of a practical man to run the plant and of a retail store that would train young men for positions of responsibility in the city shops.

The club put forward its ablest speaker. It was the general opinion that he handled the situation admirably. He said that the club heartily approved of the advancement of horticulture at the state college. He said that the short course for six to eight weeks would benefit every florist, but he did not approve of the club recommending the proposed large outlay. He thought such expense unnecessary.

The representative of the college was visibly disappointed, but he was a good sport and entered with spirit into the quiz that followed, showing by his answers that he was thoroughly posted on floricultural matters all over the country. He laid stress on his desire to prove to the practical experts that the same soil could be used successfully for growing good crops over and over again, through sterilization, which destroys the harmful bacteria and, he assured his hearers, cannot destroy the good little bacteria.

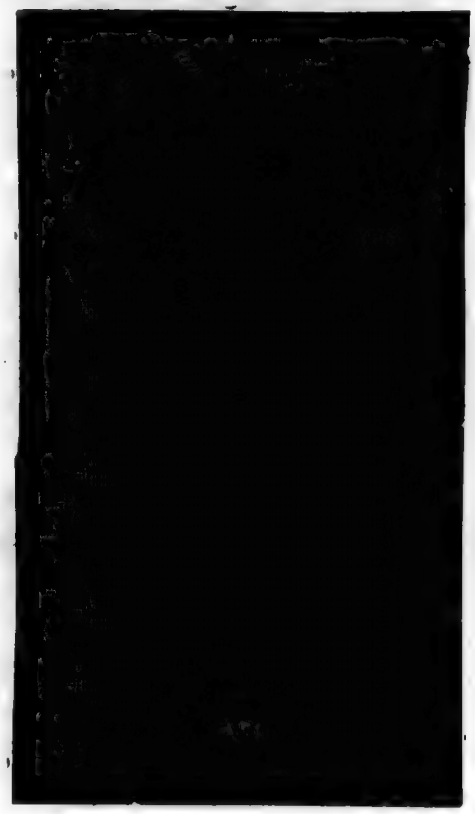
It was, perhaps, unfortunate that the club membership is devoid of college men. Composed as it is of practical men, self-made, many of them self-taught, their decision was just and right. They felt that with 150 students of horticulture at the state college, nearly five-sixths of whom are there for the avowed purpose of studying fruit growing, it was hardly fair to expect much from the floriculturally inclined body, for the present at least. They felt that the professors were an earnest, capable body of men, but that their work is in its infancy and that the tools now at their command are ample for the present. With all this, they felt a strong yearning for the knowledge which they in their youth had been denied.



Was their decision wise?

The Dinner at the League.

The hastily arranged and entirely informal dinner given by the president of the Florists' Club, Alfred M. Campbell, to the speakers of the evening, Professor E. I. Wilde and Robert Craig, before the June meeting, was a delightful affair. It was held at the Union League Club and the score of guests invited to meet the speakers were the workers of the club. Those present included John R. Andre, Eugene Bernheimer, Harry S. Betz, Alfred M. Campbell, George Craig, Robert Craig, Edwin J. Fancourt, Bruce Griffin, William K. Harris, Edmund A. Harvey, Robert Kift, E. P. Klinger, F. J. Mitchell, Jr., Arthur A. Niessen, Hugo N. Niessen, Leo Niessen, John W. Prince, Edward Reid and E. I. Wilde.

Contrary Minded—No.

The question of the club's endorsement of an expenditure of approximately $150,000 for experimental purposes and for training horticultural students at the Pennsylvania State College is so broad as to merit careful thought. Then, too, the plan came unheralded. No one knew it was to come before the meeting for action. It was laid before some of the leading men in the floral world. A good number of them thought that the club should favor it. P. F. Richter, manager of Henry F. Michell Co., said that he would have favored asking an appropriation for such an equipment. Leo Niessen said that, had he been able to stay for the meeting, he would have urged that the state of Pennsylvania ought to have a first-class experimental greenhouse establishment.

Fly-O-San.

This has been an unusually bad season for rose bugs. Raymond Brunswick, treasurer of the M. Rice Co., tried the usual formula of hand-picking the bugs on his rose bushes at home. Mrs. Brunswick picked the bugs in the morning, and he picked the bugs in the evening. The next morning there were just as many bugs on the rose bushes as there had been before the picking commenced. In desperation he tried Fly-O-San, so effective for killing flies and mosquitoes in the house. It killed the rose bugs, but he is not yet sure whether or not the rose bushes suffered. Mr. Brunswick says that the hollyhocks will not stand Fly-O-San.

The Market.

So far June has been an active month. School commencements have made a good part of the early work. Funeral orders have been numerous and the general run of business has been above the average for the month. Many weddings are scheduled, some of them elaborate in decorations. Stock has been benefited by the rain that fell nearly every day through the week. The ground was quite dry and outdoor stock was beginning to look discouraging. The showers have helped a great deal. The cool week before helped roses materially. Those that have been cut lately are much better than the ones handled around Memorial day. Not a great variety is offered in the market. Roses, carnations, gladioli and a few peonies complete the list. Individual growers have the usual seasonable flowers, such as larkspur, cornflowers, daisies, gaillardias, delphiniums, coreopsis and buddleias, all of which are used as cut from day to day. Easter lilies hold out well and are fine for shipping. Prices are fair for the season; roses, $4 to $12 per hundred; carnations, $2.50 and $3 per hundred; peonies, $4 and $5 per hundred, and gladioli, $10 and $12.

This will be the largest convention ever held in the city and one of the largest ever held in the country.

Among many other things last week, the Apollo Flower Shop made 225 old-fashioned bouquets of Russell roses and gypsophila, in paper holders, for the graduating class of Central high school; twenty-five shower bouquets of Ophelia roses and sweet peas for St. Vincent's academy, and twenty bouquets of Butterfly roses and gypsophila for the Cathedral school.

lately became store manager for Mr. Neff. The Muehlebach Shop has had a heavy run of work recently. Last week there were three weddings in one day, one being in Liberty, Mo., and from one to three country club decorations daily. Thirty-five bouquets were made for the closing of the Barstow school and the same number for the Sunset Hill school.

The Pinehurst Floral Co. is cutting a fine crop of roses. About 5,000 are sent to Kansas City every day and 1,000 or 2,000 are sold at the greenhouses.

Among the week's visitors were L. H. Archias, Sedalia, Mo.; R. B. Kreigh and W. A. Bolinger, of the Rosery, Topeka, Kan.; P. A. Manson, Pleasant Hill, Mo.; Leonard Coon, Lexington, Mo., and I. Wittrup, Marshall, Mo.

Edward T. Dicks, of Leavenworth, Kan., died June 3. He was a brother of Miss Catherine Dicks, a florist in Leavenworth.

The Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co. has opened a department for the manufacture of wire designs. This company is also putting in a big stock of corrugated and folding boxes.

A special meeting of the Kansas City Florists' Club was held at the store of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., June 7, to discuss the coming visit of J. F. Ammann and Hilmer V. Swenson. A committee, consisting of T. J. Noll, president of the club; W. J. Barnes, William L. Rock and C. A. Chandler, was appointed to arrange for the reception of the visitors and a special meeting of the club June 27. The Missouri State Florists' Association and the Kansas State Florists' Association will be invited to attend the meeting. The former body will hold its annual convention in Kansas City June 27 and the members will thus be here for the evening meeting.

L. H. Archias, of Sedalia, Mo., was in the city June 8 to purchase a new Willys-Knight automobile. J. E. K.

MONTEBELLO GARDENS,
Hamilton, Ill.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Riverside, Cal.—Greta S. Shaw, for some time a florist here, is now in business under the name of Shaw & Martin.

Glendale, Cal.—A. J. McCarty has opened a place at 415 West Broadway, where he will carry cut flowers and everything for the garden.

Pendleton, Ore.—Power Bros., of Freewater, have announced that they will soon open a florist's shop at Court and Cottonwood streets. Power Bros. now have a large greenhouse at Freewater.

Los Angeles, Cal.—The Francis Floral Co., the owners of which are F. Francis, A. L. Francis and C. E. Francis, are doing a prosperous business with two stores. At 2603 North Broadway they have a completely equipped florists' establishment. At 3676 South Vermont avenue they conduct another well arranged store under the name of the Blue Bird Flower Shop. The stores are near enough together to be easily operated and far enough apart so that they do not compete.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Possibly the quietest week in the whole year so far was last week. Shippers have reported cancellation of some orders and cutting down of others, and, with the exception of funeral work, the retailers have been little better off. The funeral of a prominent oil man made quite a flutter, and the undertakers have been busy outside of that. Still, with it all, stock has piled up on the wholesalers' hands, and the growers have had hard work in moving the cheaper grades. Roses are plentiful, but of such good quality that the retailers buy as heavily as they can for show purposes, relying on funeral work to clean them up.

Valley is about even with the demand and is of fine quality. The same applies to orchids. Gladioli are extra good this year and the demand about keeps even with the supply. Baby gladioli are overplentiful, although some of the later types are most attractive. Shasta and yellow daisies are overabundant, with practically no demand. The earlier dahlias make a fine show, but are not good enough for shipping. Carnations are again in oversupply, but the quality is excellent.

Greens of all kinds are plentiful, but the quality of most of the plumosus on the market leaves much to be desired. Hydrangeas, ferns and palms, with a few crotons and dracænas, are the principal plant offerings.

Various Notes.

O. C. Saake says that business has been particularly good with him and that he looks forward to its keeping up. The store is always attractive and good stock is shown.

For the graduation exercises at the Los Angeles high school, Albert Goldenson secured the order for nearly 200 bouquets.

Everyone seems busy at the store of S. Murata & Co., and an extra fine stock is shown. Seasonable graduation baskets are being shipped in large quantities.

H. Reeve Darling has been under the weather for a few days, but is back at the store again. May was an exceptionally good month with him; better, comparatively speaking, than any month this year. Mr. Darling keeps careful tab on his business and what he says may be relied on.

During last week 2,500 long-stemmed roses were handled at Lichtenberg's, besides a large amount of other stock. This shows that there was something doing all the time. E. Vogel has joined the staff of this store.

There is always something new and striking at the store of Howard & Smith, and this week the prize must be awarded to some gladioli, which are remarkable for their size and wonderful coloring. Although the individual blooms are immense, they are set close together on the spikes, unlike some of the giant types to which we have been accustomed. Besides these giant forms, there are also some lovely hybrids of primulinus. The coloring of these is delightful, but they retain the hooded sepal and do not come up to the giants for size. A fine lot of Lilium myriophyllum (regale) is also an attraction. These and many others are in full beauty at the Rivera seed grounds.

Shipping business has not suffered the slump expected after Memorial day at the store of Walter Armacost & Co., showing that there is always a demand for good work and service.

A surprise was in store on the occasion of a visit to the store of the Athletic Club Florist one day last week. No less than thirty large pieces were on the floor and ready for delivery to one funeral. When it is mentioned that some of these were from seven to nine feet in height and of the finest quality, it will be plain that this was a big day. When this is taken in addition to the regular business of the store, it is apparent that a large and hard-working staff had to do its utmost. Everything went without a hitch and on time. P. Wilson has recently joined the staff of this store.

The Redondo Floral Co. reports a good week's business. Albert Knopf was away trying out his new Hupmobile, and David Goldman was busy tightening up the brakes on his Ford.

Harold Amling puts in a great deal of his time at his place at Sawtelle. A. Kazran is preparing for his visit to Chicago, but in the meantime he keeps busy shipping colonial bouquets.

Dan MacRorie, of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., San Francisco, was in Los Angeles a few days last week, having driven down from the northern city.

George W. Smith has a nice showing of florists' plants at his nursery near Sherman. Some fine hybrids of Gladiolus primulinus are attractive. Mr. Smith has purchased a new Nash automobile.

J. M. Bridgeford, who is here in the interests of the seed firm of Watkins & Simpson, London, England, in company with John C. Bodger, Walter Bodger and Fred H. Howard, took a trip from Los Angeles to the seed farms of the W. Atlee Burpee Co., at Lompoc, visiting also the place of the L. D. Waller Seed Co. When commenting on the trip, Mr. Howard was enthusiastic over the new early-flowering Spencer sweet peas at the Burpee ranch.

The Market.

Warmer weather, accompanied by the usual increased amount of stock and slackened demand, has resulted in an overstocked market and in weakened values. Were it not for the city school graduations relieving the situation a little, the supply would have been burdensome last week. June weddings have helped out also, but so far this season there have been few elaborate weddings from the florists' standpoint. They have, however, been taking all the orchids available and causing a close clean-up of gardenias, lilies of the valley and white roses.

Gladioli are the dominant feature of the market. The warm weather has brought them all into bloom at once, it seems, and considerable difficulty is experienced in moving the supply, despite the excellent quality of the blooms and

Mr. Cut Flower Grower! Plant Fraser's Strain, they are first in size and otherwise.

CALENDULA King of Kings (Fraser's Production)

We believe this strain of Calendula has a great future before it. A Golden progeny of the famous Double Orange King. Color: Dazzling orange. The flowers are larger and the blue-black disk smaller, with broad overlaid petals. Habit: 2 feet, with fine erect heads and stiff stems, and for these reasons will be in great demand for the flower market. Trade pkt., $1.00; Ounce, $2.50.

NEW MYOSOTIS President Harding Blue: (Fraser's Introduction) Winter-flowering.

This new Winter-flowering Myosotis (Forget-me-not) is the result of a carefully thought-out cross, said by some experts to surpass any other strain yet offered. Color: Harding Blue. Habit: Bold and branching, forming open bushes from 18 to 20 inches high and of equal diameter, extra vigorous sprays of bloom last long as cut flowers. Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 Trade pkts., $2.00.

COSMOS Extra Early Single Dahlia-Flowered (Fraser's Selection)

A very fine strain, the result of many years' careful selection. Its points for earliness, size, color and productiveness are good all round. Height: 4 feet, with flowers of splendid substance, resembling giant single Dahlia flowers and stiff stems, unusual in the older varieties. The most profitable cutting cosmos in cultivation. We are offering 2 separate colors: Dahlia White, Dahlia Pink, Dahlia Mixed. Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 Trade pkts., $2.00.

R. G. FRASER & SON, Wholesale Growers, "Busch Gardens," PASADENA, CALIF.

the low prices. For several years the cut of gladioli has been increasing in this market, which is explained by the fact that the eastern demand for California bulbs is growing all the time, and many of the growers, primarily in the bulb business, are also cutting the flowers for sale locally. Many varieties are offered, prominent among which may be mentioned Pendleton, Halley, Byron E. Smith and Mary Pickford.

Roses are plentiful, with the exception of white ones. More of the latter could be used during the wedding season. The supply of white is largely confined to Kaiserin, which shows good quality. Other roses, including Russell, Hadley, Ulrich Brunner, Ophelia and Columbia, are also good for the season, but the general oversupply of stock makes them more or less a drug on the market.

The outlook for fine crops of chrysanthemums and asters is considered bright at this time. An increased acreage of both has been planted, and growing conditions leave nothing to be desired. The first asters are expected early in July and chrysanthemums will not be far behind. It will be somewhat later, however, even under most favorable conditions, before the blooms will be hard enough for long distance shipping.

Advertising Meeting.

J. F. Ammann and Hilmer V. Swenson arrived in San Francisco June 6, in the course of their tour of the country, for the purpose of lending encouragement and assistance to the florists' trade in organizing advertising campaigns. They were given a fine welcome here. A committee of eighteen or twenty florists met them at luncheon the first day, at which time plans were formulated for a general meeting to be held Tuesday evening, June 7. About forty-five were present at the meeting.

With the assistance of lantern slides, showing specimen advertisements and other publicity matter used in the east, Messrs. Ammann and Swenson outlined the percentage plan now effective in Chicago and other cities. It was enthusiastically received, and a resolution for its adoption here was carried unanimously. A committee of nine, three from each branch of the industry, was selected to carry out organization plans. The committee appointed was as follows: Growers, H. Plath, E. James and V. Ferrari; wholesalers, J. A. Axell, E. W. McLellan and Charles C. Navlet; retailers, A. J. Rossi, C. W. Brown and P. V. Matraia. Wednesday, June 8, the visitors were guests of the local trade at a banquet at the Cliff House.

Messrs. Ammann and Swenson have stopped in Spokane, Seattle, Tacoma and Portland, where an organization was affected at each place. With San Francisco signed up now, and confidence that Los Angeles, their next stop, would fall into line, Mr. Swenson, upon leaving here, expressed great satisfaction over the prospect of having the Pacific coast organized 100 per cent, which would place it ahead of any other section of the country. Mr. Ammann was met in San Francisco by Mrs. Ammann. They proceeded south ahead of Mr. Swenson, but both had their travels timed so that they would be in Los Angeles for a meeting Monday night, June 13.

Various Notes.

San Francisco will soon have another retail florist's establishment open for business. The place in question is situated at 190 Geary street, just off Stockton, and will be known as the Paris Floral Co. The proprietor is J. Lavazollo, formerly with Avansino Bros., in the next block. His store is not large, but is nicely fitted up and conveniently located at a prominent street car transfer point in the downtown shopping district, where conditions seem favorable for working up a nice business.

J. A. Axell is placing on the market a line of fern stands, boxes, baskets, etc., for sale to furniture houses, as well as the florists' trade, but particularly the latter, as he sees no reason why florists, when selling a fern or plant, should not also sell a stand along with it, instead of the patron being obliged to go to a furniture store. These will be manufactured here in a wide assortment of styles and finishes, including antique ivory, frosted brown and different shades of green and gold. Mr. Axell made his first shipment of Statice latifolia to the east last week. The limited amount sent east last year proved popular for taking the place of greens when they are scarce. This is dried and, when florists get ready to use it, they dip it in hot water and it is said to fluff up, just as it does when first cut.

The United Flower & Supply Co. has contracted with a large grower for three kinds of strawflowers to be produced on an extensive scale for the next seven years. M. M.

The Market.

Business for the Seattle florists has been only normally active of late, but stock deliveries have been such that this has been the cause. Business for Memorial day failed to reach a total which would establish the day as one of the leading floral holidays, but it was spread over a three-day period and the sales for the entire period were over the average for the same three days of previous years. New stock items include home-grown lupines, columbines, cornflowers, bachelor's buttons and American Beauty roses. Good results were secured from all of these items.

The American Beauty roses were excellent as to both color and stem, although buyers show a preference for Ulrich Brunner in this market. This can be partly traced to the lower prices of the latter variety. Of the other items, the dark shades of columbine have been good sellers, especially since the purple shades of snapdragon have been off the market. The rich-hued oriental poppies are in increased supply, but to date the demand has kept pace with this. Peonies are also increasing in supply, and calendulas are in oversupply, due to the amount being offered by amateur growers, who have only a few weeks in the year when they make regular deliveries of these. The cut of roses is steadily increasing, and some of the later varieties are beginning to press the regular items as to volume of delivery. Local growers will offer some developments in roses this summer, especially among the smaller rose growers. One of these is an especially attractive cross from Madame Edouard Herriot. Columbia, Ophelia, Ward, Ulrich Brunner and Butterfly are the commonest offerings, ranking in the order named, and there has been a good increase in the Cecile Brunner stock. One special decoration last week called for the use of wild roses, which are common in the hill sections at present.

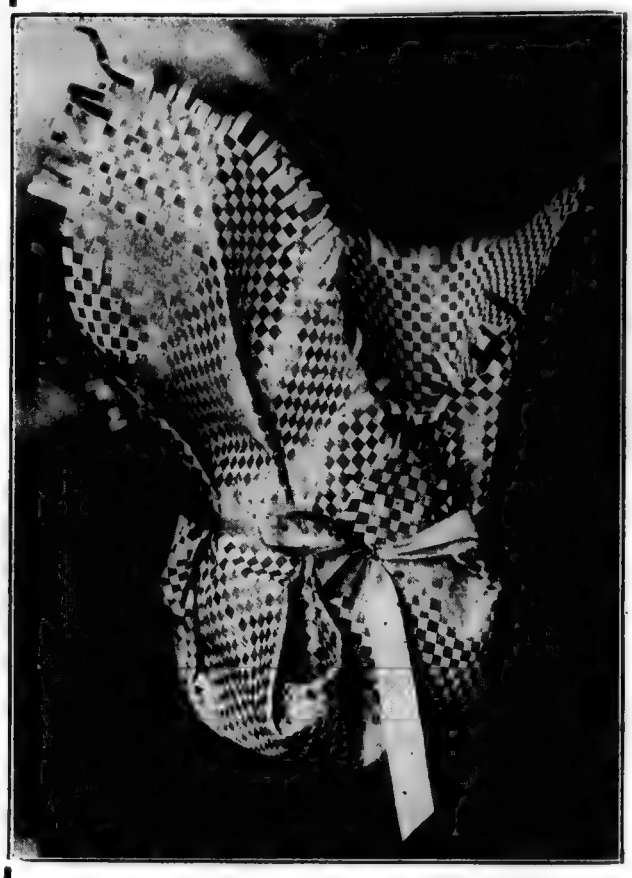
Orchids have been in lighter supply, but the demand has been even slower, so that there has been some loss on stock. Lily of the valley cleans up, but there is no shortage of stock. With the advent of the big cut of outdoor sweet peas, valley is due for easier prices. Carnations are showing up in splendid condition, and local growers are now offering Laddie stock which is the equal of anything delivered here this season. The reds make an especially good showing.



Of the long-stemmed items, gladioli is probably the more popular, as its season is shorter than that for snapdragon. Marguerites, both yellow and white, are in oversupply. Potted plant sales have been largely confined to fuchsias, calceolarias and geraniums, Martha Washington being the favorite. Bedding stock sales have held up well, but nothing like those of previous weeks, and most dealers attribute this to price cutting in some circles.

Graduations have been the source of some business lately, especially for those shops with the initiative to advertise for this business, and there is every reason to expect that this class of business may be increased.

Various Notes.

The advertising committee of the Seattle Florists' Association, at its last meeting, completed arrangements for starting the coöperative advertising campaign. A secretary is to handle the matter of securing the data needed to

TATE'S TIPS

CONSTRUCTION WITH A MEANING.

Then and Now.

Are the growers of cut stock and bedding plants keeping abreast of the times? Are they making the same progress that allied branches of the florists' industry are making? For instance, there was a time, not so long ago, when, if a grower wished to add a new house to his range, he would go to a dealer in lumber to secure his lumber and to another merchant for the glass and paint. A brickyard would furnish him the material to install his heating system. Different mechanics had to be employed for each operation, while the men about the place, whose business it was to grow flowers, would perform that part of the work that could be accomplished by unskilled hands. No general plan was laid out to work by, and, in the light of modern building efficiency, we wonder how the growers in the old days made out as well as they did.

Now let us look for a moment at what would be the method pursued by an up-to-date grower today who plans to build a new house or range. He will get into communication with one of the numerous greenhouse construction companies and state exactly what he wants. The company will submit a plan, with bids and specifications. If necessary, a representative will be sent to him and the benefit of his construction experience, coupled with the grower's knowledge, will enable the grower to decide upon a better house for his immediate needs. Perhaps he is in need of a house in record-breaking time. These companies have the materials ready for almost any sort of house that could be desired. All that is necessary is to inscribe your signature on the dotted line and, as if by magic, a house is ready. And when I say ready, I mean that the growers can walk in and start the planting and the firemen can start the fires, if necessary. Now, what sort of a house have you got? It is one that is built along the most scientific lines, of steel frame, with a minimum amount of obstruction between your plants and the sun. The strictest attention is given to the slightest detail. The aim of these companies seems to be to construct a house that will stand for the greatest length of time without repairs. Competition is keen among these builders, and the one who erects a house just a little better than the other fellow is most apt to get the business. I was looking at a range of houses built by one of these companies fifteen years ago. The proprietor told me that during that time his greatest item of expense for repairs had been for paint. Now, it's a question in my mind if paint can be classed as a repair item. Be that as it may, for fifteen years these houses had been rendering real service, with practically no outlay for repairs. To look at this range today, there seems to be no reason why the same thing might not be said of the houses fifteen years hence. But I am getting away from my subject.

Are the growers keeping pace with this wonderful progress in construction? I can hear someone say, "If the growers of flowers were not progressing, these construction companies would not be in existence." And I am ready to admit that fact. But are the florists keeping these companies going to capacity? "Comparisons are odious," but let us take the past season, for instance. Have we heard of any of these companies turning down orders for the want of the facilities for filling them? Don't lose sight of the fact that they have obstacles to contend with. Do you ever pick up your trade journal that you do not see where these people, by the most intelligent publicity, are seeking business? You may not realize it, but every time you read one of their advertisements you are being enlightened on some point in your business. They are giving you, in these advertisements, the benefit of their own education, an education acquired through costly experiments. Did you ever stop to think that had it not been for the vision and faith of these builders, we might still be using the old lean-to house, instead of the modern steel-framed house, covering, perhaps, an acre of ground? I am not claiming that progress has not been made in the field of experiment among the growers.

Opportunity Knocks.

Take, for instance, the new varieties of roses, carnations, sweet peas and any other line of forcing stock. They are monuments to the men who produced them, but we should not lose sight of the fact that the producers of new varieties are a small proportion of the growers of this country. This article is intended for the rank and file. Are we living up to our opportunities? Let us face the question honestly.

In the first place, the public wants our product. It has been demonstrated over and over again during the past season that they are willing to pay a fair price for flowers. Indeed, at the present time there is considerable debate going on as to whether they are not paying an unfair price. Except on rare occasions, during the past several

KIDDING
Does It Pay?

If you'd ask me, I'd say kidding pays, provided you don't do it in a kid way.
One thing sure, no one likes to be told he doesn't know what he already knows he doesn't.

But that same person certainly does rise to the bait, when you infer that what he doesn't know, just plain isn't worth knowing.
When Tom, our Scotchman, for instance, shows a customer a new orchid, he always says: "By the way, here is that new orchid you have read so much about lately." Of course the customer more than likely never read a word about it; but he sure likes to think, you think he has.

This same Tom always agrees with a disagreeable woman. Then he promptly turns his agreement into a disagreement, by suggesting that she likes the very things she had said she disliked.
Tom says the best way to disagree with a woman is to agree.

Maybe he knows what he is talking about.
Whether he does or not; he sells more flowers than I ever thought of selling.

seasons, has the supply been equal to the demand? Now, what is the cause of this? The answer is simple. It is because there are not enough flowers being produced in this country to supply the wants of the natural flower-loving public, to say nothing of the vast throng who, through proper education, could be made flower buyers. In the second place, you have the construction companies ready at a moment's notice to provide the means of production. And thirdly, that little band of producers of new varieties in all lines has everything that could be desired for the grower to put upon the market.

Passing the Buck.

There has been a shortage of stock that is fast becoming chronic; the responsibility must rest somewhere. It is simply a question of passing the buck. The public wants flowers. The construc-

The producers of new varieties will tell you there are more and better varieties on the market today than ever in its history. The retailer will tell you he is ready and anxious to sell more stock. It would seem that the grower is the man who is "asleep at the switch." It is the lack of production that is causing the high prices we are hearing so much complaint about.

The Market.

Business last week was reported excellent, considering the warm weather, which had its effect on the quality of cut flowers. The business reported by the retailers was for weddings, graduations and funerals. The wholesale market had plenty of everything in season, but prime stock was limited. Roses in all varieties were in plenty except white, and the demand for these was large daily. Premier, Russell, Ophelia and Milady also had an excellent call all through the week. Gladioli in all varieties cleaned up all week and all leading varieties demanded good prices, especially America, Panama, Schwaben, Chicago White, Pendleton and King. Carnations are becoming small in bloom and the supply is equal to the demand, with prices lower than at any time this season. Excellent valley was noticed all the week and the many weddings cleared them daily. Easter lilies, too, come in for much demand. Peonies are over in this market for this season.

The old crop of sweet peas is about over and a new crop is eagerly awaited by the trade. There is an abundance of larkspur, snapdragons, daisies and candytuft coming in, all of which has helped to make up a healthy market all week. Any kind of greens is in large demand, especially asparagus, smilax and fancy ferns. The new crop

Florists' Club Meeting.

The thirty-fifth birthday of the St. Louis Florists' Club was celebrated by the members in Kirkwood, at the establishment of W. J. Pilcher, June 9, with a meeting, smoker and refreshments. Sixty members responded to the call and enjoyed a most pleasant afternoon. The members arrived early and, before the meeting opened, inspected Mr. Pilcher's 21,000 square feet of ground covered by glass, under which only roses are grown, the varieties being Premier and Columbia, from which a most profitable season has been enjoyed by Mr. Pilcher. The members voted it one of the most up-to-date rose growing establishments of its size.

President W. A. Rowe called the meeting to order, with all officers in attendance. After cleaning up all the routine business, the chair called for reports of all committees. The trustees made a financial report of the club's dance, and announced that they had arranged for the florists' annual picnic, which would take place July 21, at Normandy grove. Chairman Bourdet, of the florists' publicity committee, next read a financial statement of the handling of the funds from June, 1920, to June, 1921, and asked for the appointment of a committee to audit the books of the secretary and treasurer. Oscar Ruff, Albert Gumz and George Kuehner were appointed by the chair. The committee further recommended that the club appoint a committee of five for the formation of an Allied Florists' Trade Association in place of a committee known as the publicity committee. This matter then came up for a full discussion, which ended in a motion that such a committee be appointed. The motion prevailed, and the chair appointed L. Jules Bourdet, Henry Berning, W. J. Pilcher, Julius Schaeffer and Oscar Ruff.

August H. Hummert, state vice-president for eastern Missouri of the S. A. F. and local chairman of the membership drive of the S. A. F., reported that a number of new members have sent in their applications.

Sixty cents was collected from members who failed to wear a flower during the meeting. Several communications were read and ordered filed for future reference. Edward Krausmerick, of Belleville, Ill., was elected to membership, the secretary casting the one vote for the members present for his election.

A. H. Hummert, who has charge of the transportation for the S. A. F. committee, read several letters from the various railroad companies and left it to the members to select the official route. A motion prevailed that the Pennsylvania be selected as the official route.

H. C. Irish reported that he had received word that $850 had been appropriated for floriculture at the Missouri state fair, to be held at Sedalia, Mo., August 8 to 20.

W. A. Freere, who handled the advertising the past year for the publicity committee, gave the members a most interesting talk on "The Value of Advertising," and furnished the members with many valuable points to be used in any of their future advertising. Mr. Freere was given a rising vote of thanks.

The meeting then adjourned, after which the members were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Pilcher and Miss Emma Bruno, with splendid refreshments and good cigars. A rising vote of thanks was extended Mr. and Mrs. Pilcher for the most pleasant afternoon ever spent by the members, and the thirty-fifth anniversary will long be remembered by all who attended.

Various Notes.

President L. H. Archias, of the Missouri State Florists' Association, in a letter to Secretary J. J. Beneke, states that the annual meeting of the association will be held at Kansas City, Mo., June 27, on invitation of the Kansas City Florists' Club. He also states that J. F. Ammann, secretary of the National Flower Growers' Association, and H. V. Swenson will also be in Kansas City on that date and, in that way, a large attendance will be assured. A delegation from St. Louis is also assured.

August Hummert, chairman of the transportation committee for the S. A. F. convention, says now that the Pennsylvania has been chosen the official route the members should arrange for the trip. One and one-half fare is the rate. A special sleeper has been assigned. Those wishing further information should write the chairman.

Charles Young, of the C. Young & Sons Co., says many mail orders are still coming in daily for seeds, bulbs and plants.

William C. Smith, head of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., says The Review got his office force into a peck of trouble last week. His vinca advertisement in the Classified column cleaned out the stock in short order. He had to send back several hundred dollars in checks to the late senders.

The "Say It with Flowers" bowling league will meet this week to arrange for the coming season and to elect officers. The two gold medals won by George Kuehner and A. Y. Ellison will be presented to the champions. President Frank Windler says that there will be six teams this year and many in the trade have made application for membership. The league will be composed of thirty active members. New alleys will be selected for next season's bowling. J. J. B.

The Market.

All lines of stock were again short on the market last week. What was to be had was of fine quality, but the same lament was to be heard, "The supply is not equal to the demand." Roses are holding up exceptionally well, good flowers and splendid stems, with good, clean foliage. The only complaint is that there are not enough of them. Carnations are still of good quality, but, like roses, fall short of the demand. There was some Lilium candidum of good quality; these were soon taken. Southern gladioli are still on the market, but, while the spikes are good, they arrive in poor condition and are away off color. Miscellaneous stock of all sorts is to be had and, owing to the shortage in the more staple lines of stock, sell well. Smilax is now arriving in better supply. There are some Easter lilies; many more could be handled. There was some local valley; this sold well. Asparagus is the only item on the market that equals the demand.

casions when freakish weather conditions caused a small glut of stock, the cry among the wholesalers and retail stores has been one of inability to get cut stock sufficient to properly fill orders. The writer has been making an investigation, with the object in view of ascertaining the reason for this shortage, and has come to the conclusion that there is, and has been all winter, as much stock on the market as there was in previous seasons; that the sale of cut flowers has increased materially over previous seasons, and that the production of cut stock has by no means kept pace with this increase. Hence the shortage.

Now, to get back to a hackneyed phrase, "Supply and demand regulate prices." We must admit that prices have been high. This means dissatisfied purchasers; not only in prices, but in being unable to get what they want when they want it. This condition may be satisfactory to the grower who does not care to expand, but, from a business standpoint, is it good business?

The time has come when I feel that this question should be faced squarely. Before going into the question further, I want to remind the growers that the retailers have been making excuses for high prices to the public all winter, giving the high price of production for the excuse. Now, let us be honest with ourselves. Has not the lack of production had more to do with the high prices that have prevailed in the cut flower market during the last season than the cost of same? It was Abraham Lincoln who said, "You can't fool all the people all the time." The public is long-suffering, but in these days of readjustment in all lines of business, is quick to take note of the stationary prices of flowers. Is it not time for the growers to get together and have a general house-cleaning?

Just review your records of several seasons and see if your production during the last one was not as great as any of them. Look over the space you have devoted to the production of cut stock and see if it is not as great as in previous years. Has your production during the last season not been as prolific as in previous seasons? Ascertain these facts and, if you find them to be what the writer believes them to be, there can be but one cause for the chronic shortage that has existed all winter. That is, the production of flowers has not kept pace with the increased demand. We are not going into the reason for this increased demand in this letter. But now is the time to get down to brass tacks; get together the data suggested above; then make this question the order of business for the July meeting of the club, or, better still, see Robert L. Graham, Jr., and have him call a special meeting. Get together and discuss this question; face it honestly, and see whether or not it will be for the best interests of the business to have this condition changed. See if ways and means cannot be devised for increasing production next season.

around Baltimore will be sorry to hear of the loss of an old and faithful friend; one who would accompany them to the funeral of one of the boys, or would go with them to the club's outings; one whom every florist in the state of Maryland knew. Why, none less than a member of the staff of the S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia, John J. Perry's "tin lizzie." would never take you any place where she would not bring you back.''

James Hamilton is having fine cuts of Columbia and Premier. Mr. Hamilton also had a good cut of lily of the valley for the June weddings.

Jesse King, of Mount Airy, is sending in some fine Columbia and Premier. Mr. King's new houses have been giving a good account of themselves this winter.

Lohr & Fritze are cutting fine Double White Killarney; this has been steady all winter.

Andrew Anderson is the most sought after grower about the city. Somehow he has got his crop of smilax into good condition. There will be no danger of any of it going to seed. Tate.

The Market.

The cut flower market here during last week has been unusually dull, but this slump is fairly certain to come each year following Memorial day. Stock of almost every kind accumulated and prices dropped accordingly. The warm weather has brought on considerable outdoor stock, and conditions, as they stand today, are no worse than they have been in previous years. There have been a number of weddings, but they have called for small decorations and only a small amount of material has been used. Commencement exercises and class days have not started in full blast as yet; these affairs come later in the month.

Outdoor stock, while fairly plentiful, is not reaching here in the usual quantities, owing to the spell of dry weather, which has lasted nearly a month. Bedding stock is selling well, even though the season is advanced. Most of the growers report an excellent season. Large quantities of peonies were received last week, and the majority of them sold well. Prices, however, were low. Delphinium is plentiful and sells well, although the supply is larger than the demand.

Snapdragons are reaching here in good supply. Most of them are short-stemmed, but have good blooms. Good gladioli are seen and they move well. There have been fair receipts of foxgloves for the last few days. Lemon lilies are not plentiful. Outdoor roses are not showing extra well as yet, but there is promise of a good quality. Blue bachelor's buttons sell well. Easter and calla lilies are plentiful, and the demand for them is good. The supply of sweet peas is dwindling down to almost nothing, but outdoor stock will be ready in a few days, if the weather is favorable.

Large quantities of hardy gypsophila come in daily and apparently sell well. There are heavy supplies of roses coming in daily from both local and out-of-town growers. These include heavy cuts of Columbia, Premier and Ophelia, all of which are particularly well colored. The weather has been hard on shipped roses, most of them reaching here too far opened. Carnations are slowing up considerably, but, considering the late season, they are of excellent quality, although smaller than usual.

Calendulas are not in heavy supply at this time, but the demand keeps up well. Stocks, pyrethrum, mignonette, daisies and hardy pinks are all in fair supply. Asparagus, maidenhair and dagger ferns are all in good supply.

the end of six days it was holding up in excellent shape and was retaining its full blush-pink color. This variety is fine for decorative purposes. The stems are over three feet in length.

A wonderful transformation is seen at the rose houses of George B. Hart, of Fairport. Premier, Columbia and Ophelia are in full blast, and the houses are a mass of pink blooms. Recently a new rose grower has been added to the greenhouse force and he is devoting his entire time to roses. The result is most gratifying in every way. The cut each day exceeds 1,000 roses.

Visitors to the trade last week included J. H. Geller, of New York, and G. E. McCoy, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago.

The second annual rose show takes place this week at the Chamber of Commerce building. Chairman Charles H.

Vick promises an unusually choice display. Prizes are given for the best blooms and for the most artistic arrangements.

The New York Florist Co. reports satisfactory business so far this month. The transient business is good and the amount of funeral work is keeping up well.

Otto Gross is cutting a fair quantity of outdoor stock, including some pyrethrums and sweet williams.

Toward the latter part of the summer, E. R. Fry, now located near the St. Mary's hospital, will move to a larger and more commodious store, just a little beyond his present location. Business with him is good.

H. E. Wilson says that business with him is indeed gratifying. This season he has done a mammoth bedding stock business. Both wedding and funeral work have been heavy. Although there have been no particularly large orders, the majority have been of medium size, and a large amount of his own stock and some purchased has been used to good advantage. H. J. H.

OMAHA, NEB.

The Market.

Last week started in with an overstock of flowers, particularly roses, and this continued until Friday, June 10, and then funeral work cleaned up everything on hand. This was surely a life saver, as many of the growers were heavily loaded up and it gave all a clean start for this week.

There was an extra heavy demand for sweet peas, particularly lavender, and the supply was short, as most of the growers had thrown out their indoor sweet peas and the outside sweet peas are just beginning to come in. With the passing of Memorial day, the average florist is looking to the final clean-up of the season. Nearly all of the growers are completely cleaned out of bedding, border and basket plants, and most of them got better prices than ever before. June always brings a number of weddings, but it seems as though most of them are small ones this year; in fact, there are no large church weddings.

Roses are plentiful. Columbia is getting small, but the stock is clean and the stems are good. Russell and Premier seem to have been by far the best roses the last two weeks. The extremely warm weather has caused the growers to cut Ophelia roses so tight that there is not much to them. Some of the growers are beginning to dry off a few benches at a time, and some of

The Market.

Business has been good recently, and wedding bouquets and decorations, both house and church, have been in order. In fact, the number of weddings appears to be greater than in any June for the last five or six years. In addition, there are college and hospital graduations, calling daily for bouquets. Flowers have been plentiful, so that orders have been easily filled. Outside flowers are arriving in quantity, including peonies in all colors.

Various Notes.

The Toronto retail florists will have their annual outing July 6. Differing from the usual picnic, it will be a basket affair. An excellent program of races and events is being arranged, for which valuable prizes will be given. It is expected that all connected with the florists' business in any way and their friends will join in making this outing, at Long Branch, one of the finest the club has yet held.

Carl Grobba, of Mimico, Ont., is building a new bulb storage house, 65x 200 feet. This is cement and steel construction, with a concrete roof. Bay and boxwood trees will also be stored in this building. Two new houses of

DE MEESTER'S DONATION.

Out in the towns of Humboldt and Dakota City, Ia., and in the surrounding territory, there are a great many children. There is also a florist in Humboldt who likes children. He is C. DeMeester. That is why he gave away recently 100,000 plants. His surplus stock, on which he could realize little or no profit, and which is usually wasted, he advertised in the local papers. But his advertisement was a little different from the usual advertisement. He advertised that he would give this stock away to the children of the territory who would come after it. And did they come? Mr. DeMeester says that anyone who was not an eyewitness would not believe the way that they crowded into the store. He was forced to call in several of his neighbors in order to take care of the heavy swarms. He says that the appreciation shown on their excited, eager little faces was enough to pay him for the trouble and expense. They will all be grown-up flower buyers after a while.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

GARFIELD WILLIAMSON, of New York city, was in Chicago last week. His specialty is grass seed.

A. P. DEWAR, store manager of R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston, and Mrs. Dewar will sail for Europe June 26.

THOUGH retail sales have passed the spring rush, the number of excellent wholesale orders leads R. B. Howe, president of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, to believe the seed trade has better times ahead.

SEEDSMEN will put in a full week, starting June 20 at Memphis, where the 2-day convention of the Southern Seedsmen's Association is held, and continuing June 22 to 24 at St. Louis, where the American Seed Trade Association will meet for three days.

HJALMAR HARTMANN, of Hjalmar Hartmann & Co., Copenhagen, Denmark, in company with Charles Loechner, of Loechner & Co., New York, the company's United States representative, was in Chicago June 14. From Chicago, his itinerary led to Minneapolis, Memphis and St. Louis, and then home.

AT the establishment of the Leonard Seed Co., 226-230 West Kinzie street, Chicago, the time of inventory is made even busier by the change in arrangement of the packing rooms and offices. The offices are being moved up to the second floor and the packing rooms given more space on the ground floor.

IN company with John C. Bodger, Walter Bodger and Fred H. Howard, J. M. Bridgeford, managing director of Watkins & Simpson, London, England, last week made a tour of the seed farms of W. Atlee Burpee Co., at Lompoc, Cal., and those of the L. D. Waller Seed Co., at Guadaloupe, Cal. Mr. Bridgeford expressed himself enthusiastically regarding the Burpee sweet peas.

PROGRAM AT ST. LOUIS.

The program scheduled for the convention of the American Seed Trade Association at St. Louis next week includes morning and afternoon sessions the first two days, a banquet Thursday evening and a final session Friday morning. A golf tournament will be held the day before the convention opens. The program in detail of the convention sessions follows:

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 22, 10 A. M.
Call to order.
Address of welcome, by Roger A. Annan, of St. Louis Merchants' Exchange.
Response, by Fred Mangelsdorf, Atchison, Kan.
President's address.
Secretary and treasurer's report.
Report of membership committee.
Amendments.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 22, 2:15 P. M.
Executive session.
Trip to Missouri Botanical Garden (Shaw's Garden), arranged by the St. Louis seedsmen's committee.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, JUNE 22.
Reception and entertainment at Hotel Statler.

FRENCH BULBS IN DEADLOCK.

The decision of the American and British importers not to buy French bulbs at the high prices quoted by the growers and the formation of an organization of French dealers and exporters uniting them in the same policy has been followed by the expressed determination of the bulb producers to stick by the prices originally set, thereby causing a deadlock between the purchasers and sellers.

A meeting was held May 28 at Toulon by the syndicate of bulb producers. This meeting, which included only the officers of the syndicate, without giving a hearing to the bulb dealers and without apparent concern for the decisions taken by the American and Holland dealers, decided to maintain in entirety the prices fixed by the general meeting of members of the syndicate.

The same day was held at Toulon a meeting of the members of the syndicate of French bulb dealers, recently organized as the result of the present situation, at which were present all of the dealers without a single exception. These dealers decided to make no purchases as long as it is not possible to buy at prices lower than those fixed by the syndicate of producers.

Their policy is now one of waiting. They make no prediction as to the possibility of cabling American houses new prices, and find it equally impossible to predict whether it will be possible to buy at all at prices lower than those first quoted.

The presence at Ollioules of certain buyers who may not exercise the patience to follow the same policy as that determined upon by the French exporters lends uncertainty to the situation. So long as the former hold off their purchases, the deadlock will continue, since no one else will meet the growers' demands.

WHY CANNERS' SEEDS ARE DULL.

The present financial condition of the canner is even more serious than that of the farmer, Harry P. Strasbaugh, president of the National Canners' Association, told the National Retail Grocers' Association at a recent convention. He said that the farmer at least had his land intact, while idle canneries were depreciating every month.

As a result of the continued depreciation of canned goods values, Mr. Strasbaugh asserted, the canner is not encouraged to can and if the industry does not thoroughly recuperate the pendulum is sure to swing in the other direction and scarcity of canned foods and high prices will result.

"The per capita consumption of canned foods is ridiculously small—about three cans per capita of canned corn and tomatoes, with fruits and fish in proportion," said Mr. Strasbaugh. "With an effort on the part of the retail grocer, the wholesale grocer and the canner to double consumption of canned foods, and incidentally double the volume of business and profit as well, this present-day surplus of canned foods could be easily absorbed."

Worcester, Mass.—Newton & Giles are planning to build a new greenhouse on the land of Charles Newton, Worcester road.

Whitehouse, Fla.—F. Arzie, proprietor of the Whitehouse Window Box Factory and a grower of violets, moss and greens, has recently moved into a new shop, where he has added the manufacture of rattan baskets. He has plenty of material for the baskets on hand and grows some fine rattan in the nearby swamps, but says he has a hard time getting help to make the baskets, for he cannot find many who are willing to stay in the small town. He reports that business is good.

Spencer, N. C.—E. H. Marsh reports a good business in plants and bulbs. He has, besides his outdoor garden, about 800 feet of glass and intends to build a small greenhouse this year and a larger one next year. He reports that a severe hail storm the first part of May did considerable damage.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

WITH a capitalization of $200,000, the Park Place Nurseries Co. has been granted a charter to carry on a general nursery business. The company is located at Wilmington, Del.

Not in many years, if ever, have nurserymen cleaned up so well as this season. Many warehouses were swept with a broom in every nook and cranny, and brush piles are a rarity.

ALVIN E. NELSON, of Swain Nelson & Sons Co., Chicago, is on a trip through the east. He will be back in Chicago the latter part of this week, in plenty of time to attend the coming convention.

THE convention of the A. A. N., at Chicago next week, promises to be one of the best attended for several years. By long odds it will be the most important, several matters of policy, each highly important, coming up for decision.

THE only nurserymen who have surpluses on their hands, in the majority of instances, are those who held for still higher prices when quotations were soaring. Next time, perhaps, they will be satisfied with a handsome profit, without seeking to squeeze the last drop NURSERYMEN report an excellent business for the season just past and say that they have prospects for a better one to start in the fall. This is particularly true in the more northerly states, where the stock was not far enough advanced to be damaged by the late frosts, which were so severe this spring.

FIGURES ON TRACTOR COSTS.

Nurserymen who are contemplating the use of tractors in their fields will find many interesting figures in the report on "Tractors and Horses on Corn Belt Farms," just issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The survey shows that the cost of drawbar work is higher for horses than for tractor plowing, being $2.20 per acre for plowing with the 3-plow tractor and $2.90 per acre for plowing with horsepower. The cost of disking with tractors was $0.67; with horses, $0.64; for cutting grain with tractors, $0.67; with horses, $0.59. These figures represent the cost of power only and do not include either the cost of man labor or that of the implements used.

Before the purchase of tractors there was an average of one horse for each 27.6 acres; after the purchase of tractors there was one for each 37.9 acres.

The old idea that a tractor user must have work stock to meet emergencies when the tractor is out of repair is refuted by figures which show that the annual cost of repairs, including the value of the owner's time spent in repairing the tractors, was $39 for both the 2-plow and the 3-plow sizes. All the tractors considered in the survey had been out of commission when needed an average of only two days during the year; fifty per cent of them had not been out of commission at all when needed.

This report was compiled during October and November, 1920, by representatives who visited 286 tractor owners in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. A complete report of all the work done during the year, both with the tractor and the horse, was obtained from each farmer. Information from which the cost of using the tractor and the cost of maintaining the work stock could be determined was also obtained.

INSECTS ON BOXWOODS.

I am sending you a spray of boxwood, badly affected. Will you tell me what the trouble is and suggest a way to treat it by spraying? What kind of spraying material would be best to use?

J. W. C.—Pa.

The foliage shows signs of having been attacked by an insect that punctures the lower tissues. The name of the insect I am not sure of from the sample received, but a thorough spraying with a good soap spray to which has been added a good nicotine solution should prove effective. A pound of soap sliced finely and dissolved in boiling water will make five gallons of liquid. To this add a wine glass of nicotine solution. Use a spray nozzle and direct the spray upwards, so as to wet the lower parts of the leaves thoroughly. If you have not a suitable nozzle, you can easily purchase one to throw an upward spray. I would repeat this spray two or three times. There will be little danger of burning if the spray is applied before young growths appear. It is best to apply the spray toward evening.

BROAD-LEAVED EVERGREENS.

Why They Are Preferable.

No wonder the multitudes of Americans who visit European countries every year come home intoxicated with the beauty of broad-leaved evergreens, and it is not surprising that we annually spend thousands of dollars vainly trying to produce such wonderful effects. Here the landscape is practically leafless for five months in the year, entirely too bleak to have much poetic charm, and those who view the matchless color and foliage of European forests should not be censured for hurrying home to start planting broad-leaved evergreens. Those who are familiar with broad-leaved evergreens in all their glory and know their wondrous possibilities are unanimous in pronouncing them the most sumptuous plants in cultivation.

I have here nothing to say against pines, cedars and other narrow-leaved evergreens. They have a most important place in our landscape. They are attractive the year around and assume far grander dimensions than broad-leaved evergreens. But they do not have gorgeous flowers or red berries that last all winter. Moreover, coniferous evergreens, as a rule, are inclined to coldness and monotony; neither will they stand the smoke of our cities. Broad-leaved evergreens, from the greater breadth of their leaves and the luster of their foliage, are pleasanter to live with the year around; they are long-lived, do not grow too tall for limited quarters and resist smoke.

That's the name of the new pink rose! The name will be Priscilla probably after the public has had it a while, but we have had to add the prefix to cover the rules of nomenclature.

Know Your Resources.

Do not think I am trying to preach that we can ever produce the luxuriance of European gardens here in America. Let the Englishman gloat over his rhododendron thickets, his laurel swamps and his hawthorn hedges; the Scotchman boast of his acres and acres of heather, and the Italian sing of his lovely myrtle, bay trees and olive trees a thousand years old. Ninety per cent of this stock, so valuable to Europe, is rubbish in our gardens, and we have paid mighty dear to find it out.

In looking over the catalogue of one of our largest northern nurserymen I notice listed some forty-five kinds of broad-leaved evergreens.

Four of the most popular and widely disseminated broad-leaved evergreens in the world are found growing wild by the million in the state of Tennessee; namely, American holly, mountain laurel, giant rose bay and Rhododendron catawbiense. Add to these Magnolia grandiflora, which is native in adjoining states, and boxwood, an acclimated exotic, and you have a galaxy of a half dozen of the finest evergreens grown in temperate climes.

Mountain laurel has proved its adaptability to a wide range of climate extending from Florida to New England. In Tennessee mountain laurel may be found in veritable jungles of gorgeous beauty, miles in extent.

I might mention here the mountain fetter bushes and many other of our native evergreen shrubs of more or less promise, but will adhere to those that have been tried out and are known to have commercial value.

No tree in temperate climes can rival the majestic splendor of Magnolia grandiflora, and it will ever be admired as a world figure. Tennessee is just about the northern limit of hardiness for this tree. I have seen it growing well in Louisville and St. Louis, but the young plants there must have winter protection.

The glorious American holly also has a wide distribution, being found all the way from Louisiana to Massachusetts.

Century-Old Boxwood.

The only garden plant which lives a century is boxwood. It is not regarded as hardy much north of Tennessee and farther south its leaves are not so glossy and the growth is more open.

We have no native broad-leaved evergreen vine to boost. The best one for us is a Japanese vine, Evonymus radicans, or vegetus. I prophesy for this vine a great future. It is as hardy as oak and as green as boxwood. It will eventually become thoroughly Americanized and as popular as ivy in Europe.

If you are looking for evergreen plants to cover the ground I will not mention trailing myrtle, because it is too closely associated with graveyards, but will call your attention to wintergreen and partridge berry. Our native galax and trailing arbutus are both good border plants for broad-leaved plantings.

I have not said anything about the propagation and culture of broad-leaved evergreens. Nurserymen are supposed to know that. But we all know it is mighty particular business; like golf, it is easy to understand but not such a snap to play. Three-fourths of the story is a non-limestone soil and a 6-inch permanent mulch, with protection of the foliage against winter winds and sunshine; the other one-fourth embraces more minor troubles than I have time to mention here.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Wedding work now adds much to the volume of business being done by the Newark florists. There is also considerable funeral work. Sweet peas are of excellent quality and are coming into the market in large quantities. The supply of carnations is large enough to meet the demand, but the quality is deteriorating. It will not be long before they will pass, until the new crop comes in. Gladioli are beginning to come into the market. There is still demand for seeds of many kinds, but the volume of business has fallen off considerably. Florists who deal in small plants for resetting are doing a good business at present.

Various Notes.

Fred P. Wolfinger reports a good June business, the sales being as satisfactory as could be expected under present conditions.

Henry A. Strobell reports much wedding work at the present time. Transient trade is quiet. R. B. M.

Peterson Nursery, Chicago, Ill.—"Peony and Iris Price List," an accurate, attractively printed folder. All the stock is classified according to color and the date of bloom. Mr. Peterson states that after thirty years' study of his records of 1,500 varieties of peonies, he has retained fifty sorts which are unsurpassed for vigor of constitution, floriferousness and other desirable qualities. A condensed wholesale list also is enclosed. The "unique guarantee," to "replace with three every plant blooming untrue to description," is repeated for the twelfth season.

Peter Henderson & Co., New York, N. Y.—"Henderson's Midsummer Catalogue" of seeds, tools and sundries; illustrated, thirty-two pages, in a cover of the unique Henderson style. The slogan, "Make Your Garden Work Full Time," is conspicuously displayed. On the first page is a tabulated list of vegetable seeds which may profitably be sown in summer in the latitude of New York, with the latest date on which each variety may safely be sown and the probable number of days required for maturity.

UTICA IS NOT "PENT-UP."

"No pent-up Utica contracts your powers," was Sewall's famous phrase. Utica florists who have the ability to produce stock in quantity are not "pent-up" by the limits of the local demand—not if they do as Mr. Pinkstone does:

I am very well satisfied with the results of my spring advertising in The Review and when our summer stock is ready you will hear from me again.—S. A. Pinkstone, Utica, N. Y., June 10, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

Madison, Wis.—The New York Floral Co., F. P. Choles, proprietor, held the formal opening of its new store June 11. The equipment is new and complete, having been installed by the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago.

Passaic, N. J.—The Quality Flower Shop has been purchased by Tunis Van Goor, formerly of Paterson, N. J., and DeWaal Malefyt, of Ridgewood, N. J. Besides conducting the flower shop, the new owners will act as landscape gardeners, having had much experience in that line.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

ADDING TO LEAN-TO.

I have a lean-to, 14½ x 28 feet, which I am heating with hot water. The flow is four inches and carried well up on the purlin post, with 2-inch returns. I am about to add an even-span house, of pipe, twenty-five feet wide and the same length as the lean-to. I am going to use the gutter of the lean-to for both houses, forming a valley between them. Both gables, north and south, will be of glass and the side walls will have three feet of glass. I want to use raised benches at the sides and solid beds in the center. How shall I place the hot water pipes and what size will be required to heat to a temperature of 50 degrees when the outside temperature is 20 degrees below zero? Would it be necessary to carry the 4-inch flow into the new house, or would 3-inch pipe be sufficient? Eventually this house will be 100 feet long. I have plenty of boiler capacity. T. M.—Wis.

For heating the 25-foot even-span house, we should run five 2½-inch flow pipes, with one on each side wall plate, one on each row of purlin posts and the other three feet below the ridge. For returns, use either ten or eleven 2-inch pipes. The larger number will be needed if the house is much exposed to the prevailing high winds. Connect two of the returns to each flow pipe, and, if eleven returns are used, the extra pipe should be on the south wall.

While a 3-inch main flow pipe should be sufficient for a house fifty feet long, we should use a 4-inch supply pipe for a house 100 feet in length. The main flow and return should be of the same size. Run all the pipes downhill and connect the highest point in the system with the expansion tank. With this arrangement there will be no occasion for using air valves.

PIPING A NEW HOUSE.

We are going to build a greenhouse, 25 x 50 feet in size, with walls 5½ feet high, 2½ feet of which will be glass. We have a steam boiler of more than enough capacity to heat the house. The outdoor temperature in midwinter seldom goes below 8 or 10 degrees above zero. Three years ago we had a blizzard, when the temperature dropped to 10 degrees below zero, the lowest we have had in thirty-five years. How would you advise piping the house? W. W. C.—Ark.

Although mention is made of a steam boiler, we are not sure whether it is proposed to use steam or hot water for heating the house. The boiler could be used for hot water as well as steam,

Save $8.50 to $9.50 on Every Carload of Coal

If you buy coal by the carload and have a railroad switch, you need a Fairfield Coal Unloader.

Fairfield Equipment soon pays for itself where concerns use 100 tons of coal per month or more. It unloads a car in one hour to an hour and a half, eliminating all hand labor. It permits speedy release of cars with a consequent saving of demurrage.

This machine will relieve you of one of the most wasteful and disagreeable phases of your business. If the location of your switch permits, you can unload from car directly into interior bins, as illustrated above. Or it may be delivered from car into an elevated storage bin or onto piles.

Whatever your requirements, Fairfield equipment is adapted to your own particular needs.

The machine is automatic and does not require skilled help in attendance. It is operated by an electric motor, at a cost for power so small as to be almost negligible. Is mechanically simple and sturdy in construction.

We shall be glad to furnish you an estimate without obligating you in any way.

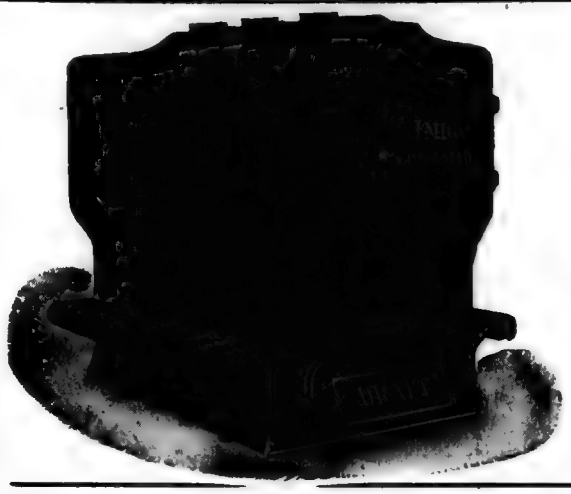
provided that it will furnish 3-inch ports for the main flow and return pipes. We should prefer to use the hot water method for heating a small greenhouse, especially in a southern state, and especially where there is such a wide variation in the minimum temperatures.

To heat to 60 degrees with hot water, when it is 8 or 10 degrees above zero outside, we should use three 2-inch flow pipes, placing one on each side wall plate and the other three feet below the ridge. Twelve 1½-inch returns in three coils, one on each of the walls or under the side benches and the other under the middle bench, should be arranged. If beds are used instead of benches, four of the pipes may be in the walks or overhead. By firing a little more heavily than usual, it will be possible to keep up the temperature, even if the mercury should drop to 10 degrees below zero during the next thirty-five years.



If it is to be heated by steam, the house will require one 2-inch overhead flow pipe and ten 1¼-inch returns. In case that a temperature of 50 degrees will suffice, the number of returns may be reduced to eight for steam heat and ten for hot water.

SELECTING A BOILER.

I have in mind a greenhouse that lies southwest and northeast. It is twenty feet wide, has three feet of concrete in the side and end walls, and thirty inches of glass in the side walls. There is glass above the concrete in the southwest end, but there is no glass in the northeast end. What length of house of this kind can be heated with an Ideal Premier hot water boiler, No. 3132, rated at 1,400 square feet? And will this heat a similar house that is thirty feet wide? Would a Fort Wayne steam boiler, rated at fifteen horsepower, suffice? How can I use 300 feet of 3-inch pipe, which I have on hand? C. J. R.—Minn.

We are not familiar with the capacity of an Ideal Premier heater of the size mentioned, but if it is properly rated at 1,400 square feet of radiation, it should heat the 20-foot house, if made 100 feet in length, to 60 degrees or, if made 125 feet in length, to 50 degrees. If the house is built thirty feet wide, it may be sixty feet long for 60 degrees or seventy-five feet in length for 50 degrees. In case it is planned to build two houses, one of them twenty feet and the other thirty feet in width, they may be forty-five feet long if to be heated to 60 degrees, or fifty-six feet if 50 degrees will answer.

Provided the firepot of the steam boil-

"Yes, sir," said the Boiler Room Foreman to the Chief, "that surely is a wiz. Remember that expensive front-door arch we put in Boiler No. 7 that lasted less than a month? The center of the arch began to crumble, and we sure were up against it for a few days.

PLIBRICO
FURNACE LINING

"Then we patched it up with PLIBRICO, and, believe me, that did the business.

"That was eight months ago, and that PLIBRICO arch is as solid as stone. Looks as though it just couldn't burn out."

"That isn't the whole story," responded the Chief. "These reports show that the other boilers with full PLIBRICO settings are burning less fuel, while running to capacity, than ever before in their history. I shout for PLIBRICO every time."

Isn't this the service you want in YOUR boiler room? Then put in complete PLIBRICO settings.

Front-door arches, side walls, baffles (both vertical and horizontal), and bridge walls, when constructed of PLIBRICO, are absolutely air and gas tight. Never a chance for leaks in PLIBRICO, for, being jointless, there are no bricks to crumble or mortar to fall out.

It is easily applied, too. Any man about the plant can put in a PLIBRICO setting.

Ask for booklet D-22 on Furnace Building.

PLIBRICO

is a plastic, monolithic furnace lining, pounded into shape with a mallet and smoothed with a trowel. When properly baked and vitrified it will make any furnace absolutely air-tight. It lasts three times as long as the ordinary fire-brick setting.

PLIBRICO is sold only in steel containers of distinctive appearance as shown below.

Warehouse stocks always ready in all principal cities.

The story of the PLIBRICO arch cites an actual case. We will give you name and address of this satisfied user of PLIBRICO if you wish. And there are many more!

er is twenty-eight inches in diameter, it should be even more efficient than a hot water boiler rated for 1,400 square feet. For this amount of radiation, a boiler should have a 4-inch outlet, with an inlet of the same size. It is not always possible to secure outlets and inlets of the needed size in steam boilers. The 3-inch pipe may be used as flows, placing one on each plate and the other three feet below the ridge.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Market.

Business has been good for this time of year. Stock has been none too plentiful and was utilized daily last week. Prospects point to more stock this week.

Roses have been available in ample supply. Fancy roses are out of the question; the majority are shorts, with a few mediums. Carnations are fairly numerous. The quality, as is usual at this time of year, is inferior. Snapdragons are not so numerous. Gladioli are scarce. These are in good demand; more could be used. Sweet peas are scarce and meet a poor demand. Some Easter lilies are to be had.

Outdoor stock is coming in plentifully. Daisies, coreopsis, delphinium, etc., are to be had. These are popular for wedding decorations.

Indiana State Florists.

The June meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association was held Tuesday, June 7, at the commission house of the Smith & Young Co.

President Hitz, of Madison, Ind., presided. He brought with him the posters which were made in the Madison schools in his contest for F. T. D. posters. The contest was similar to the one conducted in the Indianapolis schools when the F. T. D. organization met there. The Madison posters were splendid and were judged at this meeting. Reproductions appear on another page of this issue.

Herman Junge read an interesting paper on the strawberry beetle on roses, which appears on another page of this issue.

Two new members, C. W. Jack, of Crawfordsville, and Ed Franc, of Eaton, were taken in at this meeting.

Following the business meeting, a social hour was enjoyed. Refreshments were served by the hosts.

The association is planning a picnic in August, and after that there will be no further meeting until September.

The Market.

Business is about normal, with stock plentiful. There is a good supply of roses, carnations, snapdragon, sweet peas, cornflowers, Easter lilies, calendulas, valley and peonies. The bedding season is almost over, and the seed trade is slowing up.

Various Notes.

A unique decoration was put up by the Duluth Floral Co. for the Fitzsimmons wedding. An altar was made of tamarack and white peonies. The wide staircase was covered with tamarack and white peonies, while the orchestra was surrounded with a bower of small tamarack trees. The table decorations were composed of yellow and white daisies. The bride wore a showered corsage of white roses and valley. Edward Kreimer is home from school for the summer vacation. AJAX BLACK GLAZING CEMENT

A PRACTICAL glazing material made for application in a practical manner. No clumsy, slow working tools necessary—simply a putty bulber or two and a filling gun to load them—furnished free to users.

Ajax Black Glazing Cement has been used throughout the country for several years with excellent results. To prospective purchasers we can give names of satisfied users in every greenhouse center—over a hundred names in Chicago locality alone.

NOT AFFECTED BY EXTREME HEAT OR COLD

Our product is a cement-like composition of Asbestos Fibres, and heavy, semi-drying hydro-carbon oils. Its exceptionally long life is due to the fact that it never thoroughly hardens like old fashioned white putty. The outside surface (which is exposed to the oxygen of the air) forms a resilient tough skin, below which the material remains soft and plastic. Because of this we guarantee that the coldest weather will not cause it to become brittle or pull away. On the other hand our product is warranted not to sag or run in extremely hot weather due to its being inter-laced with the Asbestos Fibres.

As Ajax Black Glazing Cement never thoroughly hardens, glass glazed with it can be shifted when desired without the loss of breakage that so often results when hard drying white putties are used.

Easily applied with a bulber. No clumsy tools necessary.

LOW COST

Compared with the old fashioned White Lead putties, Ajax Black Glazing Cement not only lasts years longer, but is a great deal lower in initial cost.

One gallon is sufficient to glaze 500 lineal feet of sash.

While primarily made to stop water leaks, so thoroughly does Ajax Black Glazing Cement hermetically seal up the sash, that it will soon pay for itself in the saving of heat that is otherwise lost through air voids. This fact has been demonstrated time and again, and we can prove it.

The Market.

The second week in June found stock plentiful and prices a little lower than theretofore. The weather has been extremely warm the last few days, making it difficult to hold stock any length of time, and also bringing an oversupply into the market.

Outdoor sweet peas have put in an appearance and are arriving in quantity, the quality being good. Outdoor peonies are about over and the only kind available now is storage stock, which is good and is bringing a good price. White roses are moving well, although there is a slight surplus this year, whereas last year the demand was much greater than the supply. The new ferns are in and are the best seen on this market this year.

Various Notes.

News of the death of Frank Ritzenthaler appears in the obituary column in this issue.

The Ohio district of the National Flower Growers' Association held two important meetings last week, one at Lima and one at Toledo, O. Don't forget the biggest growers' meeting yet held is to be at Columbus, June 21. All Ohio district growers are asked to attend.

H. Overeynder, of the Lodi Greenhouses, Lodi, O., was a recent visitor in town. Mrs. Nellie Ziegler, of the Flower Shoppe, Bellevue, O., was also in town. W. A. R.

HARTFORD, CONN.

Owing to the unusually hot and dry weather conditions of the last two weeks, carnations have been in short supply at from $4 to $6 per hundred. Roses are plentiful at $6 to $20 per hundred. Sweet peas are in good demand, but the dry weather has shortened the stems considerably, bringing 45 to 75 cents for a bunch of fifty. June weddings have been few and business at all the stores is quiet. Owing to the lack of rain, the supply of early produce will be greatly shortened.

The park department has announced that Rose Sunday will be held in Elizabeth park June 19 or 26. With its hundreds of arches of climbing roses, hybrid teas and hybrid perpetuals, this park's rose garden is, without doubt, the finest in this section of the country and a treat for the visitor. C. determine the assessment of the growers and retailers. The funds so secured will be expended in local advertising as the members of the committee shall see fit. Some small changes in the original plans, aimed to simplify matters for both retailers and growers, were made. H. B. Mills was named as secretary.

Late visitors included W. Wallmark, of the City Floral & Seed Co., Everett, Wash., and John J. Sullivan, St. Paul, Minn. Mr. Sullivan has, for the last twenty-two years, been connected with L. L. May & Co., of St. Paul, but expects to make his future place of residence in the Pacific northwest.

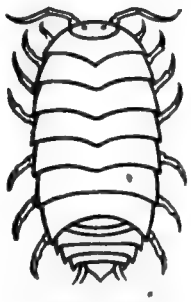
P. F. Rosaia, of Rosaia Bros., is on his way down the Pacific coast, planning to drive on through to California. He is on a combined business and pleasure trip. Some fine Ulrich Brunner and Ward roses are being cut at the greenhouses and an increase in the crop of Butterfly is scheduled. A number of good-sized decorations have been handled lately, and an increase is seen in the number of weddings.

The City Flower Shop showed the first of the new outdoor bachelor's buttons and cornflowers last week, this stock being grown by Charles Holm. An increase in the number of weddings is reported, including some for nearby smaller cities.

J. F. Ammann and Hilmer V. Swenson were week-end visitors to Victoria and Vancouver before continuing their journey to cover other Pacific coast cities. Both express satisfaction at the manner in which the florists of the various sections visited have taken hold of the organization idea.

Ted Webb, for several years connected with Rosaia Bros., has resigned his position and is planning for an extended vacation. He will first spend some time in the Yellowstone National park and then plans to go on to South Dakota.

Mr. Ramage, of the Pinehurst Floral Shop, who has been confined to his home recently by an infected finger, is again able to be at work. The first of the local-grown American Beauties for this season were shown by this shop, these being grown by P. Aeiries. Potted heliotrope in a limited amount has been offered here of late and it has proved an effective novelty.



An attractive window was developed by the Woodlawn Flower Shop through the use of a rustic mill in miniature, with the stream of water running over the wheel and down the spillway, forming a pool in which ducklings were swimming about. Boughs, sweet peas and greens completed this window decoration. This shop handled the work in the temple and a number of stores in Seattle's Chinatown on the occasion of open-house week to benefit China's famine sufferers.

Most of the retail shops in Seattle closed shortly after noon Memorial day proper, so as to give their employees a chance to enjoy the holiday as much as possible.

An increase in the crop of local violas is reported at Kenney's Home of Flowers, where there has been a nice run of wedding decorations recently. There have been some fine peonies cut, both in pink and white, and also some excellent yellow snapdragon. The latter stock has been sent in by Frank Bell.

The Hollywood Gardens report a heavy cut of gladioli and snapdragons, and from present indications will show as heavy a general production of summer and fall flowers this year as in any

We use HAMMOND'S SLUG SHOT on Currant Bushes in the Spring before the leaves are started. We put it on around the roots and have done it for two years, and find that the worms are killed before they get on the bush. For potatoes we put on SLUG SHOT as soon as the bugs come, and we have good vines, plenty of tubers and no bugs. It is the best thing we have ever used. For Sow Bugs in greenhouses it is sure death. We had a lot of them before using SLUG SHOT but they got out where it is used.

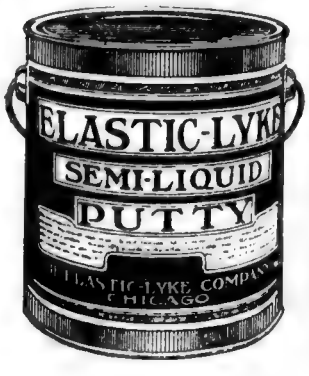
Slug Shot for Sow Bugs.



It is with great pleasure each week I read your valued paper, and I like to give a helping hand when I can. I do not wish to say anything against the use of Paris green and sugar, or bran, or any other material, for I know these are all good to kill bugs, such as wood lice (sow bugs), etc. But I would like to state, as I have done formerly, for the benefit of anyone bothered with sow bugs that I have thoroughly cleared my greenhouses of this pest by dusting freely with HAMMOND'S SLUG SHOT, spreading it well in the walks, under the benches, along the side walls and between the plants, using about 20 lbs. to a 20 ft. x 100 ft. house. This Slug Shot will not injure Carnation plants. I hope that this recital of my experience will be of help to others in trouble and especially recommend its use as it is not dangerous to human life as is Paris green.

year in the history of this organization. The demand for peonies has been increasing of late, a source of satisfaction when the rapid increase in stock is considered.

There is every indication that northwest retailers will not be in the market for white or pink poinsettias this season, if advices given to the growers here can be taken seriously. They say that the demand for these slackened off last holiday season and is far below the figure for earlier seasons, so that they will feature red blooms instead.

McCoy's have been showing some of the best of the outdoor sweet peas seen here this season, the stock being especially noteworthy as to color and length of stem.

E. W. Clark and Tom Sherwin, of the Woodlawn Flower Shop, are at present on their vacations. Mr. Clark plans a number of extended trips into the fishing sections of the northwest.

Graduation bouquets have been a feature in recent business of the Orpheum Floral Co., which firm has been showing some fine Spanish iris. Outdoor stock is coming along in fine shape, according to growers' reports.

Melby's Flower Shop has secured some excellent results on home-grown lupine, and reports a nice continued demand for the larger items of bedding stock. Bright colors are especially desired this year for use in window boxes. A novelty offered last week was clarkia, which is now available in commercial quantities.

Felix Rosaia reports a fine run of general decorations, this being most true of home functions. A feature has been made of the outdoor sweet peas which are available at this time.

H. M. Hansen reports a steady growth in retail sales at his California avenue greenhouses, the greater part of which is traceable to the increase in population for the West Seattle district.

H. M.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

There has been a good demand for stock during the last week, and, although outdoor flowers have come, the local wholesale houses report good business. Quantities of carnations have been received, and the supply has been sold each day. Lilies have also been plentiful and have moved out each day at fair prices. The local peonies are exhausted, and the shipments of peonies being received are bringing fair prices. Gladioli are in demand and are moving fairly well. Lily of the valley is in great demand and finds its chief use in bridal bouquets. A good supply of American Beauty roses have been on the market and have had a good sale.

How the Richest Plant Food Is Used

In liquid form use directly on the soil; do not touch foliage or stems. Dissolve four tablets to the gallon of water and use in place of liquid manure. Use every ten days; some plants will stand more frequent use.

Compare with liquid manure and see how much less the trouble is and how much greater the results.

Three or four tablets (one every ten days) placed in the hills with a dibble, make Cucumbers, Squash and Melons fairly jump and the crop all big ones.

For Cold Frames, Hotbeds and Greenhouse Benches, place the tablets a foot apart each way unless the liquid form is used.

For crops in drills, use 1 tablet to each foot of row.

In hills, other than vines, use one tablet to each hill.

In Flower Beds and Borders, place tablets 1 foot apart.

Brush Fruits and Shrubbery, use three to five tablets placed in the soil with the dibble about each plant.

Fruit or Ornamental Trees, place tablets two feet apart and extending out from the trunk, as far as the longest branches.

The Most Modern, Efficient and Scientific Method of Fertilizing

Each tablet contains highly concentrated, immediately available plant food for stimulating Vegetables, Fruit, and Ornamental plants.

Stim-U-PlanT tablets enable the grower to control development. They increase production, heighten color and improve quality. Their use is highly profitable.

Stim-U-PlanT contains a guaranteed analysis of 11 per cent Nitrogen, 12 per cent Phosphoric Acid, 15 per cent Potash.

The better grades of commercial fertilizers contain 3 to 5 per cent Nitrogen, 6 to 10 per cent Phosphoric Acid and 3 to 5 per cent Potash.

Stim-U-PlanT is water soluble and immediately available. You save paying for, and cartage on a lot of worthless "filler," which only adds to bulk, freight, hauling and labor in handling.

No matter how fertile the soil, Stim-U-PlanT is effective in feeding and forwarding crops. It is a money maker and labor saver for Market Gardeners and Florists.

Price, delivered, 1,000 tablets $3.50. The same results with ordinary fertilizer would cost double and more.

LETTER FROM FERD. FISCHER.
To My Customers in America:
Those who are in the market for high grade Cyclamen seed, I wish to advise you that I have perfected the finest strain of Cyclamen seed I have ever offered, as for the past four years I have devoted my attention to improving my varieties. Cyclamen offered by me this season are all true to name and selected only from the best and healthy plants which in turn give very good results.
I have paid strict attention to my salmon and red shades particularly for the American trade. My seed soon will be offered by the American Bulb Co., who are my sole agents, and none is genuine unless purchased through the American Bulb Co. It is with pleasure that I recommend to all florists who are growers of high class plants to try out my seed. I hold recommendations from the best growers in the world. Yours very truly,
FERD. FISCHER.

3-INCH CYCLAMEN.
In the best commercial colors, consisting of light and dark salmon, wine red, Xmas red, Daybreak, lavender, white with pink eye.
The best strain on the market.

In shipping out our transplanted seedlings, we surely pleased our trade, as one customer at Reading, Pennsylvania, who ordered 1000 wrote back: "Well, I can only say they are wonderful, never expected plants like these."

One at Columbia, South Carolina, wrote: "I want 200 more like the ones sent." Another at Baltimore, Maryland: "Cyclamen just arrived and they are surely fine."

This stock will be shipped during June and July, and you must expect to get selected plants as fine in every respect as you have ever received in 3-in. Cyclamen, for some plants now run as high as 18 to 21 leaves and they will be strong for 4-in. pots the day you receive them.

PELARGONIUMS—Continued

HURRAH FOR EASTER GREETING.

Look on page 17 March 26th issue of Review and see what advertising we got free. The panel photo on next page was taken by us March 17, 1915—note the date March 17th.

This article is wonderfully well written except that it minimizes the great superiority of Easter Greeting over the common sorts. We do not deny the regal beauty of all pelargoniums, but we should all think of the housewife, the ultimate buyer and judge. The old type are sure to disappoint.

Every claim we made for Easter Greeting when we introduced it in March, 1914, has been doubly vindicated. Our claim that it blooms from early March to October has never been denied.

But now, we have a nice stock of 2¼-in., some of which should go to you, if you would have Easter Greeting in it's grand perfection for Easter 1922. Only $7.00 per 100.

SEEDS

OZARK MAMMOTH STRAIN
PANSY SEED IS NOW READY.
You will find this strain has all the best varieties, native and others, blended, making this equal to any other known strain.
As there was a drought at seed time, our crop was light, but we have a limited amount of seed to offer at $5.00 per oz.; 2 ozs., $9.00; 3 ozs., $13.00.
We have tried every known strain that has been advertised during our 16 years of Pansy culture and know that ours is equal to any other grown.
We have just finished extensive improvements, so that weather conditions will not affect us summer or winter and hereafter can take care promptly of all orders, large or small.
Our terms are cash with order. Goods shipped prepaid and insured. When you buy plants it is our aim to get them to you if possible, and protect our customers until they receive the plants.

The Market.

The market here is about normal for this period. Other than a few small weddings and the usual number of funerals, there is comparatively little activity. There is a sufficient quantity of everything and prices rule about where they should be.

NEWPORT, R. I.

The premium lists for the June exhibition of the Newport Horticultural Society have been sent out and it is expected that the show, June 28 at Music hall, will be an unusually fine one. All information relating to the exhibition should be sought from A. W. Potter, Jr., secretary of the society.

A. T. Bunyard, of New York, has discontinued his Newport branch, which he maintained for more than ten years.

Alexander MacLellan was in New York last week for several days.

RESULTS BRING ADVERTISING.

Added to the many letters of appreciation of the results which the advertisers in The Review obtain is the following:

Through advertising in The Review we have more than doubled our wholesale business this year. We have, this last week, turned down dozens of orders for vincas and other plants which we advertised in your columns. Yours is certainly a paper for bringing results. Again we thank you for the success derived through your paper. We shall need it again soon.—C. De Meester, Humboldt, Ia., June 6, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Re.iew.

King GREENHOUSES

KING EAVES

A good eave is a vital part of the life of a greenhouse. Strength—Least Shade—Good Drainage are the points to look for.

The eave on the left is for side sash.

The eave on the right is for fixed glass.

LOOK THEM OVER.

1—Sash bar at rafter or rafter cap.

2—Steel rafter.

3—Malleable purlin casting fastens purlin to rafters with one bolt.

4—Malleable eave casting and eave bracket combined in two halves, one on each side of post and rafter. Bolt holes drilled accurately to size of bolt. We do not use ⅜" bolt in ½" punched holes.

5—Angle eave 2x3x¼" "Style A" cut to accurate length, drilled, fitted and THEN galvanized. We don't buy carloads of galvanized angles from the Mills and then cut and drill them through the galvanizing.

6—Galvanized drip pans good and big. Most drip pans are so small that they soon fill with dirt and the drip runs over, keeping the side wall wet all the time. We use ¾" galvanized drain pipes every 25 feet. Most drains are ⅜" or ½" and soon get clogged.

8—Continuous angle sash rail, making joint between side sash and fixed glass below.

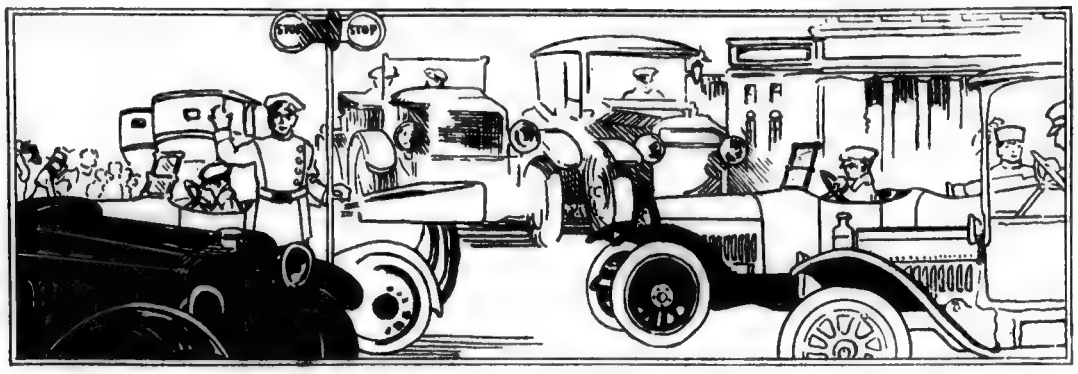
9—Cast iron sill ¼" thick and 5" wide to cover a 4" concrete side wall, cast in 8' 5" lengths from post to post.

10—Malleable eave casting—one on each side of rafter and post, with side lug to hold screw for rafter cap and lug to hold eave pipe purlin.

11—Continuous 1" pipe eave purlin held at rafter with set screw and between rafters at sash bars with special pipe straps.

12—King style "L" eave forms the joint between roof and side glass. It is made of galvanized steel laps under the roof glass and over the side glass.

13—A malleable casting covers the joint of the bars. The bars miter at the eave, carrying all condensation from the roof down the side wall to the sill. A shadeless, dripless eave, patented.



14—Cross section of wide bar at post. Intermediate sash bars are 1⅛" wide and 1¾" deep.

Hold Up---Or Be Held Up

The high price of coal has led a lot of greenhouse owners to listen to numerous tales about coal saving devices. If you are one of the ones, just think these points over before you put down any of your good money for any of them.

Burning Air

In the first place it is just as much to our interest as to yours that every coal saving device that actually saves coal, should be used.

That is to say, provided what it costs, combined with what other costs it may involve, does not exceed the cost of the coal it saves.

For example:

Most all devices for saving coal provide for controlled air inlets above the grates; this, of course, means that the grates get red hot, or almost so: and they burn out very rapidly. In many greenhouse plants this particular fault would be so serious and expensive, that it would overcome any saving in fuel.

Burning Oil

There's a lot of talk just now about burning oil.

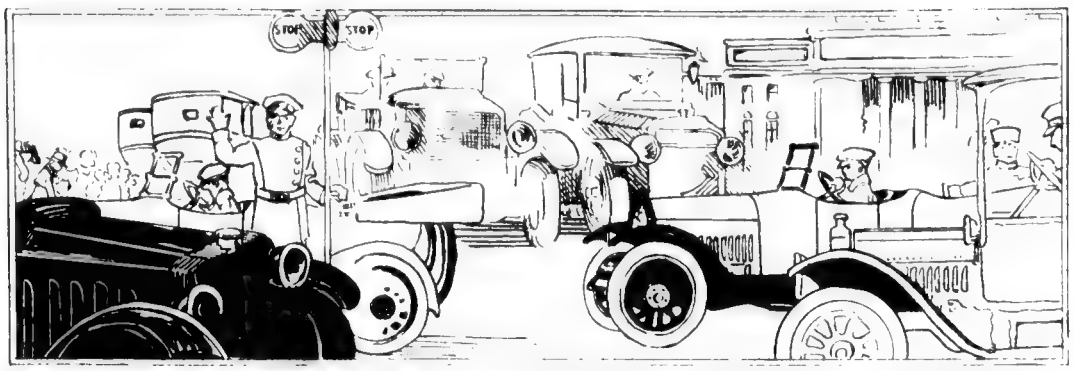
The claim is that even if oil costs the same as coal, its use saves you money, because of the labor it lessens in firing and care of the ashes.

There are several oil burning equipments on the market that are right for greenhouse use.

But there are a lot of things to consider before you change your coal to oil; or you may find yourself some winter's day in a most costly fix.

Counsel

We are in a position to either try out ourselves; or get the full facts about every coal saving plan, device or cheap fuel, that is practical for greenhouse use.



So before you decide to make any changes on your heating or fuel; it might be well to hold up a bit and counsel with us about it. It's better to hold up now, than be held up later.

Hold Up---Or Be Held Up

The high price of coal has led a lot of greenhouse owners to listen to numerous tales about coal saving devices. If you are one of the ones, just think these points over before you put down any of your good money for any of them.

Burning Air

In the first place it is just as much to our interest as to yours that every coal saving device that actually saves coal, should be used.

That is to say, provided what it costs, combined with what other costs it may involve, does not exceed the cost of the coal it saves.

For example:

Most all devices for saving coal provide for controlled air inlets above the grates; this, of course, means that the grates get red hot, or almost so; and they burn out very rapidly. This is the kind of house Kemble gets—do you like it?

—and are you flagging your antelopes?

Getting business in this year of grace, 1921, is a whole lot like getting antelopes in the old days on the western plains. You could hang around all day in an antelope country and never get a shot, because they'd see you first and be on their way. But if you lay low and stuck a red handkerchief on a stick where they could see it, they just naturally couldn't stay away. They'd come close in to get a better view and then you could get in your work.

Business is the antelope you're after now. You may hang around a whole year where there is plenty of it, and you may get mighty little. But if you do something to attract attention (that's flagging your antelope) you'll have a chance to get in your work.

The best flag you can use to get the attention of the antelope you're after now, is a real show of progressiveness and expansion and preparation to handle the business that comes your way. That means build now if you're going to make a showing this year. Are you?

First three houses built by us for Rockport Greenhouse Co., near Cleveland, Ohio.

There is a certain quality to our materials, an up-to-dateness of design, a fairness and courtesy to our business dealings that makes placing an order with us a pleasure.

Our customers will vouch for this. Take the case of the Rockport Greenhouse Co. In 1919, after careful investigation, they gave us the contract to build their first three houses, 36 ft. by 580 ft, then in 1920 they ordered three more and they have just placed their order for an additional three houses.

"Something Doing"

Ever notice that when a man isn't doing the thing which he more than half believes he ought to do, that he TALKS AGAINST it to everybody he can?

Ask the man who isn't going to build this year, whether there is much building going on; and what will he say? He will say, "Nothing doing."
He says it mostly because HE is doing nothing.
But you and I both know there is a lot doing.
It is the growers who are giving us the business this year.
To prove that we were not fooling ourselves, just took a glance through our order book.

Here are a few of the names I chanced on.
Every one of them is building a commercial house.

Next season, when a lot of the growers are building to make more money, these men, who have built this year, will be already making theirs.

They will be a whole year ahead of you.

The only way you can catch up will be to build twice as much next year.
You know it is a lot easier to KEEP up than it is to CATCH up.
When you are ready to talk building, say when and where and we'll be there.

FREESIA PURITY---Improved

We believe we are the largest handlers of high-grade Purity Freesia bulbs in America. All our fields are thoroughly examined during their growing stage by members of the firm, to insure our customers the best the crops can produce. We can deliver Freesia bulbs early enough to enable you to get them in bloom for Christmas, if properly handled. Our bulbs are not grown in the wet district of California, but are properly watered by irrigation. They are all grown near Los Angeles, which florists in California recognize as the best place to grow high-grade bulbs. The fact that we sell quantities in California of our own growing is evidence that florists know where the best quality is produced. Bulbs offered in the following sizes, all up to size:

Dear Sirs:

The Freesia Purity you sold me this year were as good as ever. I have found that I can always rely on your Freesia Bulbs. The large ones for early forcing were in for the holidays as usual.

The Rainbow Freesias are fine, growing tall and have very stiff stems. The colors are very fine and sell readily. Yours truly,

GEORGE C. WEILAND.

Gentlemen:

Just a word about the Freesia bulbs you sold me last year. I have grown Freesia bulbs for the past 20 years, but I have never before cut so large a percentage in December. I cut fully 50 per cent of my crop for the Christmas holidays. They were fine and sold well at the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange in Detroit.

Your Dutch bulbs are also fine.

Yours truly,

ROBERT KLAGGE, Mt. Clemens, Mich.

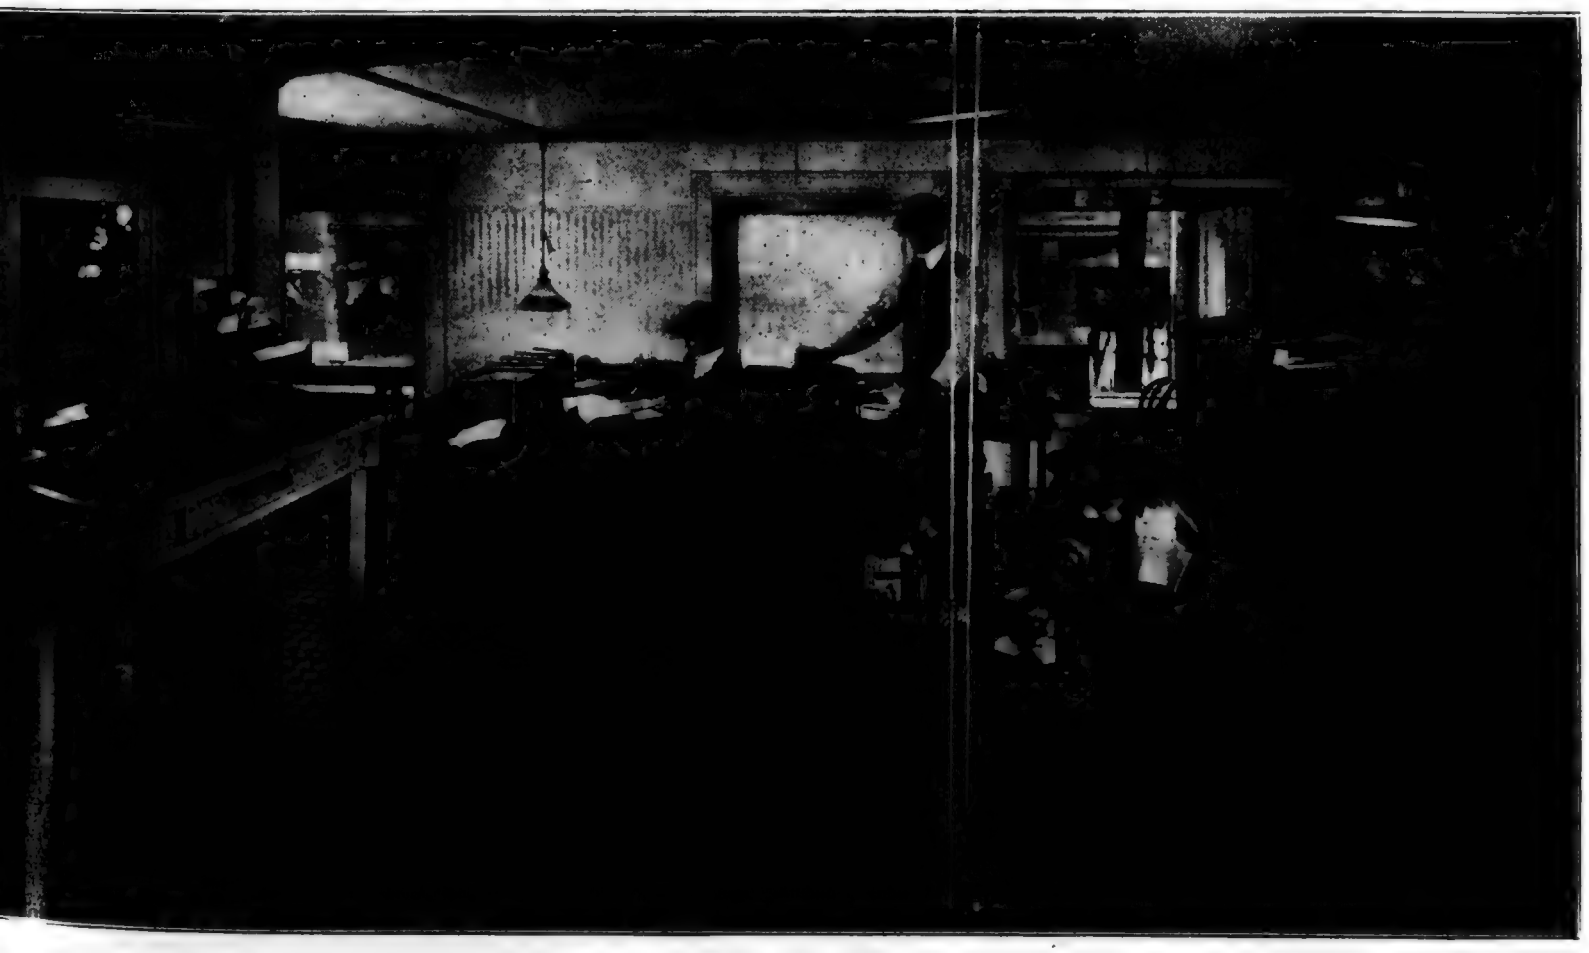
BEHIND THE SCENES IN THE FLOWER SHOP

Much attention is given to artistic and attractive salesrooms in flower stores. Corresponding consideration should be given to the arrangement and equipment of the working quarters, which, though hidden from customers' eyes, are as important to a successful store as the visible portion.

MORE than any other sort of retail store, the flower shop — or more precisely, that part of it where sales are made—is like a stage ready for a theatrical performance. The setting must be attractive and artistic, to enhance the appeal of those for which it is a background—actors or flowers. This is no mere figure of speech; the most successful florists have taken great pains and incurred much expense to have stores that are really beautiful to customers' eyes.

In the flower store, as in a theater, too, there is a place where the work is done on which the effect of what is in front depends. The importance of this part, either of the theater or of the flower store, is not to be minimized. It requires as much attention, though it is unseen by patrons, as the more showy part. In the theater this unseen portion is termed "behind the scenes." In former days "behind the scenes" was a dark, dusty place, filled with ropes and pulleys, drops and scenery and "properties" of all kinds. The advent of modern ideas and appliances, as well as sanitation, changed it to a place no longer uncomfortable and gloomy.



Likewise a change has been going on in the similar region in the flower shop. The close, crowded, untidy room at the rear no longer can serve as office, workroom and supply room for the store with a beautiful salesroom. As progress has been made in one section of the store, it has likewise gone on in the other. Unfortunately, it has gone more slowly "behind the scenes."

Wide Variation

To assist in the improvement of this section of the flower store, the description of an arrangement that may be termed ideal is scarcely possible. It is not at all feasible without a good deal of elasticity, for no two stores seem to have just the same kind of quarters, of just the same size, permitting the same sort of arrangement. But it is feasible, and more helpful, to indicate how some of the most successful florists have laid out this part of the store and to point out the considerations which they believed to govern in their method of arrangement.

It is a general rule that every part of the store save the salesroom should be screened from the public view. The sole exception is the cashier's cage, or the cash register if you have not the former. That exception is a matter of necessity and one of wise policy as well, for it is quite proper to keep in customers' minds the idea that paying for the flowers is an important, if not "the" important, part of a sale.

The office of the proprietor or manager should be in a place where he may have quiet for thought on problems that demand more concentrated mental attention as the business grows. Yet the office should be where the guiding spirit, be he owner or manager, is accessible upon occasion. There are times when a customer asks special service or wants to unburden a grievance, when a salesman's best endeavor to rise to the occasion is not half so efficacious as a few words from the head of the business himself. It is always the part of that individual, no matter how big the business or how much responsibility or authority he may delegate to others, to be still the "trouble-shooter," to be on deck when something goes wrong so that by his experience and skill he may meet the situation most effectively. If he is negligent in this particular, leaving this important duty to less able hands while he goes to the ball game, it will not be long before he pays the penalty of his neglect.

The store of the Fleischman Floral Co., in the loop in Chicago, furnishes an example of convenience; the manager's desk is behind a partition of glass and marble which screens it from the public, but yet allows a view of the entire store. Another example, where space is not so restricted, may well be that of the E. Wienhoeber Co., in the north side residence district of Chicago, where there is a private room off the short corridor that leads from the salesroom to the workroom. Many other examples might be cited similar to these well known stores.

Business Office.

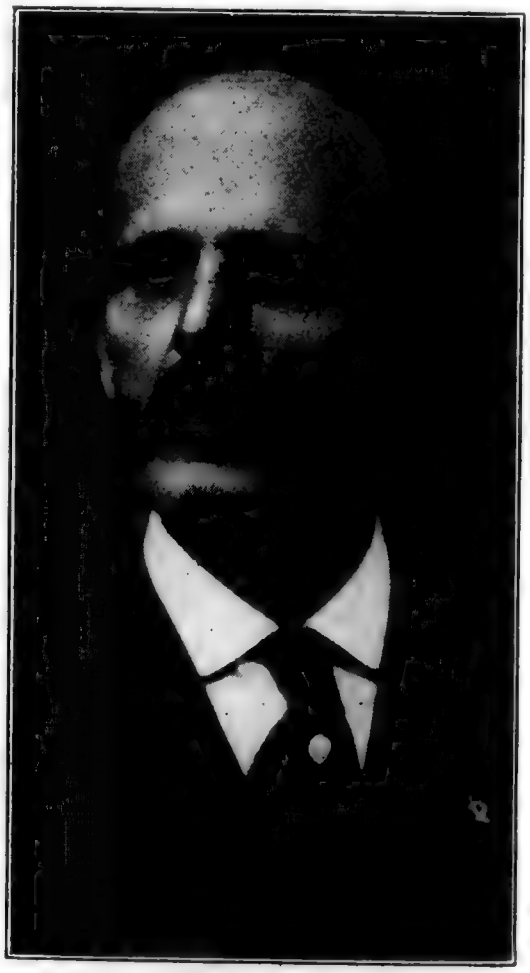
The office in which is done the clerical work of bookkeeping, dispatching and receiving mail and telegrams, etc., may be more remote from the salesroom; sometimes it is on a different floor, as in Penn's store, in Boston, and in Grimm & Gorly's, in St. Louis, as in other places where upstairs space is available and easily accessible, while ground floor area is costly. In some stores the cashier's cage is more nearly a room and it houses the proprietor's desk, the bookkeeper and maybe one or two persons engaged in clerical work. This does not give the proprietor the privacy and quiet he occasionally requires, though it has its compensating convenience.

In any style of arrangement, the office should be as neat, as orderly and as pleasant for the workers as the salesroom is for customers. Look at the illustration on page 17, showing the main office of Baum's Home of Flowers, at Knoxville, Tenn. The room is more spacious than most florists' offices, yet there is no reason why others should be less neat than this extremely good example of what such a place may be.

Properly Planned Workroom.

As important as a convenient and well ordered office is a properly planned workroom. A restricted store area often compels the use of space partitioned off from the salesroom for this purpose. Then, too often, there is an overflow into the front of the store. Occasionally one even sees work being done on a counter in full view of customers, a practice not calculated to raise the tone of the store. Flower buyers expect no more to see a funeral piece made in their presence than to see a seamstress at work at a sewing machine in the middle of a modiste's shop.

More commonly the workroom is at the back of the store or, in city shops, in the basement beneath. The light, airy spaces beneath the sidewalk serve well for this purpose and for storerooms, as in such stores as Fleischman's and Lange's, in Chicago. Often a large quantity of work is done in a small room that is well equipped and conveniently arranged, such as at Mangel's, in the same city. Of course, an ice chest of large capacity is needed when the workroom is at a distance from the salesroom, where, in such case, only a showcase is kept. Not always is the workroom supplied so fully with all the facilities that make for comfort as the designing room at Baum's Home of Flowers, Knoxville, Tenn. This room, pictured on the next page, is 22 x 24 feet, contains a large storage icebox and has six outside windows to furnish light and air. The photograph of this room was taken at a busy time last fall, when half a dozen hands were kept on the go. The secretary-treasurer and general manager of the company, Karl P. Baum, is partly seen behind a big basket, overseeing the work.



Suitable Equipment.

Good lighting should always be provided in the workroom, so that ribbons, baskets and flowers of the correct shades may be selected when occasion requires. Ample elbow room should be allowed, also, for the best designer is hampered by lack of space to do work with ease and rapidity at the same time. Proper ventilation is necessary for both workers and flowers. Counters of the proper height are a matter of importance, since a matter of a few inches can make considerable difference in the degree of celerity with which work is done. To have shipping boxes at hand always when they are wanted, bins should be provided, so that they may be stored according to sizes.

Storage Rooms.

One of the least considered, though most important, of a retail flower store's departments is the storage room or rooms. The space required depends upon the nature and amount of work which is done at the store. When wire frames and baskets are painted and various other such jobs performed, additional space and facilities are required. For this work a part of the storage space may be used, since it should not be done in the vicinity of the designing. Usually an upper floor or a basement provides space. It is advisable to partition this space, so that there is a definite place for each kind of stock. Baskets will then be kept in one room or section; glassware, vases, jardinieres and other pottery in another; ribbons and chiffons in another, and miscellaneous supplies in still another. Racks, shelves or cases for storing such things systematically pay for themselves in the time saved employees and in the damage avoided on the stock. Racks for each size of wire wreath, when it is mossed and ready for the designer, are exceedingly handy. One room should be provided for the storage of the big decorative fixtures that are used only occasionally. These are bulky objects and, if left around where employees must work, are constantly in the way. A portion of the room devoted to these objects should be fitted up with a carpenter's bench, so that small repairs can be made here in employees' leisure time. The florist who thinks he is saving money by using these fixtures until they are broken and then replacing them by others is on the wrong tack. Their appearance would be improved and their life prolonged by a little attention now and then. There is always some one around the store who delights in the use of tools, and there are plenty of odd hours when business is a little slack that may be devoted to that purpose.

The Designing Room Should Be Commodiously Large, Well Lighted and Adequately Ventilated.

Baum's Home of Flowers shows the spacious open area devoted to storage. The designs are mossed as fast as they come in and are packed away according to kind and price, ready for the designer. One corner of this basement is partitioned off for a stock room, where accessories are kept. It is important to have plenty of light, as in this case, in the storage rooms. No employee, no matter how careful, can keep things in the best of condition in a dark, stuffy place. Order is most easily maintained under conditions that furnish an incentive towards it. Therein lies the reason for and value in well-planned quarters "behind the scenes."

Shipping Quarters.

Not many retail stores are headquarters also for wholesale business, but there are a number in the position of Baum's, where the stock from a large area of glass is sufficient for the store's own needs and large quantities are shipped to florists who have no greenhouses. So a view of what is known as basement No. 1 is informative, showing the convenient arrangements for shipping. The basement is 22 x 104 feet and all orders are packed and shipped from here. During the holiday rush all retail orders are packed and shipped from this basement also. No orders at all are filled from the salesroom or workroom. This basement contains a storage box sixteen feet long, eight feet wide and nine feet high, which affords ample space for all necessary stock. A complete line of shipping boxes, consisting of some eighty different sizes, are always kept on hand.

HOW BAUMS BUILT BUSINESS.

Leader in Southland.

Among the acknowledged leaders among the trade in the south is Baum's Home of Flowers, at Knoxville, Tenn.—leaders in both the growing and the retailing ends of the business. The history of this firm is one of hard work and untiring perseverance on the part of the founder and his sons. It has a meaning for all other florists, for it shows how our industry is being built and how it is still to be built to far larger proportions.

Baum's Home of Flowers, Inc., was established by Charles L. Baum in the year 1889. Charles L. Baum was a great lover of flowers from childhood and when only a small boy he would often steal away from home to visit the greenhouses of florists. He began early in life to improve his knowledge of floriculture by reading all the flower and garden magazines he could get, and put what he learned into practice, making floriculture a hobby while engaged in a far different occupation.

At the age of 14 he was apprenticed in the old Knoxville Car Wheel foundry. After three years he went to the Knoxville Foundry & Machine Co., where he worked for six years, returning to the car wheel foun-to unburden a grievance, when a salesman's best endeavor to rise to the occasion is not half so efficacious as a few words from the head of the business himself. It is always the part of that individual, no matter how big the business or how much responsibility or authority he may delegate to others, to be still the "trouble-shooter," to be on deck when something goes wrong so that by his experience and skill he may meet the situation most effectively. If he is negligent in this particular, leaving this important duty to less able hands while he goes to the ball game, it will not be long before he pays the penalty of his neglect.

The store of the Fleischman Floral Co., in the loop in Chicago, furnishes an example of convenience; the manager's desk is behind a partition of glass and marble which screens it from the public, but yet allows a view of the entire store. Another example, where space is not so restricted, may well be that of the E. Wienhoeber Co., in the north side residence district of Chicago, where there is a private room off the short corridor that leads from the salesroom to the workroom. Many other examples might be cited similar to these well known stores.

Business Office.

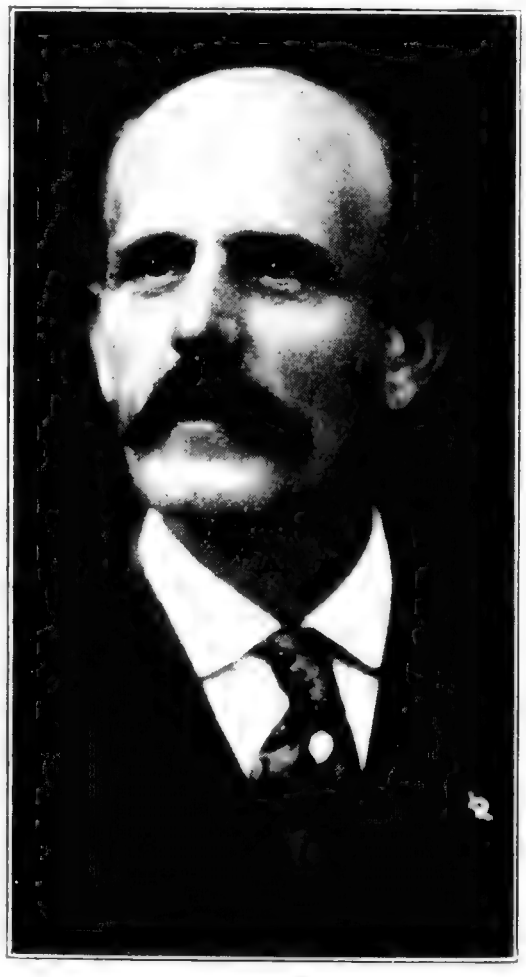
The office in which is done the clerical work of bookkeeping, dispatching and receiving mail and telegrams, etc., may be more remote from the sales room; sometimes it is on a different floor, as in Penn's store, in Boston, and in Grimm & Gorly's, in St. Louis, as in other places where upstairs space is available and easily accessible, while ground floor area is costly. In some stores the cashier's cage is more nearly a room and it houses the proprietor's desk, the bookkeeper and maybe one or two persons engaged in clerical work. This does not give the proprietor the privacy and quiet he occasionally requires, though it has its compensating convenience.

In any style of arrangement, the office should be as neat, as orderly and as pleasant for the workers as the salesroom is for customers. Look at the illustration on page 17, showing the main office of Baum's Home of Flowers, at Knoxville, Tenn. The room is more spacious than most florists' offices, yet there is no reason why others should be less neat than this extremely good example of what such a place may be.

Properly Planned Workroom.

As important as a convenient and well ordered office is a properly planned workroom. A restricted store area often compels the use of space partitioned off from the salesroom for this purpose. Then, too often, there is an overflow into the front of the store. Occasionally one even sees work being done on a counter in full view of customers, a practice not calculated to raise the tone of the store. Flower buyers expect no more to see a funeral piece made in their presence than to see a seamstress at work at a sewing machine in the middle of a modiste's shop.

More commonly the workroom is at the back of the store or, in city shops, in the basement beneath. The light, airy spaces beneath the sidewalk serve well for this purpose and for storerooms, as in such stores as Fleischman's and Lange's, in Chicago. Often a large quantity of work is done in a small room that is well equipped and conveniently arranged, such as at Mangel's, in the same city. Of course, an ice chest of large capacity is needed when the workroom is at a distance from the salesroom, where, in such case, only a showcase is kept. Not always is the workroom supplied so fully with all the facilities that make for comfort as the designing room at Baum's Home of Flowers, Knoxville, Tenn. This room, pictured on the next page, is 22 x 24 feet, contains a large storage icebox and has six outside windows to furnish light and air. The photograph of this room was taken at a busy time last fall, when half a dozen hands were kept on the go. The secretary-treasurer and general manager of the company, Karl P. Baum, is partly seen behind a big basket, overseeing the work.



Suitable Equipment.

Good lighting should always be provided in the workroom, so that ribbons, baskets and flowers of the correct shades may be selected when occasion requires. Ample elbow room should be allowed, also, for the best designer is hampered by lack of space to do work with ease and rapidity at the same time. Proper ventilation is necessary for both workers and flowers. Counters of the proper height are a matter of importance, since a matter of a few inches can make considerable difference in the degree of celerity with which work is done. To have shipping boxes at hand always when they are wanted, bins should be provided, so that they may be stored according to sizes.

One of the least considered, though most important, of a retail flower store's departments is the storage room or rooms. dry, where he again worked for about three years. He then took a position as foreman of the Johnson City Foundry & Machine Co., which he held for two years.

In 1889 he bought two acres of ground near Smithwood, five miles north of Knoxville. Two years later, giving up his position as superintendent of the Johnson City Foundry & Machine Co., he built his first greenhouse, 20x50 feet, heated by the old-fashioned brick flue. The first stock consisted of a few carnations and two Marechal Niel rose plants. A short time later he bought out Zebenden, the Florist, of Knoxville, paying him the sum of $300 for his entire business. Enough material was received in the Zebenden greenhouses to build one small greenhouse about the size of the one built in 1891. These houses were low, with small beds and narrow walks, and made of heavy bars and 8x10 glass.

Retail Store.

For the first three or four years the entire stock was disposed of on the local market from a peddling wagon. The first store was opened in a small space in the Smoke House, which is now the site of the Holston National Bank building; this store was occupied about three months. The next store, 15x20 feet, was opened on Union avenue. This store was occupied about six months. The next move was to a window space on Gay street, 10x20 feet, in the millinery store of the Russell & Russell Co. This space was occupied about six months.

The next move was to 313 West Clinch avenue, which was occupied for fifteen years. When the building was remodeled, the business moved next door, to 315 and 317, which was occupied about six years. In 1916 a 10-year lease was obtained on the present quarters, at the corner of West Clinch avenue and Market street, which is one of the best locations in the city. This store has a floor space of 5,670 square feet and is equipped with all modern conveniences. Views of its facilities are shown on preceding pages.

Growth of Greenhouses.

From the small greenhouse in 1891 the firm's range has grown to two and one-half acres of modern glass, growing successfully carnations, roses, chrysanthemums, orchids and blooming pot plants of all descriptions.

About the time the business was incorporated as Baum's Home of Flowers, in 1918, at a capitalization of $100,000, sixty-five acres of land were purchased at Bearden for growing bulbous and other outdoor stock. There are twenty-two acres of gladioli and two acres of dahlias, as well as tulips, narcissi, lilies, cannas and other stock.

Members of the Firm.

When the business was incorporated in 1918 the following were the officers, as they still are today: President, Charles L. Baum; secretary-treasurer and general manager, Karl P. Baum; vice-president, Roy L. Baum; greenhouse manager, Floyd F. Baum; store manager, G. W. Chesney.

Charles L. Baum, a life member of the S. A. F., has been a regular attendant at the conventions for over twenty years and for many years served as state vice-president. He has also served on the board of directors. He was the first president of the Knoxville Florists' Society. He has been active in other trade societies and is prominent in Masonic circles.

Karl P. Baum, who has been manager for the last seventeen years and who is now secretary-treasurer and general manager, is a life member of the S. A. F., past president of the Tennessee State Florists' Association, a director of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association and a member of many other trade organizations. He is a member of the Mystic Shrine and active in most of Knoxville's business organizations.

In the management of the retail store Karl Baum has been ably assisted by G. W. Chesney, his brother-in-law, for the last four years. The greenhouses have been under the management of Roy L. Baum for the last eight years, assisted by Floyd F. Baum for the last few years. A great deal of credit is due Robert E. Mapes for the system of accounting. Mr. Mapes has been in charge of the bookkeeping for the last nine years.

This firm's sales have increased from a mere $600 in 1891 to more than $100,000 a year of late. It grows all the stock sold at retail and ships a great deal to other markets. Gladioli are a summer specialty and orchids have been successfully grown.

CALCULATING GROWERS' COSTS

A paper presented at the meeting, June 21, at Columbus, O., of the Ohio district branch of the National Flower Growers' Association by Herman P. Knoble, head of the retail firm of Knoble Bros. Co., and of the greenhouse firm of the Friedley Co., both of Cleveland. From the records of the latter company the table and estimates given were compiled by Mr. Knoble.

IN ORDER that we may be able to make the accompanying table workable, let us take as an example a range that has ten houses, each house 21 x 130 feet, and containing three benches five feet wide and 125 feet long, or a total of 625 square feet. In the entire plant would be 18,750 square feet. For all the items listed, it would cost to operate these houses 18,750 times $1.58 or a total of $29,625. Now, if the operator were one of the type that buys much young stock, this cost would increase to a maximum of 50 cents per square foot additional, or another $9,375, making a total of $39,000. If this plant produced less than this amount gross, it would be advisable for the operator to make some serious investigations, since he would find without this investigation that sooner or later he would be going into bankruptcy or working long hours with but little return; except, perhaps, if he were propagating all of the stock which he was finishing. So to bring this home to every pot plant grower, quickly figure out how many square feet of bench space you have—not glass area or ground covered, but actual square feet of benches—and multiply by $1.58 per square foot per year and add to it the cost of all the stock you buy for growing on. The total will give you approximately what it has cost you to operate your greenhouse per year. These figures are not guessed at or estimated, but are an exact transcription of a complete set of books covering a period of two years. However, they are high because the last two years' operation has been exceptionally high and for that reason a safe estimate to adopt.

Test on Mums.

Now let us try some specific item and see how it works out. Take chrysanthemums. These should all be planted by July 1 and harvested by December 1, so that for averages' sake we can easily figure five months. Some will be planted early in June and can be marketed in middle October, but the average will work out correctly.

Let the number be 20,000 plants. This takes one bench of 625 square feet to carry the stock plants from December to May, or six months; six-twelfths of $1.58, the cost per foot per year, is 79 cents per square foot, and 79 times 625 would be a total of $493.75, the cost of the plants by the time they went into the sand. Three months in sand on 300 square feet space would cost one-fourth of a year's cost for space or one-fourth of $1.58, which is 39 cents in round figures, and 300 times 39 would total $117. Now, 1,300 square feet will hold these plants for one month; that is, the space they will consume will not occupy more, all told, than 1,300 square feet for one month and 1,300 times one-twelfth of $1.58 is $169. So far the plants have cost us a total of $779.75 for 20,000 plants, which is $38.98 per thousand. This represents the actual cost. Twenty thousand plants can be planted in 11,250 square feet of bench space. They will occupy this space, as stated before, for a period of five months. Then five-twelfths of cost per year, or $1.58, would give the cost per square foot, which is 65 cents in round figures, and 11,250 times 65 cents is $7,312.50, plus cost of plants, $779.75, makes a total of $8,092.25. This would mean that you must get at least 40 cents per plant out of mums to make them pay. This is figured high for the reason that the heat would only be applied practically one month and the pots would be omitted altogether. This would reduce the unit cost from $1.58 to $1.32, but only on the last five months' operation; with one month's fuel added in, it would be like this:

Five-twelfths of $1.32, or 55 cents, times 11,250 equals total of $6,187.50; plus cost of plants, $779.75, makes total of $6,967.25, or approximately 35 cents per plant. Chrysanthemums are a pretty hard proposition to grow and make money. It is only because they can be grown as a crop when otherwise the space would be empty that they can be profitably handled.

Let us now take 20,000 cyclamen. To start with, the seed cost usually $12 per thousand; total, $240. The space they take up before being ready for the sold bench is approximately 150 square feet for four months, or 53 cents times 150; total, $79.50. One bench four feet wide and 120 feet long will hold the seed planted in bench instead of pots from December to April 1, or four months, and four months would be one-third of $1.58, the cost per year, or 53 cents, times 480, number of square feet in bench, or $254.40.

Cyclamens' Cost.

As we plant them, they are put into benches instead of pots from April 1 to July 1, which takes up 3,750 square feet three months. Take one-fourth of $1.58, which is 39 cents, times 3,750, and you have a total of $1,462.50.

From this point on the amount of space they take up varies, but it can be figured on a total amount of space used and reduced to one month, which I will do. July, nine benches; August, ten benches; September, eleven benches; October, eleven benches; November, ten benches;

This cost sheet is based on growing the following plants and flowers:

20,000 Chrysanthemums.
20,000 Boston Ferns.
100,000 Paper White Narcissi.
250,000 Holland Bulbs.
5,000 single plants of Poinsettias.
50 cases Easter Lilies.
15,000 Cyclamens.
20,000 Geraniums.
5,000 Vincas.
5,000 Ivies.
2,000 Calla Lilies.
3,000 Baby Rambler Roses.
2,000 Climbing and Hybrid Perpetual Roses.
12,000 Hydrangeas.
6,000 Primroses.
Also assorted varieties of Spring Stock, Christmas Stock, flats of Table Ferns, St. Valentine's Day Stock, Easter and Mothers' Day specials.

December, ten benches; January, six benches; February, three, or a grand total of seventy benches for one month. The area of square feet on a bench, 625, times seventy totals 43,750 square feet for one month, at 13 cents per square foot; total, $5,687.50. This makes a grand total cost of $7,723.90. Figuring so that we may check, we find the equivalent of 57,370 square feet has been used for a period of one month to grow the cyclamen crop, at a cost of approximately 13 cents per square foot. So you see we are not far off in using the average of 13 cents per square foot of bench space per month.

Hydrangeas.

Now let's take another crop, 12,000 hydrangeas. Usually you must buy young stock, and it seems as though this is the cheapest, since, when your plants all flower well enough so that there are no cuttings, your crop will bring the highest return. Figure the young stock of your own propagation. Twelve thousand plants will consume for the active time before being put into the field approximately 4,500 square feet for one month, and 4,500 times 13 cents, the cost per square foot, totals $585, or a cost of 4.8 cents each. I have gone over our outdoor records carefully and find that it takes approximately 800 hours' labor to hoe, spray, sprinkle, cultivate, pot and bring into the greenhouse a lot of 12,000 plants, and at 65 cents per hour the total cost will be $520. To this cost should be added the fertilizer that is necessary, water, the interest on investment of land and any horse labor that is required. This would add another $200, making a total cost on all until brought into the greenhouse in the fall of $1,305 or an average cost per plant of approximately 11 cents. This, of course, does not allow for the pot, since this item is accounted for in the greenhouse under so much per square foot bench space cost. Neither does this assume that every plant is a specimen, but takes into consideration only the average. It has been our experience that the number of plants has shrunk until they cost us in 6-inch pots somewhere between 29 and 34 cents each. However, our average grade has been lower than it should be because of soil conditions. After these plants are brought into the greenhouse and stored in the cold house and chrysanthemum houses, then later put into the forcing house, our records show that these plants all told, good, bad and indifferent, consumed 31,250 square feet of bench space collectively for one month; at 13 cents this makes a total cost of $4,062.50 for entire lot, plus cost when ready to come into greenhouse of $1,305, or a grand total cost of $5,367.50, an average cost per plant of 44.7 cents. You notice this seems low, but this is for the average only, and the average of salable plants is as a rule low. In our case, as stated before, they shrink as low as thirty-five per cent of the original number, which would increase the cost to almost three times, or approximately $1.34 for each finished plant in a 6-inch pot. The producer makes it possible to lower his cost to a basis where the plant suitable for a 6-inch pot should not cost more than 35 cents in the field and 39 cents to force it, making total cost of 74 cents, but this means for every plant, so the more that do not flower, the higher goes up the price of those that do flower. The 7-inch plants cost on this average 95 cents each and the 8-inch plants $1.52 each. It takes one square foot of bench space to flower the 6-inch plant, one and one-half square feet for the 7-inch plant and three square feet for the 8-inch plant.

Figures on Ferns.

Boston ferns, twenty thousand in number, are figured on the basis of 6-inch plants. While we do not grow all in 6-inch pots, yet the 6-inch size gives a good basis to average.

Young plants cost about $6 per hundred. It takes 750 plants to a bench of 625 square feet. You can get three crops in a year, or 2,250 plants per year on 625 square feet. At $1.58 per square foot cost per year, the total cost of plants would be $987.50, and each plant would cost approximately 44 cents. This price seems low, but, as stated before, it is on the basis that every plant becomes a perfect specimen. The great factor in the cost of production in the greenhouse business is the percentage of perfect plants which come out of a crop from the beginning to the end. I am giving you the lowest cost for 100 per cent production basis and wherever there are any plants lost or do not come through perfectly, this, of course, adds to the cost of the perfect plants.

General Rules.

I could go into the analysis of each individual plant, but I do not believe that this is necessary. If you will apply this general law, you will not make a mistake. A finished 4-inch plant takes approximately three plants to the square foot a 6-inch plant one to the square foot, a 7-inch plant one and one-half square feet to the plant and an 8-inch plant three square feet to the plant. Every florist knows approximately how long it takes to finish a plant. If you will take the cost of the young stock — market quotations will always govern fairly safe in that regard —and then find out the length of time this plant is in the various stages from the small pot to the finished stage and multiply this space occupied by 13 cents for every square foot, you can easily obtain the actual cost per plant. With the items which I have quoted above, the prices which I have given you will answer your purpose so far as getting down to a fixed basis is concerned. Through the same line of reasoning, I find that it costs approximately 13 cents to grow a 4-inch geranium. Get these facts fixed clear in your mind: That $1.58 is the cost of a square foot of bench space for a year; 13 cents for a month—that means propagation, house and all complete—that whenever a square foot of bench space is idle it is costing you 13 cents a month to leave it idle, and the sooner that it is made to work that much quicker it will help to reduce the price per square foot on the average over the entire place. I am satisfied that 13 cents is an unusually high cost, that with proper cultural methods and efficient and constant filling in of stock in your benches the price should be not to exceed about 10 cents per square foot per month.

OHIO GROWERS

COLUMBUS CONVENTION.

The Ohio district of the National Flower Growers' Association made its initial bow in Columbus, O., when the state convention was called to order Tuesday morning, June 21, at the Hotel Deshler. The organization is only two months old, but the membership has increased so rapidly that a large number, representing over 2,000,000 feet of glass, were present from all over the state, and an enthusiastic group they proved to be.

The two main subjects brought up for discussion were "Cost of Growing" and "Cost of Retailing." The officers elected were: President, Carl Hagenburger; vice-president, Mr. Murphy, of Cincinnati, and treasurer, George Bate. The directors elected were R. Witterstaetter, of Cincinnati; Horace Frank, of Dayton; William Meine, of Youngstown; Albert Ealson, of Sebring; William Krueger, of Toledo, and Frank McFarland, of Akron.

Herman Knoble gave an address on "The Cost System of Greenhouses." He dwelt on the great loss that results to florists and growers from poor bookkeeping. George Asmus, of Chicago, well known for his fine lectures, made an interesting address and displayed lantern slides on a special screen in the Deshler ballroom, showing the recent advertising campaign of Chicago florists. About sixty men and some ladies were present from all parts of the state, most of them at both meetings. The afternoon meeting was of particular interest to growers, while the evening meeting was devoted to retailers.

Coöperation was given a first seat in the various speeches. Statistics show that it has paid in every way.

MAY FLOWER STORE SOLD.

The store, operated for many years by the L. L. May Co., at 90 East Sixth street, St. Paul, Minn., has been purchased by Fulbruge's Flowers, Inc. Charles R. Fulbruge, for the last ten years with Holm & Olson, has the management of the new firm. The sale was made March 19, but, owing to a general remodeling and redecorating of the entire store and the installing of new fixtures, the formal opening was made June 20. The firm is incorporated to conduct a general florists' business, embracing all tributary branches. Gertrude M. Distel, also for many years with Holm & Olson, recently severed her connection with that firm and will be associated with Fulbruge's Flowers. Robert Messmer and Kathryn Dieterich, formerly with Mazey's, Minneapolis, have been added to the store staff.

The officers of the new firm are: President and treasurer, C. R. Fulbruge; vice-president, Gertrude Fulbruge, and secretary, H. D. Frankel.

PEONY SHOW AT BOSTON

AMERICAN PEONY SOCIETY.

Show at Boston.

For a period of over fifty years a date as near June 17 as possible has suited the peony shows held in Boston. In a few years in that period they bloomed earlier and once or twice, later. The season of 1921 has proved a quite erratic one and so variable have climatic conditions been that it has been difficult to select a date for any of the early summer shows here, even a couple of weeks in advance.

Unfortunately, the dates June 18 and 19 were just a week too late for a representative peony display here. It was not possible to foresee in advance what would be better dates than those selected, however, and the result was that the exhibition, while of creditable dimensions, fell far below what has been seen here on some former occasions.

Flowers shown were of fine quality, those from Canada being distinctly superior to the local ones. But for the mammoth display of T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co., who cut a large and representative collection at their West Newbury nurseries, placed them in a refrigerator car and ran them down to a siding two blocks from Horticultural hall, the show would have been rather small. There were over 7,000 flowers in the Thurlow display. They filled the small exhibition hall, the walls of which were banked with cedars, and arranged numerous large vases in the same. In the center a picturesque miniature mountain, draped with hemlock branches and dotted with mountain laurel, was most effective.

Prominent Displays.

Prominent among the many large vases shown were the following: Mme. Boulanger, festiva maxima, Alfred de Musset, Eugene Verdier, Edouard Andre, Couronne d'Or, Enchantress, Mme. Dupont, Mme. Emile Lemoine, James Kelway, Sarah Bernhardt, Mme. Jules Dessert, Mme. Geissler, Venus, M. M. Cahuzac, Beauty's Mask, Livingstone, Albert Crousse, Mme. August Dessert, grandiflora and Mme. de Galhau.

In addition to filling the small hall, T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. filled a number of tables in the main hall, staging about 400 varieties in all. There was little competition in any of the classes and it was difficult to locate winners, cards used being not at all distinctive. In some cases names were missing and no prize list was obtainable. It is hoped that the committee will take note and endeavor to correct these defects at future shows. It is not possible to do an exhibition and the exhibits justice, unless these matters are attended to.

Prizes Won.

For 100 varieties T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. won the first and a gold medal with a splendid collection of fine flowers. Particularly fine were: Albert Crousse, La Perle, Mme. Loise Mere, Reine Hortense, Faribault, Mignon, Milton Hill, Alsace-Lorraine, La Rosiere, Phoebe Cary, Marie Lemoine, Mary Brand, President Wilson, Solange, Mme. de Galhau, Walter Faxon, Alfred de Musset, James R. Mann, Edouard Andre, Mme. Emile Galle, Jeannot, Pink Baroness Schroeder, Suzanne Dessert, Claire Dubois, Mrs. C. S. Minot, James Kelway, Eunice Shaylor, Coquelin and Phyllis Kelway.

Thurlow's won in the class for twenty light pink with M. Jules Dessert. For twenty dark pink they were second with Sarah Bernhardt, E. E. Randall, superintendent to Mrs. H. C. Frick, Prides Crossing, Mass., being first. Thurlow's had the best twenty crimsons, with Eugene Bigot. For six specimen blooms, double, Milton F. Roberts won with superb Solange; second, E. E. Randall. For the best specimen bloom Harry A. Norton, Ayers Cliff, Quebec, won with a magnificent flower of Therese.

Milton F. Roberts won with fine La France and Kelway's Queen and Milton Hill in classes allotted to these varieties.

For ten named varieties Harry A. Norton led with superb flowers of Felix Crousse, Reine Hortense, Adolphe Rousseau, Le Cygne, Frances Willard, James Kelway, M. Jules Elie, Mrs. George Bunyard, Martha Bulloch and Venus, The same exhibitor captured firsts in a number of other classes, all his flowers being of exceptionally high quality.

The classes of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society did not bring out much competition. T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. was first for twenty varieties. R. C. Morse, John Morris gardener, was second for twelve varieties. For six blooms, pink, prizes went to E. E. Randall and Wilton B. Fay. The same exhibitors won for six blooms, white.

The Blue Hills Nurseries showed a table of Iris lævigata grown from seed, with some fine colors. J. T. Butterworth had a wonderful group of Miltonia vexillaria, tastefully arranged by his son, George. All of the dozens of plants shown were superbly flowered and blooming with great profusion, the flowers being of remarkable size and showing great variation in form and coloring. Ordinarily miltonias are shown carrying three to five flowers per stalk. Mr. Butterworth's carried five to nine, and as many as a dozen spikes to a plant, and well merited the Appleton gold medal awarded. Miss Rachel Butterworth showed real artistic taste in an arrangement of miltonias, Oncidium flexuosum and scarlet epidendrums.

Banquet Held.

On the evening of June 18 a dinner was served in the banquet room at Horticultural hall and attended by sixty members and friends of the American Peony Society. A splendid menu having been enjoyed, speeches were made by a number of prominent members.

The officers elected for the coming year were as follows: President, Arthur H. Fewkes; vice-president, Harry Norton; secretary, A. P. Saunders; treasurer, A. H. Scott. The next meeting will be held at London, Ontario, Canada.

One hundred new members were added during the Boston show. The present membership is 450. It was voted to give more attention to amateurs in future.

Among those present from a distance were Professor A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y.; Harry A. Norton, Ayers Cliff, Quebec, Can.; A. H. Scott, Chester, Pa.; James Boyd, Haverford, Pa.; R. T.

Lee R. Bonnewitz in His Peony Fields at Van Wert, O.

Brown, Queens, L. I., N. Y.; B. H. Farr, Wyomissing, Pa.; A. M. Brand, Faribault, Minn.; J. J. Lane, New York city; T. A. Havemeyer, New York city; Leonard Barron, Garden City, N. Y.; A. F. Faulkner, New York city; Dr. J. D. Smith, Dayton, O.; J. C. Wister, Philadelphia, Pa.; Wm. A. Peterson, Chicago, Ill.; Geo. H. Peterson, Fair Lawn, N. J.; Miss Springer, Topeka, Kan., and L. R. Bonnewitz, Van Wert, O.

Bertrand H. Farr lectured each afternoon of the show to large and deeply interested audiences on peonies and their culture, answering numerous questions.

Thurlow's Party.

June 18 T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. took a large party of peony enthusiasts to the Cherry Hill Nurseries, West Newbury, where about 500 varieties of peonies are grown and a large proportion were still in excellent flower. The attractive nurseries, with the huge, well trimmed hedges of Norway spruce, and the large plantings of iris, phlox and other perennials, kalmias in splendid bloom, rhododendrons and many other trees and shrubs, greatly interested the visitors. The weather was ideal and the romantic drive much enjoyed, to say nothing of the splendid lunch served at West Newbury. Another party visited the nurseries as Messrs. Thurlow's guests June 20. W. N. PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

Trend of the Society.

As peony growers, we are glad to meet in the metropolis of New England, the land of Hollis and of Richardson. We, from farther south, have been thinking of these two ancient peony enthusiasts a great deal the last few days, because Hollis's Supreme and Richardson's Grandiflora have been almost the last reminders of a perfect peony season.

Peonies thrive in the sun and you, whose vocation keeps you indoors, can at once see that we, who grow peonies, not only thrive in the sun, but that the sun itself leaves its mark upon us. Just glance around the room and you will have no trouble to decide at once which ones of us grow peonies by proxy and which ones grow them with our own hands. I am a firm believer in the statement that the growing of peonies brings health, pleasure and a long and happy old age.

The American Peony Society was organized in the east less than two decades ago, and as we look over the list of the original members we can at once see that it was organized by men who not only loved peonies, but who were also interested in growing them for profit. But a change is coming over the society. We are glad that it still contains those who are growing peonies for profit, but it is a great satisfaction to see that its membership is being swelled by great numbers of peony enthusiasts who grow this wonderful flower for its beauty, size, color and fragrance. These peony enthusiasts now so far outnumber the commercial peony growers that the society seems to consist almost wholly of amateurs, for I really believe that there are ten amateurs in our society to every one professional grower. And this brings to me the thought that as the amateurs so outnumber the professionals, we professionals should hand over to them more of the responsibilities of the society. At the present time, I believe, there is only one officer of the society, our treasurer, Mr. Scott, who is not in the business of selling peonies. The society has made two efforts to place amateurs at its head. Once, in 1917, it elected Mr. Boyd, an amateur, as president, but while in office he graduated into a professional grower. In 1919 the society again selected an amateur, in the person of your present presiding officer, to look after the affairs of the society, but he followed Mr. Boyd's example and also became a professional grower. And so, at this meeting you have again the opportunity, if you so wish, to select an amateur to bring his enthusiasm into service for the advancement of the society.

Prosperous Year.

We are glad to report a substantial increase in our membership during the last year, probably twice as great an increase as has taken place in any former year, and this increase in membership has brought with it a satisfactory increase in finances, so that we are able to offer better premiums at this show than at any preceding one, and I doubt not that our treasurer's balances will also show satisfactory increases. All this augurs well for the future of the society, which I believe is destined to become one of the largest, if not the largest, flower-growing organizations in the world. It is true that we have our problems to solve, but I believe the membership is able to solve every one of them satisfactorily. Our last bulletin, just issued by our efficient secretary, shows much progress in the solving of the problem of the elimination of unsatisfactory varieties. We are proud of the good work of our able secretary, and hope that he will live to be a centenarian and that throughout his years he may be willing to devote his energies to such good work for the peony as he has been doing for the last ten years.

The Exhibition.

This is the annual meeting of the society, when every member is expected, or at least has the right, to be present. But we have come here today, not for the purpose of exercising our rights, but for the privilege of being able to see a display of the flowers which we think are the most beautiful on earth. Now, these flowers have all come from individual gardens and they have been brought here with the tender care of loving hands for your enjoyment and for mine, and we want to express to every exhibitor an appreciation of his loyalty to the aims and objects of our society.

It is a pleasing thought that every peony enthusiast gathers unto himself a coterie of friends who absorb his enthusiasm for our favorite flower, and who in their turn spread the enthusiasm to others. I believe there is an unlimited field of opportunity for the sale of the finest varieties of peonies to millions of our people, who do not now even know that the peony is a flower of such easy growth and culture, and do not realize what pleasure they are missing by failing to grow it in their gardens. There are many counties in the United States, where, at the present time, there is not a single high-grade peony, and if you and I can by our own enthusiasm engender a desire for the possession of one of these treasures in the heart of even one individual in each of these communities, the result will be that the peony will become known as the great American flower, which can be grown successfully from Alabama to Alaska, and from California to Quebec.

The address of Lee R. Bonnewitz, of Van Wert, O., president of the American Peony Society, at the annual meeting, at Boston, June 18, 1921.

PROVIDENCE SUMMER SHOW

The early summer show of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society was held in the ballroom of the Narragansett hotel, Providence, June 17 and 18. The erratic season made the number of entries fewer than a year ago. Peonies, which usually make a big show, were almost conspicuous by their absence, but there were some displays of outstanding merit.

Remarkably fine was the large collection of climbing roses from A. J. Fish, New Bedford, Mass. Prominent varieties shown included Alida Lovett, Climbing Frau Karl Druschki, Silver Moon, Dr. Van Fleet, Christine Wright, Petite Jeanne, Electra, Rosiere, Tausendschoen, Goldfinch, Dr. Huey, Baroness Ittersum, W. C. Egan, Oriole, Gerbe Rose, Climbing American Beauty, Bess Lovett, Sander's White, Carmine Pillar and Paul's Scarlet Climber.

Sweet peas of superb quality were shown by William Gray, Newport, R. I., ex-secretary of the American Sweet Pea Society. Flowers of grand size, four to a stalk and with 18 to 24-inch stems, were shown of such fine varieties as Constance Hinton, Rosabelle, Elegance, Mrs. Tom Jones, Floradale Purple, Hawlmark Pink, Daisybud (a beautiful delicate pink), Burpee's Giant White and R. F. Felton. W. G. Taylor, of Newport, showed equally fine vases of Felton's Cream, Hercules, Charity, Austin Frederick, Constance Hinton, Daisybud, R. F. Felton, Mrs. C. Elliott, Rosabelle, Mrs. Tom Jones and Mrs. A. Hitchcock.

Roger Williams park, Providence, of which F. C. Triggs is superintendent, showed a long table of rambler, hybrid tea and hybrid perpetual roses. Particularly good were Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, Purity, Mrs. Sharman-Crawford, Ophelia Supreme, Mrs. Taft, H. V. Machin, Arnold Jensen, Indiana, Jonkheer J. L. Mock, Willowmere, Chateau de Clos Vougeot and Captain Hayward.

The Colonial Flower Shop captured first for the best mantel decoration and also for a bridal bouquet, with charming arrangements. T. J. Johnston & Co. showed beautiful arrangements of hardy larkspurs and roses. For table decorations Mrs. S. M. Brown was first with a nice basket of hardy larkspurs; Colonial Flower Shop, second. John S. Doig, gardener to F. S. Peck, Barrington, R. I., had the best circular group of flowering and foliage plants, his crotons being particularly good. He was also first for the best collection of herbaceous perennials, the larkspurs, thermopsis and campanulas being fine. John E. Howe, the Metropolitan park superintendent, of Providence, showed an interesting collection of cacti and Ephraim Morley's roses in the amateur classes had great merit.

W. N. Craig, Brookline, Mass., was judge. There was a good attendance each day of the show.

News from Abroad

HOWARD WINS AT BAGATELLE.

The gold medal for the best new rose at the Bagatelle Gardens, Paris, France, has again been awarded to Howard & Smith, of Los Angeles, Cal., according to a cablegram just received by Fred Howard. The international rose competition held at these gardens is open to all countries and all comers, and to win this prize is one of the highest honors in rosedom. Two years ago Mr. Howard's rose, Los Angeles, captured this prize. This time the winning variety is seedling No. 252, since named Miss Lolita Armour. The habit of this rose is somewhat similar to that of Los Angeles. The flowers are a kind of burnt orange and copper with a golden yellow base, and are extremely full. It is a fine garden rose. This variety is another of Fred Howard's Pernetiana hybrids.

INTERNATIONAL BODY MEETS.

At the time of the Chelsea show, May 25 and 26, there was held in London the annual meeting of the International Professional Horticultural Federation, which includes France, Belgium, Italy, Luxembourg, Holland and Great Britain. The last conference was held at Ghent in 1920, when George Monro was elected president. The conference was held under his chairmanship last month, and among the delegates were H. Graindorge, E. Turbat, L. Savage, H. Detriche, N. Levavasseur and L. Levavasseur, France; F. Spae, Albert de Smet, E. Praet and Van Orshoven, Belgium; B. Ruys and Wezelenburg, Holland. Great Britain was represented by George Monro, E. A. Merryweather, J. S. Brunton and C. M. Matthews, of the Chamber of Horticulture; G. Arluison, international secretary; P. A. Cragg and Prof. M. Lefroy, technical committee; G. W. Leak, E. A. Bunyard and Du Cann, of the Horticultural Trades' Association; A. W. White, of the British Florists' Federation; W. G. Lobjoit, controller of horticulture; H. Morgan Veitch, legal adviser; Mr. Cuthbertson, Edinburgh, and Mr. Cairns, Glasgow.

The rules for registration of new varieties drafted at Ghent were agreed upon, and the international registration bureau will be under the supervision of M. Sauvage, Paris. It was generally agreed that each nation should have its own bureau in correspondence with the international bureau. Registration will secure the right of a selected name for a plant and will avoid duplicating in that respect. The bureau does not consider in any way the "value" of the new plant. This is left to the special societies to decide.

The question of conditions of sale and payment was freely discussed with a view to uniformity in each country's terms, nationally and internationally. The question was taken by the delegates to their various associations for further consideration and report.

It was decided to hold the 1922 conference at The Hague, Holland. E. Krelage was elected president; E. A. Bunyard, vice-president; M. Turbat and M. Barbier, joint secretaries, and M. Sauvage, treasurer.

AWARDS AT BRITISH SHOW.

At the annual show of the British Royal Horticultural Society at Chelsea May 24 to 26, thousands of visitors witnessed one of the finest shows ever held under the society's auspices. All the classes had splendid exhibits. The awards made for new varieties were as follows:

Herbert Chapman, Ltd., award of merit for a fine bold Dutch iris named Banzia, a yellow and pale mauve color.

Wm. Paul, award of merit for Rose Florence, a glowing rosy pink of loose form.

Wm. Cutbush & Son, award of merit for Polyantha Rose Juliana, a dainty flower of a salmon pink shading.

John Waterer, Sons & Crisp, award of merit for Lupinus Sunshine, color deep canary yellow, a fine large spike, and for a new alpine aster, Wargrave variety, a large mauve flower of dwarf habit.

R. C. Norcutt, Woodbridge, award of merit for Rhus cotinus folus, a nice red decorative leaf.

J. Pipers, award of merit for three new azaleas.

Wallace, of Tunbridge Wells, award of merit for Rhododendron Hugo de Vries, a large truss of stiff and sturdy habit, color old rose.

Douglas, Bookham, award of merit each for border carnation, Kelso, a large flower, pale yellow ground, flushings of ruby red; Bookham Scarlet, a splendid scarlet of perfect form; Bookham Salmon, an exceptionally large salmon-colored flower of grand shape.

C. Engelmann, Saffron Walden, award of merit for Carnation Tarzan, a grand scarlet of the perpetual class, intense and vivid coloring, beautifully stiff erect habit and fine form.

W. Downer, Chichester, award of merit for Lupinus Pink Pearl, a grand addition, being a distinct rose pink, spikes of good size.

Writes a commentator on the show: "Engelmann's perpetual carnation, Tarzan, is a variety that makes one envious, for if I mistake not the owner of this may snap his fingers at most of the other existing scarlets. The form, size, length and strength of stem, calyx and perfume are all as one would like to order them. The only additional virtue required is sound constitution with free-flowering propensities. I am told there is no lack in this respect in Tarzan."

Minneapolis, Minn.—Fire recently damaged Joseph Rieck's greenhouse to the extent of nearly $5,000.

Gaffney, S. C.—H. D. Wheat, owner of the Irene greenhouses, has announced that the greenhouses at Irene park are to be doubled in capacity at an early date. An additional house, 25x200 feet, is to be constructed.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Lakewood Cemetery Association, which has done a steadily increasing florists' business for many years, is erecting a new building of unusual and attractive architecture to house the retail department. New fixtures to harmonize with the period of the building are being built by the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago.

PICK OF PEONIES

A LIST OF BEST PEONIES.

In the Bulletin of Peony News for May the untiring secretary of the American Peony Society, A. P. Saunders, of Clinton, N. Y., gives another instance of his devotion to the flower by the tabulation of the returns from the latest rating list sent out to members for voting upon. From this questionnaire, sent out last summer, eighty replies were received. The voting was on the scale of 10. That figure represented the highest quality; 9, high quality, but not the highest; 7 and 8, fairly good, and anything below 5, not worth cultivating. Over 700 varieties received votes; some a few, some many. Of these about 150 received an average of 6 or below on the rating scale. About 200 varieties did not receive a single vote, indicating that they were no longer in cultivation. Thus it seemed that more than one-third of the varieties on the society's list might be discarded as not worth cultivating.

Prof. Saunders arranged two lists, one of varieties which averaged 8 or more and received twenty or more votes, and one of varieties which averaged 8 or more, but received less than twenty votes. The first, he believes, contains varieties of fixed worth, not likely to vary much; the second, varieties of merit whose position is not yet definitely determined. These two lists comprise about 200 varieties.

As a list of "sure things," he gives, in conclusion, the following varieties, arranged by color, which received twenty or more votes and ranked higher than 8.5:

WHITE.

9.9 Le Cygne,	8.8 Alsace Lorraine,
9.8 Kelway's Glorious,	Enchantresse,
9.4 Mme. Jules Dessert,	Laura Dessert,

Sarah Bernhardt,	Maud L. Richardson,
8.9 Georgiana Shaylor,
Marie Crousse,	Octavie Demay,
8.8 Grandiflora,	Opal.

9.0 Longfellow,	8.6 Cherry Hill,
8.8 Karl Rosenfield,	Mikado,
M. Martin Cahuzac,	8.5 Adolphe Rousseau.
Richard Carvel,

"The lack of fine varieties in the deeper shades of pink," says Prof. Saunders, "is clearly brought out by this list; almost all of the pinks in the list above are in light shades. What we need now as much as anything else in peonies are good deep pinks, or light reds, in fine, clear tones."

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Moorestown, N. J.—The Stokes Seed Farms Co. this week went into voluntary bankruptcy. Francis P. Stokes says that it will mean the loss of the entire plant at Windermoor farm and probably the closing up of the business. The effort to put the business on a profitable basis has proved futile under the conditions prevailing during the last two years, and the company is unable to continue under present losses. Mr. Stokes has not determined on his own plans for the future, but will probably resume connection with the trade in some other position. The Stokes Seed Farms Co. was incorporated in 1914 to take over the business of Walter P. Stokes, who at that time conducted a retail seed store in Philadelphia, and to undertake the production of seed at Moorestown. Walter P. Stokes died in 1916. In 1919 the store in Philadelphia was closed. It was at 219 Market street and was half of the store once operated by the firm of Johnson & Stokes. Upon dissolution of the partnership, in 1906, Mr. Johnson conducted his business in the half at 217 Market street. In 1915 an involuntary petition in bankruptcy caused the discontinuance of his business.

Cleveland, O.—Harry L. Snyder, referee in bankruptcy, has, in District court, given notice to all parties concerned in the matter of Joseph Levine and H. W. Grossberg, proprietors of the store of Grossberg & Cahill, Akron, O., who filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy April 29, that the said bankrupts filed their petition for confirmation of composition of twenty-five per cent and the same has been assigned for hearing before D. C. Westerhaver, judge of the District court of the United States for the northern district of Ohio, eastern division, at Cleveland, O., July 1, 1921, at 9:30 a. m. All known creditors and other persons in interest may appear at the same time and place and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be answered.

Salt Lake City, Utah.—Notice has been given by Jerrold B. Letcher, referee in bankruptcy, in the district court at Salt Lake City, Utah, to the creditors of Howard Edris, doing business as the Utah Floral Co. in that city, that on June 15, 1921, the said Howard Edris was duly adjudicated bankrupt and that the first meeting of the creditors will be held at the offices of the referee, 424 Continental Bank building, Salt Lake City, June 29, at 10:30 a. m., at which time the said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupt and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

AFTER THE FLOOD WAS OVER.

How complete was the delapidation in the wake of the flood at Pueblo, Colo., is shown by the view of the store of the Pueblo Floral Co. at 216 North Main street after the waters had subsided. This store was a total loss. The flood entered by way of the front windows and departed through the rear wall, taking with it both and all that was between. Refrigerators, counters and all were swept away. Not a sign of a flower shop's having occupied the premises was left.

Fortunately, the store of the company at 523 North Main street was left intact, only supplies stored in the basement being damaged, and the greenhouses were untouched. So the company made a quick recovery and is now operating as usual, having taken care of much business consequent upon the flood's toll of life. The total loss was in the neighborhood of $3,000, reports Manager George Bolt, Jr.

HARTFORD, CONN.

The Market.

Business among all the florists is quiet. Beginning Monday, June 20, commencement exercises were held at most of the schools and colleges here, which caused some demand for bouquets.

Various Notes.

J. A. Brodrib and Coombs have been carrying some snappy advertisements in the daily papers, with some nice cuts of brides' bouquets, and offering their made-up pieces for graduation.

The June flower show of the Connecticut Horticultural Society, the Garden Club and the Amateur Garden Club, of Hartford, was held at Unity hall, on Pratt street, June 16 and 17, where throngs of garden lovers viewed the largest and best arranged exhibition they ever held. The exhibits completely filled the hall, the brilliant hues of the flowers showing in pleasing contrast against the hemlock-bedecked walls. The roses were naturally the most abundant, and one of the most interesting individual exhibits was that containing fifty vases from Elizabeth park. A large number of awards was made. Keen competition was shown in the made-up baskets. Miss Mary Haven won the first prize with a combination of pink roses and Delphinium Belladonna, nicely arranged. Mrs. Frank S. Kemble won the second prize. W. S. Mason, of Farmington, president of the society, carried off the largest number of awards for roses, hardy perennials and flowering shrubs, with eleven firsts and two seconds, besides special mention for a collection of his valuable native woods, of which he showed several hundred. Mrs. F. C. Sumner won three first prizes; Mrs. Morgan G. Buckley, four firsts; Mrs. S. O. Prentice, three firsts; Mrs. A. W. North, three firsts, three seconds and a certificate of merit; W. W. Hunt, four firsts and one second. Mrs. J. S. Goodwin won seven firsts and a special award for a collection of decorative plants. CANADIAN BAN.

The Federal Horticultural Board has issued the following notice in regard to adding to Quarantine 41, with respect to prohibiting the importation from Canada of plants likely to be infested with the European corn borer:

The Secretary of Agriculture has information that the European corn borer, Pyrausta nubilalis Hubn., a dangerous insect not heretofore widely prevalent or distributed within and throughout the United States, occurs in portions of Canada.

It appears necessary, therefore, to consider the advisability of prohibiting the further importation from Canada of celery, green beans in the pods, beets with tops, spinach, rhubarb, oat or rye straw, as such, or when used as packing, cut flowers or entire plants of chrysanthemum, aster, cosmos, zinnia, hollyhock and cut flowers or entire plants of gladiolus and dahlia, except the bulbs thereof, without stems, in addition to the plants and plant products already prohibited or restricted as to entry by notice of Quarantine 41.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given that, in compliance with the plant quarantine act, a public hearing will be held at the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., room 10, Entomology building, at 10 a. m., June 28, 1921, in order that any person interested in the subject of the proposed amendment of this quarantine may appear and be heard, either in person or by attorney.

CHATTANOOGANS ORGANIZE.

The evening of June 15 the florists of Chattanooga held a meeting at the store of the Joy Floral Co., with a good attendance. The subject of forming an organization was discussed and a permanent local organization was formed, with the following officers: President, G. A. Kimmell, of the Haeger Floral Co.; vice-president, John Karsten, of Karsten's; secretary, J. F. Farrell, of the Volunteer Floral Shop; treasurer, Mrs. Goetz, of Joy's. After the officers were elected a committee was appointed to take up the matter of the next State Florists' Association meeting. A vote was taken and the next meeting will be held October 25 and 26, in Chattanooga.

The following officers of the State Florists' Association were present at the meeting: President, W. H. Englehart, of Memphis; vice-president, Harold Joy, of Nashville, and secretary and treasurer, G. M. Bentley, of Knoxville. Other visitors were Thomas H. Joy, of Nashville, and Karl Baum, of Knoxville.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

Stock of all kinds is in large supply with the exception of white roses. Stock in this is scarce and the demand strong, owing to the great number of June weddings. The demand for orchids is great and the supply is not equal to the demand. Carnations are not so good in quality, owing to the extremely hot weather. There is a great demand for delphiniums, Shasta daisies and coreopsis.

Various Notes.

The Blossom Floral Co. has had a heavy demand for Dorothy Perkins roses, which they are putting out in a special novelty flower pot. The company has been busy with a number of weddings. Some of the baskets were furnished for the opening of the Grant Co.

The Flick Floral Co. has been unusually busy with graduation bouquets and weddings. Miss Jeanette Shock is away on her vacation.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey have sent out a number of large orders of rose plants. This firm makes a specialty of roses and has excellent stock.

The following were among the trade visitors: A. H. Hines, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; H. A. Hecht, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, and P. H. Wussow, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago. S. N.

QUICK ACTION.

As an indication of how good the window-box and lawn-vase season has been, read this:

Please cancel our vinca ad in the Classified department of The Review, as the one insertion sold us out. We received six orders by telegraph the same day The Review arrived.—C. M. Hamilton, Kewanee, Ill., June 18, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

COMING STATE MEETINGS

WISCONSIN SUMMER MEETING.

The third semiannual meeting of the Wisconsin State Florists' Association will be held at Madison, July 19, with headquarters at the New Park hotel. The committee in charge promises to have something doing every minute of the day. Outside of a business session at 1:30 p. m., the day will be given to entertaining.

The officers of the association are: President, R. D. Haentze, Fond du Lac; vice-president, Fred Holton, Milwaukee; secretary, H. R. Welke, Milwaukee; treasurer, William Zimmermann, Milwaukee.

BIG DOINGS IN TEXAS.

July 12, 13 and 14 will see the Texas State Florists' Association in convention at San Antonio and many distinguished in the trade are expected to be on hand. Among those to whom special invitations have been extended are W. H. Englehart, president of the Tennessee State Florists' Association; J. F. Ammann, past president and chairman of the membership committee for the S. A. F.; John Young, secretary of the S. A. F.; E. G. Hill, ex-president of the American Rose Society; Henry Penn, chairman of the national publicity committee of the S. A. F.; Albert Pochelon, secretary of the F. T. D.; William F. Gude, Washington representative of the S. A. F., and A. S. Gray, president of the Oklahoma State Florists' Association.

Robert Kerr, ex-president of the association, believes this will be the greatest convention in the history of the organization. And he urges all Texas and southern florists to boost the S. A. F. as well as the Texas State Florists' Association and to get members for both. Says he, "Texas and southern florists, get busy and give us your returns. Mail your check for $5 for the S. A. F. and $3 for the Texas State Florists' Association. Every employer should see to it that every member of his firm is a member of both the above organizations."

MISSOURI STATE MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Missouri State Florists' Association will be held at Kansas City, Monday, June 27, at the Knights of Columbus hall, 1121 Grand avenue. Efforts are being made to make this meeting the best and largest in the history of the association.

The meeting will be called to order at 10:30 Monday morning. T. J. Noll, president of the Kansas City Florists' Club, will welcome the members of the association to the city. L. H. Archias, president of the state association, will then present his address. P. A. Manson will show the treasurer's figures, and J. J. Beneke will present the secretary's report. A talk on increasing membership will be given by August Hummert, ex-president of the St. Louis Florists' Club. The appointment of a new membership committee will be followed by a general discussion.

The afternoon session, starting at 2:30 o'clock, will be taken up by the following addresses: "Development of Floriculture in Missouri," by G. A. Kaupp, Nevada; "Benefits of the F. T. D. to Retail Florists," by William L. Rock, St. Louis; "The Wholesale Florist," by H. G. Berning, St. Louis; "Retail Store Management," by Frank X. Isherwood, Chillicothe; "How the State Fair Benefits Horticulture," by H. S. Wayman, Princeton, and "Missouri's One Hundredth Anniversary," by Governor Lloyd, St. Louis. These talks will be followed by a general discussion and the work on the unfinished business. The election of officers will then take place, after which will come the appointment of committees.

In the evening the association's members are invited to a meeting of the Kansas City Florists' Club, at which the principal speakers will be J. F. Ammann and Hilmer V. Swenson.

There will be automobile rides to the greenhouses, parks and other places of interest in the city.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

THE best customer is not necessarily the largest one; on the contrary, the most profitable customers may be those who pay with greatest regularity.

QUALITY, not quantity, should be our first consideration. Good stock seldom goes begging; poor stock sells well only in case of general shortage.

THIS should be better than the average summer in the florists' business, because a smaller number of people than usual will leave home for the summer.

EFFICIENCY is demanded of dollars, now that they are not so easy to get, as much as of employees. Spend your money, to the cent, where you will get something for it. Cut out the nonessentials and the lost motion you have been paying for.

To the florist who sees that he is paid the money that is due him and that he gets full value for the money he expends, the business readjustment will not cause embarrassment. To do this, however, he needs unremitting persistence and ceaseless care.

POSSIBLY florists are not different from other men doing business of corresponding size, but it seems that the greatest need in this trade is for system and management. Too few florists have adequate office facilities; too few have accurate accounting systems and weakest of all is the handling of collections and of accounts payable.

ALTHOUGH one of Bruant's earlier introductions (1887), Beaute Poitevine is today one of the geraniums most in demand. It may be that its color, a lively light salmon, is more popular now than in some of the thirty-four years the variety has been in the trade, which would account in part for the fact that the variety has brought as good a price as any and better than most this spring.

WHY pick a new name under which to boost Armistice day as a flower day? Under that name November 11 is known in European countries and here, if not all over the globe. It will be easier to foster the sentiment already attached to the name of Armistice day—which the American Legion already celebrates—than to create an occasion for flowers under a name to which the public now attaches no meaning.

MORE signs point to underproduction next season than the reverse. Every grower should see that every inch of space is utilized for the production of good stock.

HAVE you noted how large a proportion of The Review's Classified plant ads now come from the extreme east? It is possible to draw various deductions from the fact.

SENTIMENT is the foundation of all flower days. The bigger the sentiment, the bigger the flower day. The trade can make the flower day, but it cannot make the sentiment.

A GREAT many men in the florists' business have found the key to success, but have not yet located the keyhole. It frequently is concealed by the mass of accumulated papers on their desks.

THE Bulletin of Peony News for May, edited by Secretary A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y., for the American Peony Society, is devoted to a symposium, the result of the most successful "rating list" questionnaire that has so far been sent out, eighty responses having been received.

DESPITE repeated injunctions in this column to mail photographs flat, they still reach this office rolled in nothing sturdier than paper or thin cardboard. They are usually beyond repair and worthless after having been crushed flat in the mail. Wrap your photographs on a flat piece of corrugated box board.

IN the issue mailed June 16 The Review stated it would be glad to receive lists of florists in every town and suggested that classified pages from telephone or city directories would furnish the information wanted. Within twenty-four hours the classified page showing the florists of Kenosha, Wis., had been received in the envelope of L. Turner & Sons, and since then they have been coming in from other points by nearly every mail. The Review is checking up the names of florists from all available sources and sending an invitation to subscribe in each case a florist is found who is not already a reader of this paper. The publishers hope to be able to add quite a number of new names to the subscription list before the new season opens up, as it is evident the trade is growing rapidly.

SIX! COUNT 'EM! SIX!

The summer schedule of trade gatherings in the west includes the following:

Tri-State Florists' Association (North and South Dakota and western Minnesota), meeting at Fargo, N. D., June 24 and 25.

Missouri State Florists' Association, meeting at Kansas City, Mo., June 27.

Oklahoma State Florists' Association, meeting at Oklahoma City, July 7 and 8.

Texas State Florists' Association, meeting at San Antonio, July 12 to 14.

Wisconsin State Florists' Association meeting at Madison July 19.

Kansas State Florists' Association, meeting at Topeka, August 4 and 5.

The middle western trade travelers have laid out their routes accordingly.

TEMPTING TROUBLE.

Buyers of stock are ready to criticise those from whom they order when everything concerned with their transactions is not as it should be. They believe, and rightly, that they are entitled to their money's worth. More general and thorough satisfaction might be obtained by such buyers if they would give, on their part, some contribution to the success of their transactions. Some of the points on which attention is needed are set forth in occasional letters to The Review. Here is one, for instance:

Many florists send orders for stock with the request that it be forwarded by parcel post, but they do not remit anything for postage. A few days ago we received an order from California for 400 gladiolus bulbs to be sent by parcel post, but nothing was enclosed for postage. It would have cost about $1.50 to send the package by mail, as requested.

We have received lately seventy-five orders to send goods by parcel post. Not over ten were accompanied by a remittance. If buyers want their stock sent by parcel post they should remit the amount of the postage. If too much is sent, any reliable shipper will return the difference.

It would seem that every business man would attend to the details of his orders with businesslike accuracy. Yet on this point, it appears, attention is needed on the part of the majority.

But more marked want of regard on the part of buyers is exhibited by the following:

Frequently florists will send a long list of dahlia roots, ordering from two to five of a variety, and expect the buyer to put up these small items at the hundred rate. We received an order a few days ago for two of each of thirty-one varieties, with remittance figured at the hundred rate. Our price list reads plainly "per 100." It requires a great deal of work to put up an order of that character, and if the shoe were on the other foot, the sender would not do it for the low price per hundred. Those who send orders of that kind should use some thought and judgment.

The buyer who finds cause for dissatisfaction in the way his orders for stock are filled would do well to ask if he is doing his part to produce satisfaction. When he, through thoughtlessness or something else, is guilty of such practices as those mentioned above, he is tempting trouble.

LADIES' S. A. F.

The president of the Ladies' Society of American Florists, Mrs. George Asmus, has made the following appointments for the convention which will be held in Washington, August 16, 1921:

Auditor: Mrs. C. C. Pollworth, Milwaukee, Wis.

Introduction committee: Mrs. Z. D. Blackistone, Mrs. George H. Cooke, Mrs. C. Schellhorn, Miss Amelia Gude and Miss Louise Gude.

Mrs. Albert M. Herr, Sec'y.

A ROAD LIKE A BOULEVARD.

The Pacific coast is advancing rapidly as the producer of stock required by the trade in other parts of the United States. It is a pleasure to believe that The Review plays an important part in this development by affording Pacific coast growers a direct road to market. Like this:

I wish to say that I am more than satisfied with the results I have obtained through advertising in The Review and I am sure that I will use more space in the future than I have used in the past.—Paul Ecke, Los Angeles, Cal., June 15, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

F. N., Ga.—The specimens were badly dried up on arrival, but the heath seems to be Erica melanthera, which is not a form of Scotch heather, and the acacia is probably A. armata, also called paradoxa.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

While the business of Saturday, June 18, was fairly good in the cut flower market, the preceding days were dull, and arrivals in all lines slow of movement. The demand, generally, is not at all such as it might be expected to be at a period when spring has scarcely departed. One noticeable feature of the market is the unusually small demand for flowers for wedding functions. June ordinarily sees a good demand for orchids, lilies of the valley, lilies and other flowers used in bridal work, but this year it is running, so far, only about fifty per cent strong, and the demand for decorative material is equally light. Some stock is bought for graduations and commencements, functions that are as prominent as usual, although regulations governing the use of flowers on these occasions are growing more stringent yearly. Roses are fairly plentiful, but the demand for them is spasmodic; on some days the movement of them is lively, on others they hang fire. American Beauty is going off crop with some growers, but there are plenty of flowers to supply requirements, although the quality is not of the best. In hybrid teas, all usual varieties are in good supply, excepting white, which is scarce. The weather for a few days has been favorable to roses under glass. Rambler, Excelsa and Dorothy Perkins from outside plantings are arriving in liberal quantity.

The orchid supply is somewhat limited, and prices are maintained. Miscellaneous species are to be seen, but command only small sales.

While lilies are not particularly abundant, the supply is sufficient. Lily of the valley moves slowly. Lilium regale is in small supply, but attracts small attention.

The supply of carnations is shortening up, and prices are higher in consequence. The quality is poor and selected flowers only bring the top price.

Sweet peas continue in heavy supply and arrivals are hard to move. Leftover stock is daily abundant.

Herbaceous flowers continue to arrive in great quantity. Enough delphinium arrived Saturday, June 18, to supply three or four markets of the size of New York's. Still, where any one thing is not in preponderance, there is a fair demand for outside flowers of good quality. The list of offerings increases weekly. Among the availables are gypsophila, stocks of fine quality, good snapdragon, coreopsis, pyrethrums, gaillardias, cornflowers, centaureas, feverfew, alyssum, candytuft, yellow daisies, calendulas, poppies, ranunculi, gladioli, Japanese iris, lupines, foxgloves and campanulas.

Various Notes.

William Bogart, buyer for P. Bogart's Bros., the Sixth avenue florists, is missed from the market by his many friends. He is lying in the Post Graduate hospital, where he has been operated on for appendicitis. He is making favorable progress toward recovery.

Harold W. Trepp, for the last five years a member of the staff of Clarence Slinn, wholesaler at the Eighteenth street market, died Sunday, June 19, in the New York hospital, supposedly of pneumonia and complications. The young man was 20 years old, and was highly esteemed by his fellows in the trade. He expected to be married within a few weeks. In his school days he worked between sessions for Gunther Bros., and, upon leaving school, worked with Herman Weiss, both of West Twenty-eighth street, so he practically belonged to the florists' business.

About fifty retailers are now paying into the publicity fund of the Allied Florists' Trade Association on the basis of one-half of one per cent on purchases. This is considered to be a pretty good beginning, and strong hopes are expressed of getting the majority of the retail trade into line.

Major P. F. O'Keefe, of Boston, was a recent visitor in town. The major is to be a speaker at one of the sessions of the S. A. F. convention, in Washington, next August. J. H. P.

OMAHA, NEB.

The Market.

While there are still a good number of June weddings, the rush is past and the irregular business of summer will soon set in. Business is slow, with an abundance of all kinds of stock that at times is hard to move. Gladioli and Easter lilies move well, as the supply is still limited. Carnations are not fit to carry over. Outdoor flowers are arriving in large quantities and are the principal reason for a lowered price on the greenhouse stock. Some fair peas are arriving on the market daily, but most of them are poor and soft. The hardy sweet peas are making a favorable showing and seem popular in a number of cases. Some of the growers are getting good, long, straight stems and while they do not have the fragrance, they ship much better. Roses of the best quality are not numerous, but there is a large amount of second-rate flowers. There is a fair demand for Shasta daisies, which are getting scarce. Cornflowers are being received in large quantities, and are being used to a great extent in combinations with coreopsis and delphiniums, and are in good demand. Some fine larkspur is offered in different shades of blue. Callas are a thing of the past. Snapdragons, though limited in quantity and quality, sell well.

Various Notes.

The Omaha and Council Bluffs Florists' Association held its monthly meeting June 16, and considerable business was gone over. At the election of officers the result was: President, C. Hargadine; vice-president, Fred Lainson; secretary, T. E. Evans, and treasurer, Will Zimmer. It was decided to give a banquet in honor of J. F. Ammann and Hilmer V. Swenson, both of whom will be in Omaha June 29. Invitations are being sent to all nearby florists, and it is to be hoped that a goodly attendance will be present. The Omaha club is fortunate in securing a place at the Carter Lake Club, which assures everyone of a splendid banquet and a fine, cool evening.

J. A. Lambert, representing the Ove Gnatt Co., of Laporte, Ind., made an enthusiastic speech on the importance of the florists' club and the good work in this campaign of Messrs. Ammann and Swenson.

At the auction sale of Paul Floth's greenhouse, which had been taken over by the Omaha Commercial high school, the greenhouse was resold to Mr. Floth. Mr. Floth intends to rebuild in the west part of the city.

At the weekly bowling contest of the Florists' Club, J. Bath's team won over F. Swanson's team.

Frank Swanson, the south side florist, reports that he is more than pleased with the results he has gained as an F. T. D. member. His first month's orders more than repaid him.

Fred Shaw, who was formerly manager of Wilcox & Son's store, has opened a store for himself in Council Bluffs and has become a member of the F. T. D. He is more than pleased with his business. Mr. Shaw had the decorations for the graduation class of the Council Bluffs high school.

All flower stores in Omaha will close all day Sunday after July 1, 1921.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

August in June is not good for the flower business. Since last report in these columns Chicago has had a succession of hot days which would have done credit to midsummer. The weather clerk in his aerie found his shaded thermometer registered 95 degrees one afternoon and for several days in a row the mean temperature was 15 to 20 degrees above normal. Under glass the heat was terrific and in the open, there being no rain, field crops not under irrigation suffered severely. The inevitable result was to crowd the market with poor stock.

The marvel is, not that business should have been poor, but that it should have been so good. At this season of the year it is more noticeable than at other seasons that Monday is a good day, Tuesday a dull one, Wednesday and Thursday ditto, with a revival on Friday and a brisk business Saturday. It was so last week and doubtless will be so this week, although this is the week bringing the greater number of school closings, which may help matters during the usually quiet middle period.

It would be untrue to report the flower business is dull. Several of the larger wholesale houses say their sales last week, even with the unseasonable heat, were as good as or slightly better than for the same week last year. Show us another line of business for which as much can be said! It is true, however, that average prices of flowers are much below those of this date in recent years. The quantity of stock handled is the largest ever known in June and accounts for the excellent volume of money handled.

When it is stated that the market has been continuously overcrowded with stock rendered of low average quality by the heat, that tells the whole story; anything more is repetition. The larger growers, who began early with replanting, have begun to cut in considerable quantity from young stock and there seems little danger that roses will be in short supply at any time this summer. At present the strongest demand seems to be for Sunburst and White Killarney; seems to be because it is more difficult to find 1,000 Sunburst than 20,000 Columbia or Premier.

The heat has made carnations so small the buyers do not care for them and so soft the wholesalers do not care to ship them far. An occasional bunch of asters is seen.

Peonies are gone, except for one or two lots which are shrinking fast. Some of the late cut was the finest of the season and keeps well because there were no late frosts to devastate the northern fields after buds had formed.

Gladioli have become abundant, earlier than usual. America has appeared.

Giganteum lilies are less plentiful than they were, the heat having hastened the crop. Callas are about gone. There was a flood of candidums, the heat bringing the entire cut on within a few days. Some of these are in cold storage.

Delphinium Belladonna is more abundant than ever before and has been used lavishly in some of the larger wedding decorations of mid-June. Other garden flowers also are plentiful, includ-

Wholesalers' Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Chicago Wholesale Cut Flower Association was held around the dinner table at the Hotel Randolph Thursday evening, June 16, while the growers were at dinner in an adjoining room. The wholesalers elected the following officers:

President—Paul R. Klingsporn, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association.

Vice-president—Eric Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co.

Secretary—A. C. Kohlbrand, of the E. C. Amling Co.

Treasurer—P. C. Schupp, of the J. A. Budlong Co.

Messrs. Kohlbrand and Schupp have held their respective posts ever since the first meeting for temporary organization.

The greater part of the evening was spent in discussing trade affairs, but no action was taken, it being the policy of the organization to suggest and discuss means of advancing the general interests of the trade, but to leave each member free to determine his own course of action.

It was reported that the one per cent service charge on city sales was working well, only a few buyers objecting in any way, as they have the knowledge that every penny so raised is turned over to the Allied Florists' Association for publicity purposes.

Growers' Banquet.

The banquet and entertainment of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago drew a good attendance for the annual election of officers at the Hotel Randolph Thursday evening, June 16. More than 80 gathered to enjoy the program prepared by August Poehlmann, R. J. Windler and Peter Pearson. The warmth of the evening was forgotten in the cool temperature of the banquet room, fittingly produced by a

Do not be content

This is the season to be alert, to use your mind, to make each month's sales hold up to the average cost; the rest will take care of itself. To be content to take a loss in the summer and make it up later is poor policy.

Kroeschell refrigerator system. A short business meeting preceded the festivities and the following officers were chosen for the coming year:

President—Peter Pearson.
Vice-president—George J. Ball.
Secretary—Otto Amling.
Treasurer—N. J. Wietor.

Joseph Kohout thanked the organization for its support of him as president, but asked to be excused from further performance of the office, since he has now the same position in the Chicago Florists' Club to fill. He was chosen director to fill the unexpired term of George J. Ball, who succeeded Peter Pearson when the latter was elevated from vice-president to president. The good services of Mr. Pearson and also of the secretary and the treasurer made only the nominating ballot necessary to obtain a majority of votes in favor of each. Rudolph Ellsworth was elected director.

George Harrer, of Morton Grove, and Michael Wiltgen, 502 Florence avenue, Evanston, both carnation growers, were elected to membership.

An excellent repast was accompanied and followed by musical numbers, which were much enjoyed.

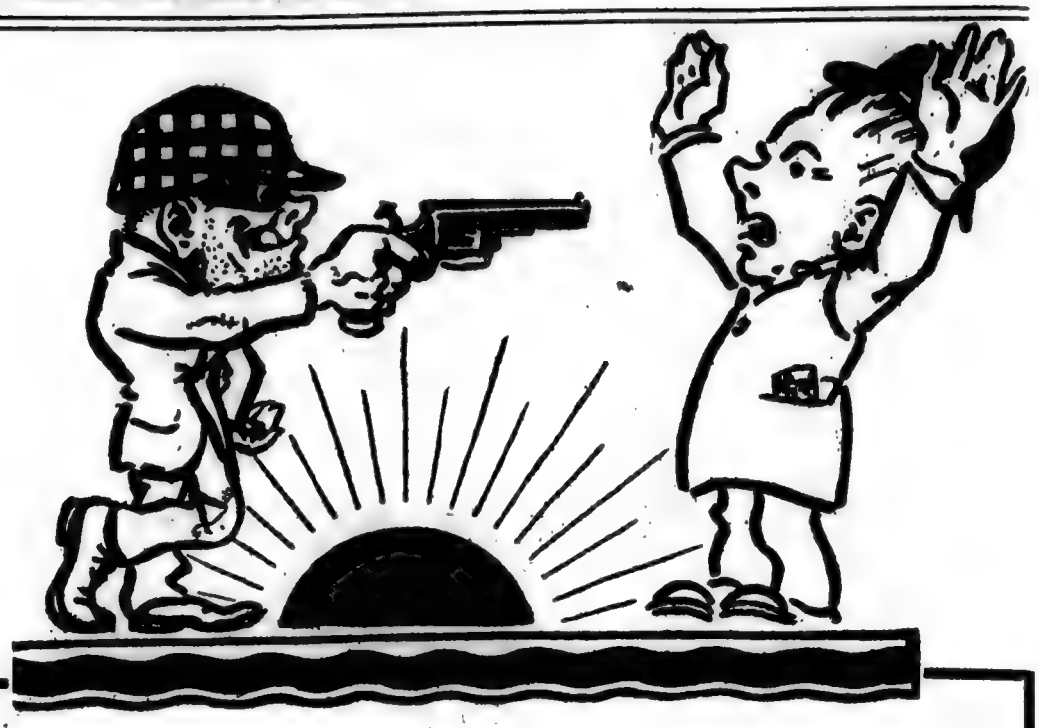
O. J. Friedman was among the visitors and urged the growers to buy their coal now. He also intimated that if the members of the organization would combine their orders, he could save them money in the placing of their aggregate needs.

Frank Oechslin Plans to Retire.

It is news of no little interest that Frank Oechslin plans to sell out and retire.

There are few men in the trade who have grown better stock or who have applied themselves more diligently, or a greater number of years, to the task in hand. Mr. Oechslin started with his savings as an employee, he spared no expense of care or equipment to grow the best of plants, he was always on the job, using his head as well as his hands, and he emerges with a record for continuous success and one of the most valuable greenhouse establishments in Chicago. He has announced his desire to sell all, including good will, to step out, with the intention of not again engaging in the trade in Chicago.

Mr. Oechslin is serving his country this week, as juryman in the Petit court.



Various Notes.

Two of the largest fortunes in America were united June 18 through the marriage of the daughter of J. Ogden Armour and the son of Banker Mitchell. The ceremony was performed at Mellody Farm, the Armour home at Lake Forest. The decoration was the largest of any wedding this year. The entire order went to C. A. Samuelson, Inc., and was carried out under the personal direction of President Edward Enders. The long hall in which the wedding ceremony was performed was profusely decorated with flowers and there were many uses of flowers and blooming plants throughout the mansion. Nine magnificent bouquets were required for the bridal party. The garden, where supper was served to 300 guests, was profusely decorated. Mr. Enders received many compliments for his work and visibly added to his reputation as an artist.

George J. Ball, Glen Ellyn sweet pea, calendula and aster specialist, is all smiles over the arrival of another son, born at Frances Willard hospital June 17. Mr. and Mrs. Ball now have four sons and a daughter.

E. C. Amling and Mrs. Amling returned to their new home near Los Angeles, Cal., June 20, after a visit of several weeks with relatives and old friends here.

PERCY JONES

WHOLESALE COMMISSION FLORISTS

30 East Randolph Street, CHICAGO

At the aquatic garden of George Schwing, 5660 Rockwell street, the display of fancy nymphæas in many fine varieties is approaching its best.

George Wienhoeber has disposed of his old Packard and last week bought a new Twin Six with silver trimmings, one of the classiest pleasure cars in town.

Albert Fuchs, who since his retirement from the florists' trade has devoted his efforts to real estate transactions, last week bought 303,000 square feet of vacant property at Fifty-first street and Homan avenue, for an indicated value of $150,000. Mr. Fuchs recently sold his well known Chateau apartments, at Broadway and Sheridan, in which the Briggs Floral Co. has a store, for more than a half million dollars.

Florists must give greater attention to the merchandising phase of their business in the coming two years if they are to pass the readjustment period successfully, is the belief of Edward Mallinson, manager of the Fleischman Floral Co. As a class, we need to be more merchants, though we need not necessarily become any the less artists.

Aaron T. Pyfer opened the vacation season. Last week he went to his old home at Dixon, Ill., for a short visit, after which he will make an automobile trip with his family, to the lake resorts of southern Wisconsin, returning to his business duties July 5.

Frank M. Johnson and Edward Galavan have spent a week at the Traverse City factory of the Johnson-Randall Co.

It develops that Paul Weiss has sold the beautifully located corner lot he recently acquired in River Forest, the purchaser being H. N. Bruns, who is having plans drawn with the intention of building a modern home on the site as soon as building conditions become to his liking.

The E. C. Amling Co., among other flowers, supplied George Wienhoeber with 1,000 stalks of candidum lilies for the Pirie wedding June 14. This was, in a floral way, one of the most important weddings in years and called for a unique as well as elaborate decoration. The candidums were placed in decorated pots to simulate growing plants.

B. Abrahamson took over 100,000 roses and carnations off the market June 18. They were used on the streets for the annual Jewish tag day June 19. Mr. Abrahamson, whose store is at 918 Blue Island avenue, has this order each telephone for a large part of its trade. Appreciating that an easily remembered telephone call is of great value in such a case, arrangements have been made for a new number. It is Buckingham 1000. All the Wittbold trucks carry large signs to familiarize the public with the new call.

N. J. Wietor and wife celebrated their twenty-fourth wedding anniversary June 19.

Johnson & Jensen, who do business opposite the Bryn Mawr station of the Illinois Central, report the best season they have yet had. In May the bedding department occupied all their facilities and thus far in June the cut flower demand has been unusually good. Nearly all their trade comes over the telephone and a cash customer is a rare bird, but collections are said to be good.

Judge and Mrs. W. J. Vesey, of Fort Wayne, Ind., were Chicago visitors last week.

BOSTON.

The Market.

No fault could possibly be found with the condition of the wholesale market of late. Numerous weddings, funerals, college commencements, graduations and class days have kept all hands busy and all stock possessing any quality has sold at satisfactory prices. After the present week there will be a lull, but June business this year has been equal to, if not superior to, any of which we have a record.

Roses have done well. Beauties have been in good demand and fancy Hadleys have sold at Beauty prices. Columbia and Premier have come next in favor and sold out easily. Ophelia is seen in great numbers, but the flowers open out so quickly that it affects their selling value. All other roses of decent quality have cleaned up satisfactorily. Carnations are poor in quality. The best make $2 to $3 per hundred. Many sell for much less. Sweet peas are poor. This week a few better quality blooms are coming from outdoors. The best flowers make $1 to $1.50 per hundred, but many are hard to sell; the same is true of short-stemmed marguerites

LINDLEY FLORIST BOX CO., QUALITY BOX MAKERS Marion, Ind.

Few calls came in for lilies, and callas are about over. Snapdragons are poor. Gypsophila is in active demand. Bachelor's buttons also sell well. Large quantities of delphiniums are coming in, almost more than the market can digest; also a variety of other harbaceous flowers. Peonies are all gone. Valley has sold quite well of late. Gladioli are getting abundant and prices are somewhat lower.

Cattleyas are decidedly scarce and are mostly gigas, which latter makes $24 per dozen. There are fair supplies of odontoglossums and miltonias, which are proving popular for wedding bouquets. Asparagus has met with a good sale of late.

Various Notes.

Carbone had the decorations, which were tastefully done, at St. Paul's church, Dedham, June 18, for the double wedding of Miss Mary Bavditch Rogers to Richard Saltonstall, and Miss Susan E. Rogers to David Howell Maynard. Pink rambler roses, blue larkspurs, lilies and evergreens were effectively used.

There was a splendid attendance June 21 at the ladies' night of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, about 250 being present. A splendid entertainment was provided by the committee, including a noted male quartette, a lady violinist, several soloists and a reader. The floral decorations provided were elaborate and beautiful. Seven new members were added at this meeting. The committee appointed to draw up resolutions on the death of James F. M. Farquhar was composed of Kenneth Finlayson, James Methven and W. N. Craig. It was voted to send a letter of sympathy and floral tribute to James Singer, who for many years entertained the club with songs.

The annual rose and strawberry show at Horticultural hall comes June 25 and 26. The dates are a little late for the best quality roses, due to the erratic season. Wilfrid Wheeler will lecture on "Strawberries" each afternoon of the exhibition.

W. N. Craig visited Providence June 17 and judged the June exhibition of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, held at Narragansett.

A news item of interest to retailers is that T. F. Galvin, Inc., will give up the commodions and luxurious Back bay store and conservatory and locate, September 1, in the store vacated by J. J. Casey, on Boylston street. Galvin's Back bay conservatory brought this firm into national prominence at the time it was built. Practically the whole of Boylston street near and beyond the present store is now occupied by automobile concerns and it is felt that a location nearer the business heart of the Back bay section will be better for business.

Early closing at the wholesale flower markets and commission houses, as well as seed stores, will go into force July 2.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Butterworth, of Framingham, are enjoying a vacation at Marblehead, Mass., where they can get the full benefit of the breezes from the broad Atlantic.

A number of peony specialists from a distance have been spending a few days visiting local growers. Some of our leading specialists, like E. J. Shaylor, A. H. Fewkes and George N. Smith, were unable to exhibit any flowers at the late show. F. A. Donahue, of Newton Lower Falls, a new specialist, however, made a good display and captured one or two prizes.

The finest white roses coming into the market are the Kaiserins from the W. H. Elliott Co., at Brighton.

Interest is growing in the annual picnic of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, to be held at Cunningham park, East Milton, July 21. Fine weather only is needed to secure a record attendance.

Stanley E. Duffill, for several years buyer for F. E. Palmer, of Brookline, has entered the employ of a landscape firm at Kalamazoo, Mich. He is a graduate of the Massachusetts Agricultural College.

The annual sweet pea exhibition will be held at Horticultural hall July 9 and 10. There will be lectures on "Sweet Peas and Their Culture Outdoors" each day by A. J. Jenkins, of Shrewsbury, a noted expert.

Vanicek Wins Suit.

The case of V. A. Vanicek against T. Suffern Tailer was heard before Judge George T. Brown and a jury in the Superior court last week and decision was given the plaintiff for $500 and costs and interest. Mr. Vanicek is proprietor of the Rhode Island Nurseries, at Portsmouth. He sued for $759 balance, alleged to be due on a book account of $1,259.94, for a grove of trees and work done for Mr. Tailer's estate at Ochre Point four or five years ago.

The bill was disputed and Mr. Tailer refused to pay more than $500.

Horticultural Society.

Announcement was made at the meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society last Tuesday evening that donations for special premiums had been received by the secretary from New York, Philadelphia and Boston firms, and that Mrs. C. Lorillard Spencer had again contributed the premiums to be used for the children's classes in the exhibitions given under the auspices of the society this year. The June exhibition will open June 28. The special premiums have been received from H. P. Winters & Co., New York; H. A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, and Thomas J. Grey Co., of Boston, Mass. There were two exhibits of sweet peas at the meeting, William Gray and William G. Taylor each staging eight varieties of the newer offerings, among Mr. Taylor's being a new variety, a sport from Constance Hinton, which he has named Susie Taylor, in honor of his wife. He was awarded a first-class certificate of merit, a cultural certificate and a gratuity of $2 for general display. Mr. Gray received a gratuity of $5 and a first-class certificate of merit on five varieties, Giant White, Mrs. Arnold Hitchcock, Rosabelle, Burpee and Hawlmark Pink.

Various Notes.

Wadley & Smythe have opened their branch store in the Casino block, on Bellevue avenue, for the summer.

Gibson was commissioned by B. L. Henin, previous to the latter's leaving for Europe, to place a wreath on the grave of the French admiral, de Tiernay, in Trinity churchyard, July 14.

Leikens, Inc., of New York, has opened his place on Bellevue avenue, which will be in charge of Captain Clifford again this year. Leikens, Inc., had the decorations for the wedding of Miss May S. Burdick, daughter of Congressman Clark H. Burdick, at Trinity church; roses, peonies and snowballs were used. W. H. M.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Anybody with the shadowiest of claims to floral distinction will tell you that the florists' business is not much after the middle of June. Yet the middle of June has passed and business is good. There is no gainsaying the fact that business is good. The supply is small, smaller than is usual in June, in everything except roses. Roses are more plentiful than usual, thanks to the newer varieties. They partly make up for the shortage in other things, notably in carnations, and for the absence of peonies.

Business is not evenly distributed. Some of the fashionable are doing more than usual, while some of the smaller shops and some of the stands are doing less than usual. This is due to an increase in weddings and a decrease in the regular cut flower buying.

Two summer stand-bys, Easter lilies and gladioli, are more plentiful. More fine varieties of the latter are coming in from outdoors. They sell well.

A Testimonial.

There was a delightful little surprise party given at the Hotel Adelphia on the afternoon of Wednesday, June 8.

With the present varieties there is any quantity of available at this time. When you need good Pink Roses, buy RUSSELL. When you buy this variety, you get the size, color, keeping and shipping quality and there is no other Rose that will meet all of these requirements at this time of the year. The price is reasonable.

EASTER LILIES

This is one of the most satisfactory items during the summer. The quality now is just as good as at any other time of the year. You should carry Lilies in stock, and recommend them to your customers.

GLADIOLI

are more plentiful, and we hope to have an ample supply from now on.

we carry in stock at all times, and your orders can be filled on short notice.

The Shrine Club members, or at least those of them who are famed in the world of flowers, gave a luncheon in honor of Walter Davis. The idea originated with Elmer W. Gaehring, who asked a few of the florists, who are Mr. Davis's clients so to speak, whether they would join with him in the presentation of a trifling tribute of regard. They cheerfully agreed and Mr. Gaehring selected a thirty-second degree consistory ring, set with a beautiful white stone. Mr. Davis was completely taken by surprise and when Charles H. Grakelow presented the ring with a complimentary speech made on behalf of a few Masonic friends, Mr. Davis was greatly moved. The party consisted of Ross Davis, brother of the guest of honor, the noted fire marshal and the only person present who was not a florist; Fred Cramer, Harry C. Eisele, Ralph E. Faust, John C. Gracey, Elmer W. Gaehring, Charles H. Grakelow, Alvah R. Jones, Charles W. Moody, Joseph G. Neidinger, Louis Mien and Victor I. Ridenour.

Another Party.

Monday evening, June 13, Charles H. Grakelow entertained some fifty of his masculine friends from the wholesale cut flower commission and florists' supply houses at his home, at Broad and Cumberland streets. There was vaudeville entertainment given by some of the leading lights of the theatrical profession, a fine collation and an atmosphere of hearty good will; it made the affair thoroughly enjoyable.

The Fragrance of the Beauty.

At the alumni meeting of the University of Pennsylvania, held June 10, the three leading speakers were students from China, Japan and the Philippines. All three were sent by their governments to learn our language and customs. The Chinese student, who has had two years at Yale and now holds the Harrison scholarship, told a story of a student at Yale, a fellow countryman; it was intended to show the difficulty in mastering our language. This Chinese student called on a young lady, to whom he presented a bunch of American Beauty roses, with these words: "These American Beauty roses are beautiful as you are; they smell sweet as you smell; they will fade, but you will smell always."

Peace Day.

A southern publication has sent letters to the leading florists of this city asking them to support the idea of making November 11 another great flower day, to be called International Flower day. Edward Reid suggests that it might be well to make the name Peace day, as more likely to touch popular fancy. Mr. Reid heartily commends the idea, believing that it will be an excellent one, both from an idealistic and from a business standpoint.

Mr. Reid is responsible for the selection of the white carnation as the emblem of Mothers' day. It happened in this wise: Miss Jarvis called on Mr. Reid when she first advocated wearing a flower in honor of mother and asked his advice as to the choice of the flower. It so chanced that Mr. Reid had a large stock of fine white carnations on hand; he produced a bunch, selected a large and perfect bloom and presented it to Miss Jarvis, calling her attention to its purity, so fitting for this emblem. Miss Jarvis accepted this suggestion and made the white carnation the special flower for Mothers' day. From that time to this its antics are too well known to need description here.

Early closing goes into effect in many houses in the center of the city this week; 4 p. m. daily and 1 p. m. on Saturday is popular.

Sydney H. Bayersdorfer is making extensive improvements at H. Bayersdorfer & Co.'s. A new building has been erected on Twelfth street for workshops and a new office is being fitted up. Mr. Bayersdorfer says that business is exceedingly brisk.

Like that of the American polo team, the success of Berger Bros. this season is attributed to team work. The casual caller is held by the hearty "Ha-Ha" greeting of William G. Stephens; the critical customer is captivated by the lovely manners of Stuart H. Miller; the afflicted are cheered by the sympathy of Edmund Dornheim, while visitors from up the state and from Manhattan are attracted by the pleasing personality of John Berger. Phil.

FRAT-M'S

Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-M's a trial; you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address

Flower Shows.

Three flower shows were held the second week of June. The first one, coming June 15 and 16, was a peony show, put on largely by some of the commercial peony growers. This was held in the St. Paul hotel and, in spite of good publicity, was not well attended. For some reason this particular location has not proved a good place for flower shows. D. W. C. Ruff, of Bald Eagle, showed over 200 varieties. A. J. Wilkus, of West St. Paul, is a newcomer at the peony shows, but took a good many of the first premiums with some excellent stock. Holm & Olson, of St. Paul, set up a fine exhibit, but not in competition. The Franklin Nursery, of Minneapolis, also made a good exhibit. Smaller exhibits were put up by Mrs. H. B. Tillotson, of Excelsior, and A. C. Arny, of St. Anthony Park. June 16 and 17, the First National bank of St. Paul put on an amateur peony show, although some professionals made exhibits; among them were A. J. Wilkus and D. W. C. Ruff. This show was seen by thousands of people because of its location in the banking section of the city and in one of the largest banks.

Friday, June 17, the annual summer picnic and flower show of the State Horticultural Society was held at University Farm. An excellent showing of garden flowers and peonies was made, in spite of an extremely hot day, following three hot days. Some 200 people attended the picnic and listened to impromptu talks early in the afternoon. Something like 1,000 visitors saw the show, which was staged in the gymnasium. D. W. C. Ruff, A. J. Wilkus, Mrs. H. B. Tillotson, H. F. Baker and A. C. Arny put up good exhibits of peonies. A. C. Arny also had a small exhibit of iris. One of the finest showings of outdoor roses ever staged at the summer meeting was put on at this show. Probably 250 different vases of some fifty or sixty varieties were staged. H. F. Baker, of Minneapolis, made a fine showing of perennials. A good many single entries of annuals and perennials were made by amateurs. Altogether some 1,200 to 1,500 vases of garden flowers were staged. These flowers were sent to the local hospitals after the show. Holm & Olson, of St. Paul, made a small but effective exhibit of phlox and peonies in baskets. These were not in competition, however. C. A. Mathes and Clarence Carey, of St. Paul; H. F. Baker and W. F. Christman, of Minneapolis, and Charles Nordeen, of Lake City, judged the different classes.

greenhouses to grow more of those fine roses which he has been putting on the market. C.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Many of the florists, especially those on the east side, enjoyed a busy week, because of commencement at Brown University and Pembroke, the women's college. For the first time in several years, potted and decorative plants, palms, ferns, etc., were used in the decorations for the individual teas and receptions as well as for the general decorations, while baskets and bouquets of cut flowers were in great profusion.

More than fifty weddings added to the demand and kept the retailers on the jump. While there was an abundance of flowers in the market, unusual demands for special varieties for special occasions necessitated more or less maneuvering to meet the calls satisfactorily.

Florist's Silver Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Fraser, of Fair View avenue, Phenix, celebrated their silver wedding June 15, at their home. A family reunion was held during the day, and after a dinner there was a reception at which more than 100 friends extended hearty congratulations. The home was attractively decorated with roses, carnations, palms and ferns. Mr. Fraser has been engaged in the florists' business in the Pawtucket valley for the last thirty-one years, his present store being on Washington street, Arctic.

Various Notes.

E. I. Roffee, at Belleville Station, has several thousand celery plants, Paris Golden and Easy. He also has a large number of bedding plants.

George Tedeschi has been granted a permit by the building inspector to erect a greenhouse at 26 Hawkins street.

William Doel, of Pascoag, was a recent visitor in town, purchasing supplies.

The cases of Morris Rosenberg against Edgar L. Nock and of Horace M. Williams against the Everett Forestry Co., were on the calendar of the Superior court on appeals from the District court for June 16, but were continued for reassignment.

The store of William Bowers, Washington street, was damaged by smoke during a fire in an adjacent store last week. His loss will amount to several hundred dollars.

Miss Fannie Smith, daughter of Charles Smith, of the Eastern Wreath Co., was one of the graduates at Brown University last week. Miss Smith has assisted her father on his books during her college course.

O'Connor made a handsome, large casket cover of roses and maidenhair for the funeral of Ralph Hamilton.

The Colonial Flower Shoppe had several good wedding orders, decorations, cut flowers and bouquets.

E. E. King, of Attleboro, has been busy the last two weeks on funeral work.

William Bowers had the decorations at the Hotel Dreyfus on the occasion of the banquet to Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt, given by the Elks on Flag day.

Vincenzo Vessello is soon to join the benedicts, Miss Maria C. Simonelli being the bride-to-be.

William J. Flynn, of the High Street Greenhouses, Bristol, has nearly 8,000 fine geranium plants, Helen Michell, Poitevine and other choice varieties. W. H. M.

FOR SALE

ONE OF THE LARGEST AND MOST SUCCESSFUL PLANT-GROWING ESTABLISHMENTS IN AMERICA

I am offering for sale my entire business, which includes two large ranges, the Quincy Street range and the Harlem range. Both places are devoted exclusively to potted stock. The business will be sold just as it stands, buildings, land, equipment and stock, and along with it will go the good will that has been built up by years of growing the best pot plants in Chicago. I will give possession as soon as sale is closed.

The Quincy Street place is only five miles from the Chicago loop. It is in fine condition. Nothing has been spared in putting in improvements and keeping it in good order.

The Harlem place is practically new; nearly all of it has been built recently. The glass in this range covers 75,000 square feet. It has all modern equipment: concrete benches, coal unloading machinery, etc. The centralized heating plant with two new boilers that have just been installed has a capacity for a place twice as large. There are ten acres of land connected with this place, excellent for growing outdoor stock, especially carnations. It also has a good location, at the outskirts of Chicago, not far from the Quincy Street establishment.

The business is well established, is one of the largest and most successful of its kind in the United States, and is well-known throughout the country. It is in an excellent location, having all city conveniences, good transportation facilities, and a ready local market for all that can be produced. Excluding two months of the year, cash sales alone cover the pay roll. There is plenty of room for expansion and even a larger business can be developed.

This is an unusual opportunity, but it must be a man of experience who is a capable manager and who can produce high grade stock. It would be a good proposition for two or three experienced men, commanding enough capital to form a corporation.

This is not a small proposition, but a large one, that requires a substantial amount of money, and that can be handled only by responsible persons, having the ability to successfully manage a big business. Others will not be considered.

Wire, write, or phone for appointment, and arrangements will be made for a complete investigation.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Echo, Ore.—Pelmulder's Floral Gardens, operated by Jay Pelmulder, have been moved from Walla Walla, Wash., to Echo.

Grandview, Wash.—In The Review for May 26, the address of William Davey was erroneously reported as Grandview, Mich. His state is Washington, where he has erected a greenhouse.

Los Angeles, Cal.—John Y. Lambert has not been engaged in the florists' business for over ten years. But the call of flowers has proved too much for him, and he is now entering the wholesale and retail business under the firm name of John Y. Lambert Co., Los Angeles, Cal.

El Cajon, Cal.—William Livesey, who moved here from San Diego, Cal., has purchased ten acres of land and has erected a lath house. He will do business under the firm name of the Sunkist Gardens, specializing in geranium cuttings and Asparagus Sprengeri and A. plumosus for the trade.

ROSES REACH SANTA ANA.

The carload of rose plants pictured in The Review last week reached Amling Bros., at Santa Ana, Cal., in record time, the journey from Richmond, Ind., taking just four days. The plants were shipped by the Joseph H. Hill Co. They were packed in a refrigerator express car and, says Ernst C. Amling, on arrival were just as though they had been taken direct from a greenhouse bench. He expressed great pleasure at the excellent condition of the plants and the high quality of the stock. Amling Bros. made record time, also, in planting the four houses now completed. The 41,000 plants, including 10,000 bench plants, were set in two and one-half days. Cutting is expected to begin by the middle of August.

CALIFORNIA'S BIG EXPOSITION.

Preparations for the big show to be held at Exposition park, Los Angeles, October 20 to 23, under the auspices of the California Association of Nurserymen, are well under way. The sunken garden, comprising roughly seven acres, has been planned and is being constructed by O. W. Howard, head of the landscape department of Howard & Smith. That he has his big charge well in hand was shown by a recent visit. The beds have been arranged and the dahlia growers are already busy putting their plants out. Other plantings will continue in due course and a magnificent display will be ready for the visitors when the big show opens. The flower show proper, consisting of ornamental plants and cut flowers, will be held in the great armory and here also will be shown the seedsmen's exhibits. West of the armory will be the fruit show, the choicest of California's fruits being exhibited in attractive palm-roofed structures in forms agreeable to the management, which will insist on sightly and attractive exhibits in every case.

A preliminary premium list has been sent out, containing a long list of cash prizes, cups and other valuable trophies to be competed for. The cash prizes are large enough to stimulate good competition, as, for instance, $50, $30, and $20 for first, second and third prizes, respectively, for thirty-six cut mums in six varieties, and $100 for the best exhibit of pot mums. Cups valued at $100 are given as first prizes for groups of flowering and foliage stove and greenhouse plants, ornamentals for outdoor planting and collection of palms, respectively. Another good prize is $250 for a display of greenhouse cut roses and this should bring a good competition. The second prize for this is $150 or cup of equal value. There are over 400 classes in all and the prizes in every class are liberal.

As already noted, the California Association of Nurserymen is getting the hearty support of the Los Angeles park commission, the city and county of Los Angeles and the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce in this show and, undoubtedly, it will be the finest and most representative exhibition of California horticultural produce ever brought together.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

A better tone in the retail business was noted last week, but there was far too much stock on the market to permit it to be a profitable week for the growers. Early asters have made their appearance, but the quality is not good as yet. Dahlias are improving daily and gladioli were never better or in greater variety. The demand is fairly good and the flowers make a fine showing in the stores. Valley has come into its own again and both quality and demand are satisfactory. Small flowers continue overplentiful. The purple Buddleia magnifica sells well as a subject for showy baskets and the same statement applies to various delphiniums. Alterations in the stores are beginning, but will be pushed faster, probably, after July 1.

Visit of Ammann and Swenson.

Apparently little notice was received of the coming of J. F. Ammann and H. V. Swenson on their tour in favor of an advertising scheme for florists similar to that adopted in several eastern cities, but Secretary George Hall, of the Los Angeles Florists' Club, did the best possible under the circumstances and about seventy-five members of the trade met at the market of the American Florists' Exchange to hear Mr. Ammann's speech in favor of the plan and to witness the interesting advertising slides so well described by Mr. Swenson. Mr. Ammann held the interest of the audience right from the start and his trenchant remarks showed even the most skeptical that such a scheme was of the greatest possible benefit to the trade in general and the most equitable way of raising funds for advertising.

At a preliminary meeting a pro-forma agreement had been drawn up and the visitors had been entertained at dinner at the Athletic Club. Those present, besides the guests, were A. F. Borden, Roy F. Wilcox, J. Rolleri, F. Sperry, Walter Armacost, J. N. Williamson, George Hall and T. H. Wright.

The agreement is practically the same as that used in other cities and provides for a small percentage of the sales of growers, wholesalers and retailers being assigned to a local fund to be used as thought advisable by the board of directors. As noted by Mr. Ammann, there are local difficulties everywhere in putting such a campaign over, but they are by no means insurmountable here, any more than anywhere else. They can only be surmounted, however, by a loyal spirit of coöperation, the one thing needed. A great many of those present signed the agreement and many more doubtless will when it is presented to them. It

Various Notes.

Mrs. Bailey, wife of Henry Bailey, the well known freesia and plumosus grower of Montebello, left last week for a trip to England. Both Mr. and Mrs. Bailey are natives of the "tight little isle."

M. A. Poss, of the Floral City Nursery, of San Mateo, was in this city last week, purchasing stock. George Chandler, of the Howard & Smith force, was piloting Mr. Poss around.

Prechtl & Woitella, of Montebello, are showing fine Buddleia variabilis at the American Florists' Exchange and it meets with a good demand. Mr. Prechtl says that although some of the flower seed sowings, owing to heavy rains, had to be repeated at El Monte, there is now a good stand of everything. They are busy removing heather and other stock from Montebello and also digging freesias.

Among the visitors to this city is Charles D. Otis, of Lake Charles, La., who is spending a few days taking side trips from Los Angeles. This is a part of his 8,000-mile trip and he will afterward visit the Pacific northwest, returning by Salt Lake, Denver and Kansas City.

A fine spike of the Pershing gladiolus was shown around the exchange by Frank Warner, who is growing a stock of it at his Inglewood place. It looks like a most promising variety.

Among forty pieces made by the Athletic Club Florist for a recent funeral was a representation of a Bible. A "book of thoughts" was what was asked for, and this was selected and beautifully worked out, principally with valley. Claude G. Leonardini, of the staff here, is a happy man these days, as his fiancee, Miss Solari, has arrived at San Pedro. The wedding is to be looked for about New Year's.

Stanley Purdie is on a fishing trip in the mountains beyond Bishop.

In the Dostal-Wolters window is a most charming basket of water lilies and the whole store has a fine appearance, reflecting great credit on everyone concerned.

Harry Hanson continues his fine work with baskets and draperies in artistic blending at the Lichtenberg store, where business is reported good. Preparations for removal to West Seventh street are in a forward condition.

WE CLOSE SUNDAYS

Mr. Cut Flower Grower! Plant Fraser's Strain, they are first in size and otherwise.

CALENDULA King of Kings (Fraser's Production)

We believe this strain of Calendula has a great future before it. A Golden progeny of the famous Double Orange King. Color: Dazzling orange. The flowers are larger and the blue-black disk smaller, with broad overlaid petals. Habit: 2 feet, with fine erect heads and stiff stems, and for these reasons will be in great demand for the flower market. Trade pkt., $1.00; Ounce, $2.50.

NEW MYOSOTIS President Harding Blue: (Fraser's Introduction) Winter-flowering.

This new Winter-flowering Myosotis (Forget-me-not) is the result of a carefully thought-out cross, said by some experts to surpass any other strain yet offered. Color: Harding Blue. Habit: Bold and branching, forming open bushes from 18 to 20 inches high and of equal diameter, extra vigorous sprays of bloom last long as cut flowers. Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 Trade pkts., $2.00.

COSMOS Extra Early Single Dahlia-Flowered (Fraser's Selection)

A very fine strain, the result of many years' careful selection. Its points for earliness, size, color and productiveness are good all round. Height: 4 feet, with flowers of splendid substance, resembling giant single Dahlia flowers and stiff stems, unusual in the older varieties. The most profitable cutting cosmos in cultivation. We are offering 2 separate colors: Dahlia White, Dahlia Pink, Dahlia Mixed. Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 Trade pkts., $2.00.

large icebox at their store on East Fifth street and several other changes are to be made this year. Mr. Hall says that, owing to the cool weather, few complaints are heard as to arrival of stock at distant points.

Shipping business keeps up well at the store of W. Armacost & Co., but the head shipper, Mr. Royce, is looking forward to a fishing trip in the mountains north of Owens lake. It seems a pity that a young man whose word has always been accepted in everything should take up fishing. We shall see how his veracity will stand the test.

Rose planting has begun and is being vigorously pushed at the new range of Amling Bros., at Santa Ana.

The demand for valley at the store of the E. C. Amling Co. continues brisk and the stock is arriving in fine shape.

John R. Derniston, of Huntington Park, is bringing in fine dahlias to the Florists' Exchange. His Snowdrift, a pure white, is a beauty; so, also, is Helen Durenbaugh, a pretty combination of pink and yellow. Both are excellent commercial kinds for cutting.

Herbert Bateman has sent out announcements that, until the opening of his new "Shop of Floral Art," he will be located at 380 South Los Angeles street, where he can be reached by telephone 11002.

John Bodger, Jr., left Los Angeles this week with David Burpee on a trip east. Mr. Bodger will go to Montreal and other Canadian cities, taking in the St. Lawrence river and Thousand islands.

According to a cablegram received by Fred Howard, of Howard & Smith, they have again been awarded the gold medal in the international rose competition at the Bagatelle Gardens, Paris, France, for the best new rose, with competition open to all countries and all comers. Two years ago Los Angeles rose had this honor. This time it is Seedling 252, since named Lolita Armour. The habit is somewhat similar to that of Los Angeles. The color is burnt orange and copper, with a golden yellow base. It is extremely full and a fine garden rose. This is another of Fred Howard's Pernetiana crosses.

The Rose Festival.

The 1921 Portland rose festival ushered itself in with cool weather and a large number of visitors from all parts of the country. From a trade standpoint, the most interesting event was the rose show in the Auditorium. A fund had been provided by which all the florists of the city participated in setting up displays of plants and cut flowers. Admittance being free, there was a large attendance and it is thought that the florists who exhibited received much benefit from the publicity. The Tonseth Floral Co., the Swetland Flower Shop, Niklas & Son and Clarke Bros. made use of flowering and ornamental plants, as well as cut flowers, in their exhibits. In the exhibits of Smith's Flower Shop and Martin & Forbes, cut flowers in baskets and vases predominated. The growers were well represented by displays from Fred Young, the Holden Floral Co., the Wilson-Crout-Gehr Co. and Rahn & Herbert. Numerous smaller exhibits were also noted.

Amateurs exhibited in a separate class and some fine roses were to be seen. The first prize for a basket of roses was won with the variety Mrs. E. G. Hill. The finest bloom in the show was a specimem of William R. Smith.

A new seedling climbing rose, produced by Dr. Walter Van Fleet, Washington, D. C., and being tested in the Portland gardens of the American Rose Society, was named and christened in appropriate exercises one afternoon. The new rose will be known as Miss Mary Wallace and is named after the daughter of the present secretary of agriculture at Washington. Dr. Van Fleet has been awarded the City of Portland gold medal for this new climbing rose. Hugh Dickson, of Belfast, Ireland, was awarded the City of Portland gold medal for Golden Spray as the best new bush variety. Howard & Smith, of Los Angeles, received a silver medal as second prize for their new variety, Wm. F. Dreer.

The floral parade provided a large amount of work for all the local florists. Everyone had all he could possibly do. The Tonseth Floral Co. decorated the queen's float, which was provided by the Chamber of Commerce. The grand prize of $500 went to a car decorated by Clarke Bros. Other cars, done by Smith's Flower Shop, Lubliner, Clarke Bros. and Martin & Forbes, were among the prize winners. The Van Kirk Floral Co. supplied the largest part of the flowers used on the elaborate Pasadena float in the floral parade. It was designed and made by representatives from Pasadena and received first prize in its section.

Various Notes.

J. F. Ammann and H. V. Swenson reached the city on the morning of Memorial day. They spent the day sightseeing under the guidance of James Forbes, J. B. Pilkington and E. J. Steele. An automobile ride on the Columbia river highway occupied most of the time, along with a chicken dinner at Crown Point Chalet. On the following evening there was a special meeting of the Oregon Florists' Club, preceded by a course dinner at the Imperial hotel. Mr. Ammann and Mr. Swenson made a splendid impression with their talks on advertising, although, in the case of Portland, it was not necessary to organize an advertising fund, for our club already had one.

Henry Clemens, of Newberg, Ore., supplied a great many sweet peas used on automobiles in the floral parade.

The Holden Floral Co. had a large cut of Spanish iris the last two weeks. This firm has repainted all its houses this spring.

Julius Schnapp has been supplying considerable green goods and outdoor flowers to local florists of late, also cigars. Mr. Schnapp is easily the dean of the local florists' craft.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Local retailers report business as all that can be expected for this time of the year and some say that orders are running somewhat above former June averages, but a surplus of stock makes the situation rather depressing for the wholesalers and growers. It is decidedly a buyers' market, with quantities of good, medium and poor stock to be had at almost any price. Some improvement is expected shortly, however, as the rose crop is starting to go off a little and cooler weather will check the great abundance of miscellaneous outdoor summer flowers.

Another week or ten days will probably see good roses greatly reduced in supply, their exit being hastened by the hot spell of weather earlier in the month. Premier is getting considerable support in the local market, but some of the large retailers have not been won over entirely to it yet, claiming that it does not hold up so well as Russell or Columbia.

Gladioli are about at the height of their season. The offerings are heavy, the quality good and the demand fairly brisk, considering all the other varieties of seasonable stock with which they have to compete. Dahlias are the latest addition to the list. They are in limited supply yet, however, and do not cut much figure in the flood of coreopsis, gaillardias, marigolds, stocks, pansies, cornflowers, delphinium, etc.

In spite of the general oversupply of flowers, orchids are at a premium. Some dealers are having considerable difficulty in filling their orders for wedding bouquets and corsages. None is shown in the windows, effort being made to divert attention to other flowers as much as possible. Gardenias and lilies of the valley are in ample supply.

Strawflowers are gaining an important position in this market. Many of the growers and shippers are finding them a valuable asset to fill in the summer gap in long-distance shipping. The movement this summer will far exceed any previous year.

Various Notes.

The Paris Floral Co., 190 Geary street, opened its doors June 14, at which time many of the friends of Jack Lavazollo, the proprietor, called to look over his new place and to congratulate him on getting started in business for himself. There are still a few finishing touches to be put on the store, but it presents a pleasing appearance and is getting considerable attention for a new establishment starting at this time of the year.

B. M. Joseph and family are taking an automobile trip to Seattle, Wash. At the store, business is reported brisk, particularly wedding and funeral work. George Wagner, of the decorating staff, has been nearly laid up with a bad case of sunburn.

N. F. Baldocchi, of Podesta & Baldocchi, says they never before had such a call for wedding bouquets as they have had this year. This demand has brought sales for the first half of June ahead of the entire month last year. Funeral work has been active also. Mr. Baldocchi is leaving shortly with his family on an automobile tour up the coast of California and to Klamath Falls, Ore.

I. W. Saake, formerly identified with the florists' business in this city and now residing at Los Angeles, has been renewing acquaintances in the trade here. His wife is with him.

Henry Avansino, manager of the E. W. McLellan Co., is spending some little time this month at his nursery across the bay at San Lorenzo, where he is putting up two new greenhouses. These are the first new houses to go up in this section for some time, owing to the scarcity and high price of materials. Five houses will be built on his place. It is understood that the new ones, as well as the old, will be planted to roses principally.

B. B. Norton, brother-in-law of J. A. Axell and partner with him in business, is on a two weeks' vacation with his family. In July Mr. Axell plans a trip to Minnesota to visit his parents, as he has not seen them since 1916.

Albert O. Stein is vacationing at Catalina island. Many wedding and small dinner decorations are keeping the force busy.

that business while Mr. and Mrs. Darbee are taking an automobile trip into Oregon, plan to start on a similar tour as soon as the latter get back.

Mr. Raymond, of the Garden City Pottery Co., San Jose, Cal., was in San Francisco and reported that he has had no difficulty in selling all the flower pots he can turn out.

Vacations are keeping busy those of the staff who remain at F. C. Jaeger & Son's.

San Francisco growers have taken steps to organize a company for the manufacture of their own pots, in the hope of producing them cheaper than they can buy them. It is likely the factory will be located either at Richmond, an industrial suburb on the east side of San Francisco bay, or in Visitacion valley, south of San Francisco.

Angelo J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., worked hard for the big Booster ball and festival held in the civic auditorium June 18, launching a gigantic advertising campaign for northern and central California. He served as chairman of the committee on decorations and also on the floor committee at the dance. A feature of the decorations was the transformation of the Polk street hall of the auditorium into a flower garden, in which were set refreshment booths of all descriptions.

M. M.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Summer quietness has been the rule of late. Increasing quantities of water lilies and an improvement in the quality of outdoor sweet peas are the only changes to report. However, there was enough funeral and general decoration work at the close of the week so that the trade did not have to carry over large surpluses.

The usual interest in early deliveries of water lilies has been manifested, and practically every shop has used these flowers as a whole or part of its window display. Other seasonal items which have been featured include some fine snapdragon, Siberian iris, some stocks, columbine and oriental poppies.

There has been a small cut of orchids, but it has been ample to meet the demands, since most of the recent weddings have been simple. One shop handled a wedding last week by using the different shades of peonies for the bride and bridesmaids and sweet peas for the flower girl. The cut of peonies is increasing rapidly and, from present indications, may easily lead to a market glut. Gladioli are also improving steadily, both as to quantity and quality. Among the short-stemmed items, calendulas and anemones have been common and sweet peas continue a favorite.

Ulrich Brunner roses are in good supply and selling freely, deliveries being all that could be desired. Locally grown Cecile Brunners are more plentiful, and there have been a better delivery and sale of Russell. Butterfly and Columbia are also plentiful.

Carnations are showing more strength of stem, and somewhat better color, but irregular weather conditions are affecting full color development on all outside offerings.

Taking decorations as a whole, graduations have been about the best source of trade income, and those who have fairly accurate figures say that there has been a greater use of flowers this season than last. This they attribute to the fact that prices are still high on books or jewelry, and the person intending to put only a small amount of money into the graduation gift can secure the best showing with flowers.

Various Notes.

Interest in the work of the publicity committee of the Seattle Florists' Association shows no sign of abating, and more and more indications are seen that the coöperative advertising is going to succeed. Five more of the growers have affiliated themselves with the organization to pay their percentage of sales.

William Desmond, of Risdon & Desmond; Gus V. Peterson and Mrs. Peterson and W. Wallmark, of the City Floral & Seed Co., Everett, were among the northwestern florists who spent the recent week-end at Vancouver.

that business while Mr. and Mrs. Darbee are taking an automobile trip into Oregon, plan to start on a similar tour as soon as the latter get back.

Mr. Raymond, of the Garden City Pottery Co., San Jose, Cal., was in San Francisco and reported that he has had no difficulty in selling all the flower pots he can turn out.

Vacations are keeping busy those of the staff who remain at F. C. Jaeger & Son's.

San Francisco growers have taken steps to organize a company for the manufacture of their own pots, in the hope of producing them cheaper than they can buy them. It is likely the factory will be located either at Richmond, an industrial suburb on the east side of San Francisco bay, or in Visitacion valley, south of San Francisco.

Angelo J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., worked hard for the big Booster ball and festival held in the civic auditorium June 18, launching a gigantic advertising campaign for northern and central California. He served as chairman of the committee on decorations and also on the floor committee at the dance. A feature of the decorations was the transformation of the Polk street hall of the auditorium into a flower garden, in which were set refreshment booths of all descriptions.

M. M.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Summer quietness has been the rule of late. Increasing quantities of water lilies and an improvement in the quality of outdoor sweet peas are the only changes to report. However, there was enough funeral and general decoration work at the close of the week so that the trade did not have to carry over large surpluses.

The usual interest in early deliveries of water lilies has been manifested, and practically every shop has used these flowers as a whole or part of its window display. Other seasonal items which have been featured include some fine snapdragon, Siberian iris, some stocks, columbine and oriental poppies.

There has been a small cut of orchids, but it has been ample to meet the demands, since most of the recent weddings have been simple. One shop handled a wedding last week by using the different shades of peonies for the bride and bridesmaids and sweet peas for the flower girl. The cut of peonies is increasing rapidly and, from present indications, may easily lead to a market glut. Gladioli are also improving steadily, both as to quantity and quality. Among the short-stemmed items, calendulas and anemones have been common and sweet peas continue a favorite.

Ulrich Brunner roses are in good supply and selling freely, deliveries being all that could be desired. Locally grown Cecile Brunners are more plentiful, and there have been a better delivery and sale of Russell. Butterfly and Columbia are also plentiful.

Carnations are showing more strength of stem, and somewhat better color, but irregular weather conditions are affecting full color development on all outside offerings.

Taking decorations as a whole, graduations have been about the best source of trade income, and those who have fairly accurate figures say that there has been a greater use of flowers this season than last. This they attribute to the fact that prices are still high on books or jewelry, and the person intending to put only a small amount of money into the graduation gift can secure the best showing with flowers.

S. A. F. NEWS

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

National Publicity Campaign.

The members of the publicity committee are getting their plans in shape for the forthcoming publicity drive in the magazines, their only anxiety now being as to the wherewithal for financing their effort. As has been said before, the money required must actually be in hand; hence their concern. A good many guarantees are still to be discharged, and once more we urge all those who have pledged themselves to send checks covering their pledges without further delay. There has been plenty of evidence lately to show that the slogan is worth all we can expend on it. In cartoons, editorial headlines and in other ways it has been featured. "They said it with flowers" is now a common headline used to cover public functions of various kinds, and the dear public sits up and takes notice of it. The head of our nation was recently cartooned in a prominent New York daily as "Saying It with Flowers."

The campaign fund has been augmented by the following subscriptions, since our last report:

Fisher & McGrath, New Castle, Pa...	$ 25.00
George W. Marshall, Okmulgee, Okla..	5.00
S. C. Derrick, Cooperstown, N. Y.....	5.00
B. J. Macklin, Cambridge, Mass.....	5.00
Cleveland Cut Flower Co., Cleveland, Ohio	50.00
W. A. Worrel, Pocatello, Idaho.....	10.00
Eldred Flower Shop, Pasadena, Cal....	10.00
G. W. Frisch & Son, Dayton, O.....	10.00
Hugo Teute, Rochester, N. Y.....	5.00
Groffe & Dresel, Chicago, Ill.....	10.00
W. E. Day Co., Syracuse, N. Y.....	10.00
C. E. Rossiter & Son, Sunbury, Pa....	5.00
Oregon Florists' Club Assn., Portland, Ore.	125.00
Doswell Floral Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind...	10.00
August L. Kroner, Quincy, Ill.....	5.00
Electric City Conservatory, Great Falls, Mont.	10.00
Ben Boldt, Denver, Colo.....	10.00
	$ 310.00
Previously reported	25,188.60
Total	$25,498.60

All who have not yet subscribed to the fund are assured that there could be no better time than now to render their support. The big publicity effort about to be made will be governed entirely by the amount of money available for it, and the greater it can be made, the greater the resulting benefit.

National Flower Show.

The plan of the trade section of the big show, to be held in Cleveland next March, is completed, and plates are ready for the printer, so that it is now only a matter of days before prints will be ready for mailing to those likely to be interested.

Although the guarantee fund covering the show's finances is practically closed, a subscription from W. D. Howard, Milford, Mass., is this week reported, making the fund total $20,657.

The Washington Convention.

The Ladies' Society of American Florists has prepared a folder which will surely interest the ladies who are thinking of attending the convention and should convince not a few others that it would be a splendid idea to plan to make the trip. There is no more interesting city in the United States to visit than Washington and, with a large

S. A. F. MEMBERSHIP DRIVE.

Another Letter.

The week beginning June 26 has not been officially designated for the workers in any special phase of the florists' industry, but the drive for new members in the S. A. F. will continue. Affiliated organizations, salesmen, etc., have all had their week in which to put forth special effort in order to boost the roster of members. But for the week starting June 26 a letter has been sent out to all connected with the S. A. F. in any way, urging that each and every one do his part in the endeavor to coax new members into the fold. The letter reads as follows:

The drive is still on. Wake up! Oh, yes, we are nearing the halfway mark; a time when there is great danger of lagging too much. Now, do not wait for "George to do it," but do it yourself. See your neighbor; it will give you an excuse to talk to him if you have not been on speaking terms. Or, if you can't get up courage for so hard a task, write some friend you know at a distance and get him to join. By all means get somebody. Many "somebodies" will be still better. If they refuse you once, try, try again. That's salesmanship.

The harder you have to work to get

Mystery or Mastery

With apologies and appreciations to our friend Henry Penn of Boston, I want to say a word on this subject.

What goes biggest in business these days—is it the product that is surrounded by mystery? Or is it the one that has opened its doors and shown all comers the mastery of its making? Who are the big men in the florist business today, those who are ever talking to fellow florists mysteriously about their methods and cautioning their employees against letting anybody know anything? Or are they the generous hearted, broad minded men who have such mastery over their business that they have grasped the fullest meaning of the word cooperation?

Who do you help, the man who helps you, when he can't help it?
Or the Sunny Jim who helps you whenever he sees half a chance to help?
Who of us wouldn't like to be a Penn, a Breitmeyer, a Schling, a Gude, a Fred Brown, a Danker?

Which men are getting the most F. T. D. business?
Surely not the pot-bound ones.

A STORY WITH A LESSON.

The following tale expresses, beyond doubt, the conditions of florists of today as against former times. Now, more than ever, it illustrates why we should continue both our national publicity campaign and our local advertising.

We may not always find the road quite so smooth as at present and may need our reserves for future building. Hence this story from King's Round Table and the Keystone, with the hope that many will get an inspiration:

SCRATCH.

Once there was an Old Hen who had passed the time when she Needed to Worry about the Axe. She had helped many broods of Chickens to see the Light and had been, indeed, through the War. This Wise old Hen felt she knew All There Was to Know. This is a sad state to Get into.

There came a season of Warm Rain and Lots of It, when the worms were washed out of the ground and lay in Lush Profusion about Her feet. She didn't have to scratch. The worms, and the delicious bugs, flocked about Her, and crawled over her feet, and she ate rapidly and heedlessly.

Came a time when she waxed exceeding Fat, and her appetite became finicky. She would strut about the Barnyard and kick bugs and worms out of her path, if they were not of the best variety. In fact, this Old Hen became mighty Choosy about her food, and many an insect bit her in the foot with impunity. She wouldn't deign even to look down.

Then imperceptibly things began to change and the worms weren't quite so profuse as before. But the Old Hen knew that this was only temporary and that Good Times would soon return. So she leaned luxuriously against the barn door and dreamed cute little dreams about Hen Heaven and the Joys that were there for her.

The Worms grew Scarcer and scarcer, and the Old Hen began to lose some of her Surplus Fat. She finally had to dig into her Reserve Fat, and on that day she began to wake up to the fact that food was not going to Crawl Down her Throat as it had in the near past.

So she leaned up against a tree and moaned, and Groaned over the Hard Times that had come. She grew thinner and more thin, until she staggered unseeingly around the barnyard, all out of sorts with herself and with the world. There was not a grain of hope left.

She finally fell through the fence of the pigsty in a stupor, and lay there all skin and bones, crying as though her heart would break. "Oh, dear, what will become of me! Oh, dear, oh, dear!"

"What are you sobbing about?" said an old Fat Pig, who was rooting about in the rich brown mud. "Oh, there is nothing to eat, and I am starving for food," she moaned.

"What rot!" remarked the pig, in his swinish way. "No food, indeed! There are millions of worms for you right under the surface of all this nice brown mud, if you only had the gumption to scratch a little. Scratch for your grub, and you'll have plenty. Scratch, darn you, scratch."

And the Hen, being an old one, had sense enough to listen and to try the advice of the old Pig who was so fat, and Lo! she found that it was true. There were not as many Worms as in the Good Old Times, but there were enough to put flesh back on her bones, and pep back into her old muscles. Young hens

The Market.

There was little change in the local wholesale market last week. Prices remain the same and the supply is equal to any demands made for local trade or shipping. There was good business all week, which ended the social season. Weddings, school work and late social functions, all made a big demand in the local market and the buyers were kept busy picking up stock at the various wholesale markets along Pine street. This was a daily occurrence all last week.

All varieties of roses were in splendid supply all week and the demand consumed the fancy grades each day, while a considerable number of the lower grades had no sale, as, at this time of year, the retailer handles little surplus stock and stocks up only when demands warrant it.

Gladiolus spikes sell well and it is about the only flower used now for window display. Outdoor stock came in freely all week, the bulk of the stock being America and King. These will have the call from now on over any stock on the market and, according to our local growers, the season will see a large production of gladiolus blooms. Carnations will soon be pulled out to make room for the young plants, which many have already done, as the blooms are becoming smaller from the hot weather. There was an excellent supply of Easter lilies and choice valley, and both cleaned up well.

There was a good cut of short-stemmed sweet peas. These were of poor quality. The outdoor stock, such as delphiniums, cornflowers, candytuft, daisies, coreopsis and a few good snapdragons, sold fairly well. Any kind of greens have daily good calls and the supply is about equal to all demands.

Various Notes.

The publicity committee, at the last meeting, held June 15, cleaned up the year's business, which has been more successful than any of previous years. The national publicity fund on hand, amounting to $887.08, was ordered sent to Secretary John Young. This, with a previous check for $484.96, makes a total of $1,372.04, which is twenty-five per cent of all collections made by the wholesalers from June 1, 1920, to June 15, 1921. After this payment, which clears the old committee, there is still a good sum of money on hand to be turned over to the Allied Florists' Trade Association, while plans of this organization are being perfected. The committee to perfect the organization is composed of L. Jules Bourdet, chairman; Henry Berning, Oscar Ruff, W. J. Pilcher and Julius Schaeffer, with President Rowe and Secretary Beneke, of the Florists' Club, as ex-officio members. Secretary-treasurer Beneke was requested to handle all funds, as usual, until the organization is in full operation, when new officers will be elected and when regular meetings will be held.

With much regret we pen the news of the death of Mrs. Anna Hummert, wife of August H. Hummert, vice-president of the St. Louis Seed Co. and state vice-president of the S. A. F. A baby boy was born to them June 11. The child lived only a few days and Mrs. Hummert's death followed June 16. The news of her death was a great shock to many friends in the trade, who expressed heartfelt sympathy for their friend in his sad bereavement. Mrs. Hummert was 41 years of age and, besides her husband, she leaves three children to mourn her loss. The funeral took place Sunday, June 19, at the residence, 2846 Victor street. Interment was at Trinity cemetery. Many beautiful floral emblems were sent, expressing great sympathy for her family, and the officers of the St. Louis Florists' Club attended the funeral in a body.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Berning spent last week in Des Moines, Ia. Mr. Berning attended the sessions of the imperial council of the Mystic Shrine.

Fred Strohmeyer, of the Ayres Floral Co., announced the arrival of a fine baby boy at his home June 10. Mr. Strohmeyer is buyer for the company in the wholesale district.

William Smith says that orders for vinca vines are still coming in. His stock of 25,000 plants was consumed like hot cakes as a result of a Classified ad in The Review.

L. Baumann, chairman of the Florists' Club's trustees, reports that there are many special prizes already offered from among the trade for the florists' picnic, July 21, at Normandy grove. He, with Oscar Ruff and Jules Bourdet, is working hard to make this outing the best ever.

Fred Pape, who in 1913 was assistant city forester, later city forester, and the last few years park commissioner, was reappointed park commissioner last week for four years and was sworn in by Nelson Conliff, former park commissioner, who is now director of public welfare.

William C. Smith and William Osseck, of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., took advantage of the first half-day granted by Saturday closing and, with the force, started on a crawfishing trip. They met with great success. Harry Schlichter led them all in the big catch.

A. G. Greiner, cactus specialist, at 4202 Natural Bridge road, owing to the illness of himself and Mrs. Greiner, has offered his place for sale. They contemplate a trip for their health.

Nat Kingsley, who has charge of the North Grand avenue branch of the Mullanphy Florists, Inc., says that last week was a busy one with them in late weddings and school work, which about winds up a most successful business season.

There was a sharp falling off in the demand last week. Summer is now with us and many of the flower-buying public are getting out of town. Funeral and hospital or sick-room orders will be the order for the next few months, but we need only to recall last summer and find that there was always plenty to do. As it is at present, stock began to pile up and, as a natural consequence, prices broke considerably.

Roses were plentiful last week and of splendid quality, Columbia, Premier and Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club held its regular meeting June 13. After the routine business had been finished Joseph Merritt, the chairman of the general committee of "Say It with Flowers" week, took the floor and made the report. The club ratified the plans as outlined by the committee, the principal events of which are to be the street parade October 15 and the flower show, to be held in Lehman's hall the second week in November.

At the last club meeting it was demonstrated that the older members are watching the work of the younger members of the club and are behind them in anything they do. During the discussion of how best to get the committees to working systematically, Isaac H. Moss took the floor and said that if we were to hold a show it should be such a one as would reflect credit not only on the club but on the city. He said that the Florists' Club had given the city a week's demonstration last year that had won for the florists' industry a place in the commercial life of the city, as well as in the hearts of the public. On that occasion, at the request of the mayor of the city, the florists had promised to make "Say It with Flowers" week a yearly event in the life of the city. Mr. Moss said that the week this year must be a bigger and better week than last year and that the regular club meeting was not the place to arrange for this event. So he made a motion, which was unanimously carried, that Richard Vincent, Jr., took the floor and seconded Mr. Moss's remarks, and told of the wonderful dahlia show held by the American Dahlia Society in New York last fall and the one that is contemplated this year. nan occupied the chair. B. Wallace was elected to active membership. Thomas Proctor, James McCarthy and Thomas Twigg were appointed to judge the monthly exhibits. For twenty-five sweet peas they awarded first prize to William Noonan; for twelve H. T. roses, first to Frank O. Johnson; for twelve H. P. roses, first to Frank O. Johnson. Mrs. James Hollaway exhibited fine apples to demonstrate how they can be kept in the ordinary cellar. One petition for active membership was received at this meeting. President Noonan presented the Scheepers sweepstake to Frank O. Johnson. This is a fine vase which Mr. Johnson won at the recent tulip show.

The society had Mr. Gourdeau, of the Community group, to speak concerning the playgrounds. The society will support the movement, E. J. Brown representing the society. The exhibits for July 13 will be string beans, twenty-five pods of peas, three heads of lettuce, B. Wallace, special; six varieties of perennials, William Popp special, and the best decorated basket by assistant gardeners. A. C.

Gladioli continue extra fine and are meeting with a ready sale, for they are extremely popular in this market. The price has dropped and as much stock as is wanted is obtainable at from $12 to $20 per hundred. An enormous amount of roses has been coming in and, with the exception of the best of these, there are no real prices. Wards, which last week were in such big demand for weddings and commencements and which were short in supply, can be had in any number at $4 per hundred, and Sweetheart roses, equally popular then and selling at $4 per hundred, now can be had for $1.50 and less.

Premier is coming into the market with short stems. Columbia is plentiful and some good Dunlop are offered. Carnations are only fair. Democracy is bringing $5 per hundred, while others sell for $4 and less.

There has been a considerable demand for good red roses. Among these Red Radiance was found to be the best. There were only a few Hadleys on the market. American Beauties are scarce and only a few good ones are to be had.

Lily of the valley, swainsona and stephanotis have been in good demand for wedding decorations. Easter lilies are scarce, some of the growers seemingly being cut out. This situation has improved the sale of calla lilies.

There has been a good demand for snapdragon, but good quality stock has been hard to find. The quality of cattleyas is not so good as it was two weeks ago.

official and resident society. The ceremony was performed at St. John's church, which was charmingly decorated by J. H. Small & Sons for the event. A color scheme of yellow and white was carried out in all the details for the wedding. On the altar were Easter lilies, while palms were placed farther down. There was an artistic decoration of yellow and white flowers mingling with palms and ferns in the chancel, iris and gladioli being the chief flowers, while Australian ferns formed an arch. At the back of the church were three tall standards of white and yellow blossoms, long streamers of white satin ribbon marking the aisles for the bridal procession. At Grasslands, where the reception was held, there was also a decoration of yellow and white flowers. T. N. S.

The Market.

The quality of stock for this time of the year is exceptionally good. The sale of stock from under glass continues to be good and, although outdoor flowers are plentiful, the price of flowers remains about the same. There is no difficulty for the local wholesale houses to find an outlet for most of the stock and the returns are good. Although the supply of carnations and roses is extensive, each day finds the wholesale houses almost cleaned up on these flowers. A few gladioli may be seen on the market; they sell at sight. The market for American Beauty roses last week was exceptionally good and the quality of these roses is up to standard. A few daisies and lilies of the valley are on the market and move at fair prices each day. Larkspur is plentiful, but greens, as usual at this time of the year, are hard to secure. The market for flowers is exceptionally good in all varieties and the wholesale houses have been securing good prices for their product.

The Market.

Business continues good for this time of the year, owing to the large number of weddings and the continuance of hospital graduations. There has also been a demand for design work. Those engaged in bedding work state that this has been the busiest season ever experienced. Dealers in bedding stock have been sold out. This same experience has been enjoyed by rose bush growers. Altogether, the spring has been a good season. There has been plenty of stock, with more weddings and greater quantities of flowers used than ever before.

Various Notes.

The Toronto Retail Florists' Club held its regular meeting Monday night, June 13. It was addressed by Mr. Baird, of the Dominion Paper Box Co. As a result, a committee was appointed to go into the matter of box sizes and make recommendations. It was pointed out that the ordinary box turned out by box companies is, as a rule, too

The Woodlawn Flower Shop has attracted so much attention with the duckling window recently installed that the display has been continued. Recent activities included a large wedding decoration, in which peonies, gladioli and summer flowers in baskets were used.

S. A. Dunlap, of Portland, was a visitor last week, coming up on a combined business and pleasure trip.

The Pinehurst Floral Shop changed the general appearance of its show window with the introduction of latticework, intertwined with maple branches. The latter are common at present and are being freely used in store decorations. "Doc" Allen advises that, in a number of cases, direct results have been secured from the recent moving picture publicity secured by this shop.

P. Aeiries is cutting large quantities of Ulrich Brunner roses at the present time and advises that there has been a ready sale for the entire offering. The quality has been all that could be desired.

Chris Jochimsen, of the Rainier Floral Co., expects to have a good run on Primula obconica and is already making early deliveries of it.

The Orpheum Floral Co. was the first of the local shops to show water lilies for this season, and it has also been showing some fine snapdragon and peonies.

John Holze, of the Queen City Floral Co., advises that there has been a fine clean-up of plants this year, with prices generally good.

The Hollywood Gardens is showing some nice clarkia secured from its own greenhouses, and is also cutting some excellent gladioli. The cut of carnations is increasing, and the same is true of roses. Some novelty luncheon centerpieces have been developed by this store recently. Russell Jones, who has until recently been with this shop, is now connected with the Seattle Fern & Moss Co.

R. G. Slicker, northwest representative of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, is calling on the trade in the Yakima valley and will be away the greater part of the week.

William Goldsbary, of Kenney's Home of Flowers, is receiving the sincere condolence of the trade over the death last week of his uncle, Dr. C. A. Follett, of this city. This shop handled an elaborate church wedding in the university district, featuring tall standards of Dorothy Perkins roses and white broom for church decorations. Ophelia roses and valley were used in making the bride's bouquet.

Florists of this city were interested in the announcement last week that Mrs. P. W. Lee has adopted twin infants. Mrs. Lee was, before her marriage, owner of the Burns Floral Co.

Felix Rosaia handled considerable graduation work last week, the festivities for several private schools for girls coming during that period. Mrs. Rosaia was confined to her home with a minor illness during part of the week.

F. Rosaia, of Rosaia Bros., is in Eureka looking after the interests of his firm in connection with the clearance of the receivership on the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, and more especially the Eden tract. The local firm has been interested in this property for more than a year. Mr. Rosaia advised that general road conditions on the drive from Seattle to California were excellent.

The interior and exterior of Melby's Flower Shop has been repainted, a light cream yellow being used to good effect.

The City Flower Shop has been showing the best of the late deliveries of Russell roses and reports a good run of general business.

Trevor Bros. have been handling a greatly increased number of violas and note an increase in transient business as the weather conditions improve.

A stronger business was reported for McCoy's last week. Some better than average Cecile Brunners are being shown. H. M.

NEWS OF THE SEED TRADE

REPORT of the voluntary bankruptcy of the Stokes Seed Farms Co., Moorestown, N. J., appears under the head, "Business Embarrassments," on another page of this issue.

WILSON'S SEED STORE, 116 South High street, Columbus, O., has recently been incorporated under the name of the Wilson Seed & Floral Co., and from now on the business will be carried on under that name.

IN addition to R. B. Howe, the president, and H. A. Bertoldi, the southern salesman, who attended both the Memphis and St. Louis conventions, the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, was represented at the St. Louis convention by C. S. Coventry, the secretary, who left Chicago Tuesday night, June 21.

COMSTOCK, FERRE & Co., Wethersfield, Conn., are busy planting out tomatoes, of which they grow many varieties for seed. S. F. Williard, secretary, says all crops in this vicinity are suffering for lack of moisture, due to want of rain for the past month. This firm never experienced such a demand for Evergreen and Golden Bantam seed corn. They have a large acreage planted for seed.

EDWARD S. LEONARD, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, attended both the Memphis and St. Louis conventions. S. F. Leonard was present during the program at St. Louis. John Leonard is busy with a program of his own in Chicago, where he is superintending the pushing around of desks, chairs, stock bins, etc., in the rearrangement of the offices and workrooms. He hopes to have everything in first-class shape in about two weeks.

SEGERS BROS., Ltd., Lisse, Holland, have advised their New York representative, J. H. Ran, that June 5 a severe hailstorm caused considerable damage in the tulip district around Beverwyk, a village situated some fifteen miles north of Haarlem. That the storm was of extra large proportions can be easily understood when one considers that all the foliage of the tulips was destroyed, only the bare stems remaining. This incident, together with the already sparse crop of tulips, will undoubtedly have its influence on the quality.

AT MEMPHIS.

Convention of Southern Seedsmen.

Monday morning, June 20, President R. B. Buchanan opened the third annual convention of the Southern Seedsmen's Association, at Memphis. J. R. Paine, the mayor of Memphis, greeted the assembled seedsmen and welcomed them to his town. Louis B. Reuter thanked the mayor for his warm welcome and made it plain that the townspeople would be as sorry to see the members leave the town as they had been glad to see them come.

President Buchanan then addressed the members in a short talk, in which he summarized the year's work and told what the last year's happenings can be understood to mean for the future. F. S. Love then presented the facts and figures of the association's activities which he superintended as secretary and treasurer. J. C. Holton, of the Mississippi Agricultural College, then told about the growth in popularity and the means of culture of the sweet potato.

After luncheon, the meeting was again convened at 2 o'clock, when members listened to an address on "Seed Legislation," by Herbert Bebb, an attorney of Chicago. Herbert J. Webber, of Hartsville, S. C., discussed the merits of using pedigreed seeds and making extensive experiments in seed culture. Mr. Lacky, of the Department of Agriculture, Oklahoma City, Okla., gave the seedsmen a few worth-while suggestions in his talk on "Seed Analyzing."

Second Day's Sessions.

When again assembled Tuesday morning, it was for an executive session, at which committee reports were read and important association business was discussed. Officers were then elected.

The officers elected were: President, Joseph Steckler, of the J. Steckler Seed Co., New Orleans, La.; first vice-president, D. R. Mayo, Knoxville, Tenn.; second vice-president, Dick O'Bannon, of Pittman & Harrison Co., Sherman, Tex.; secretary-treasurer, F. S. Love, Montgomery, Ala. The meeting next year will be held at New Orleans.

Tuesday afternoon the home and grounds of John Ross, on the outskirts of town, was the scene of the barbecue which is the famous entertainment feature of the association's conventions. This one was not behind those of former years, and everyone was able to enjoy himself to the utmost, without going to any trouble to do it. Many of the seedsmen boarded the 10:10 train Tuesday night for St. Louis to attend the A. S. T. A. convention.

Seventy-nine seedsmen were in attendance, about half of whom took the train Tuesday night to St. Louis. Four new voting members were added, and five associate.

THE ST. LOUIS CONVENTION.

A. S. T. A. in Annual Session.

The mercury in the St. Louis thermometers doesn't seem a bit particular how the weather man shoves it around. This week he has it pushed up to the top of the tube, and it may be said, both literally and figuratively, that the thirty-ninth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association opened with a hot session.

The first annual 18-hole blind bogey golf tournament of the seedsmen was played Tuesday, June 21, the day before the convention was officially opened. The date was thus set in order to try to prove the superiority of the flower and vegetable seedsmen over the grass seed dealers, who were holding their convention at the same city, June 20 and 21. The tournament was a distinct success, thanks to Clifford Cornell, chairman of the entertainment committee.

Two prizes were awarded, a cup donated by the St. Louis seedsmen and a dozen golf balls donated by the American Seedsman. The winners were picked by Mrs. Hastings drawing two numbers out of a hat. Those who had scores to correspond won the prizes. Mr. Faust, of the Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago, took the cup; his score was 110. Herbert Corteen, of the Corteen Seed Co., Milwaukee, got the balls; his score was 101.

Opening Session.

The first session of the convention was opened Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, when the president, H. G. Hastings, called the assembled seedsmen to order. He introduced Roger A. Annan, of the St. Louis Merchants' Exchange, who told how good St. Louis is, and welcomed the convened seedsmen to the city. His duty was to tell the visitors that they were welcome, and he did his job well. He was followed by Fred Mangelsdorf, who did just as good a job of telling Mr. Annan who the seedsmen were, why St. Louis should be proud to have them around, and why the seedsmen were glad to be there, even though the atmospheric conditions were a trifle tropical.

President Hastings then came forth and delivered his address, printed on another page, which formally opened the real business meeting. He touched upon the past and future of the seed business, and reviewed the trade's activities during the last year.

C. E. Kendel, in the secretary's report, told that there were at the beginning of this fiscal year 242 members on the list, two of whom were honorary. Fifteen names were added to the roll and eight were lost during the last year. The present membership is 247 active members and two honorary members. The actual gain during the year was seven active members.

As treasurer Mr. Kendel outlined the year's activities as follows:

Balance	$1,151.87
Receipts	5,924.98
Total	$7,076.85
Disbursements	6,747.73
Balance	$ 329.12

Of the total expenditure of $6,747.73, it was shown that $3,932.96 went to counsel, $2,900 for retainer fee and $1,032.96 for counsel's expenses. The reports were referred to an auditing committee.

Three amendments were proposed. One was an addition to the constitution, permitting other seed organizations to obtain membership in the association. Previously membership was confined to individuals and firms. This amendment was carried when voted upon. Another was an amendment to the by-laws calling for the selection of a standing arbitration committee. The third was a change in the section re-

PRESIDENT HASTINGS' ADDRESS.

In Memoriam.

For the thirty-ninth time, the American Seed Trade Association is assembled in annual convention, and, to our sorrow, many familiar faces are missing. Death has been more active in our ranks this year than ever before. Twelve of our members have passed away since we last met, three of them former presidents. One of these, David I. Bushnell, served as president in 1894-95; another, Erford L. Page, in 1910-11, while the third, Edward C. Dungan, presided over our deliberations at Milwaukee last year. While later in the session our committee on necrology will report suitable memorials, the list is as follows:

William W. Barnard, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; Charles J. Bolgiano, of J. Bolgiano & Sons, Baltimore; John A. Bruce, of John A. Bruce & Co., Ltd., Hamilton, Ontario, Canada; David I. Bushnell, of D. I. Bushnell & Co., St. Louis; Perry J. Crockett, of the Templin-Crockett-Bradley Co., Cleveland; George F. Crosman, of Crosman Bros., Rochester, N. Y.; Edward C. Dungan, of William Henry Maule, Inc., Philadelphia; Augustus H. Goodwin, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; T. R. Johns, of the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., Sioux City, Ia.; Charles R. Kimberlin, of the Kimberlin Seed Co., Santa Clara, Cal.; Erford L. Page, of the Page Seed Co., Greene, N. Y. Although not members of our association, two other prominent seedsmen passed away during the year, John Lewis Childs, of Floral Park, N. Y., and James F. M. Farquhar, of Boston.

Counsel's Work.

It is not my intent to attempt any considerable résumé of the legal and legislative activities of the year. This will be covered fully by the report of our legislative committee and counsel. Almost anything I could mention would be an unnecessary duplication and can be placed before you far better by the committee and Curtis Nye Smith.

A year in the president's office is a revelation as to the amount of work handled by counsel. It is counsel's practice to send copies of correspondence relating to seed matters to your president, and during the past year I have been amazed at the volume of it.

I believe that our association is well served by our present counsel and that his continued employment is to the best interests of the association.

Free Seeds.

The seed business is the only business that has to compete with a straight-out gift enterprise on the part of Uncle Sam. What's worse is that the taxes we pay go to buy and distribute gratis seeds in direct competition with us. At one time this year there appeared a chance to kill this hoary-headed fraud on the public and imposition on the trade.

My study of that particular subject leads me to believe that this can be done away with by proper effort applied at the right time, but leaving it until the appropriation bill is being made up will get us nowhere. Once the congressman is convinced that his constituents do not want these "free seeds," the end of it is in sight. On this subject I would recommend to my successor the appointment of an active committee to follow up the matter in such manner as the members deem best.

Price Propaganda.

It is no secret that the seed selling season just past has been a generally unsatisfactory one. While there have been exceptions, the usual experience has been unsatisfactory and unprofitable. This is disappointing, yet it was hardly to be expected that the seed business should escape when every other line of business was having large and able-bodied troubles.

In late fall or early winter your president did an unusual thing that he has no apologies to make for. We have reason to believe that it had in a number of quarters a steadying influence. During the price disturbance last fall we found much uncertainty as to the question of prices in the trade, an almost semi-panic condition that bid fair to bring about price demoralization.

Through the trade press we called attention to the fact that there was nothing in the situation to justify a slashing of seed prices; that there had not been the inflation in seed prices that there had been in other lines. We also called attention to the fact that practically every element of expense, other than cost of seed stocks, was still at or near peak prices and would necessarily stand against 1921 spring business.

We recommended aggressive action in promoting gardening and better farming and consequent greater use of seeds. In a measure, this policy was followed by many firms. Frequently the result was a volume of business transacted that matched up well with all but the peak years. That the business generally was not profitable was due to the fact that there was little or no opportunity to adjust expenses to meet the generally changed business conditions.

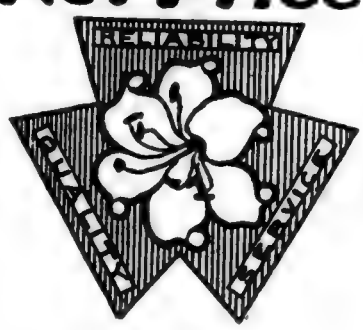
It may be superfluous to recommend the closest possible study and analysis of our expense accounts, but it is certainly illuminating. Such analysis will usually show that we have accumulated many bad habits during the period of easy business. One thing is certain; we have ample time before another active selling season rolls around to adjust ourselves to the changed conditions.

Garden Promotion.



In arranging the program we have thought that the most important subject we could consider was the promotion of more and better business both in garden, flower, field, grass and clover seed. We believe there can be, through proper handling, a great promotion of more gardening and better farming and consequent increased use of seeds of all kinds.

The garden bureau has functioned this year with better support and increased efficiency, and we feel that the idea back of it and its work can be greatly expanded. The war period has taught us the value of propaganda of the right character, properly handled. Propaganda of this kind is constructive. It helps others as well as us who have a business interest in it. Further, unless we do this ourselves, no one is going to do it for us.

Maintain Fair Prices.

We are in an era of falling prices generally. We are naturally influenced, of course, by our environments, the things we see and hear on all sides. It is well for us as seedsmen to remember, however, that, with the exception of a few items, the inflation in seed values was small compared with the inflation in values of most commodities and manufactured goods; further, that deflation in seed values began a year or more before the deflation in merchandise generally.

We have not now and never have had any sympathy with some of the extremely high prices that have been asked by some in the past. We have no sympathy with any tendency now toward the other extreme. We believe there is a happy medium between the two extremes desirable for all of us. We have never been able to see where price reduction below a fair level resulted in any materially increased use of seeds.

Freight Rates.

We may well consider the question of present freight and express rates. They are burdensome to us and our customers directly in the movement of our stocks and orders. The greatest damage, however, to the seed trade is the large curtailment of vegetable acreage in all the districts where vegetables are grown for shipment. The present rates, combined with the lower purchasing power, generally leave little or nothing for the producer.

This has been quite marked in the southern and south Atlantic districts this last season, and we are informed that similar conditions exist in the Pacific coast districts. Such, if continued, means the abandonment of thousands of acres of vegetable growing land and consequent decreased use of seeds. We recommend proper representations to the Interstate Commerce Commission, asking for relief both for the vegetable and fruit growers as well as ourselves.

Looking forward to 1922, we believe the situation can be faced with confidence. We are rapidly passing through the uncomfortable but necessary readjustments. Before another active seed selling season opens, we ought to be down on a firm foundation and our expenses down to a normal or near normal basis. We must do this, whether we like it or not.

GRASS SEED DEALERS ELECT.

All last year's officers of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association were reëlected at the meeting at St. Louis June 20 and 21: President, William G. Scarlett, Baltimore; vice-president, J. Charles McCullough, Cincinnati; secretary and treasurer, Clarence K. Jones, Baltimore.

About seventy-five members and visitors attended the convention. At the executive session a resolution was passed protesting against the tariff bill before Congress, as this bill affected the imports and exports of seeds.

Mr. Scarlett stated that the wholesale prices of field, forage and cereal seeds are lower now than they have been for many years.

ABOUT THOSE PAPER WHITES.

It is not yet apparent what the outcome will be in the matter of the determination of the bulb growers of Ollioules to exact much higher prices than last year for their Paper Whites of the current crop. The shipping season is close at hand, but there seems to be no sign of a break on the part of the growers' syndicate, possibly encouraged in their stand by the reiteration of the statement by one American buyer

The KENILWORTH Giant Pansy Seed

No.

12. KENILWORTH GIANT PRIZE. I have improved this strain by selecting and saving seed from the best shaped flowers of the most gorgeous color for many years. It is of the blocked Masterpiece type. The plants distinguish themselves by their robust growth and healthy-looking foliage; they are deep rooted and stand the hot, dry weather better than most other varieties. The large flowers on long, thick stems are carried well above the foliage in the most graceful manner, are of enormous size and of good substance. The petals are exceedingly broad and cover each other in such a manner as to make the flowers appear almost double. The border of each petal being conspicuously undulated and curled, the gorgeous and varied colored blossoms of velvety texture, perfect form and giant size, frequently measuring 3½ inches in diameter; the ground color such as yellow, white, deep orange, mahogany brown, bronze blue, and endless variations. Most petals are beautifully marked with a large blotch, a few are self-colored. They are specially fine for planting under glass or outside for cut flowers at all seasons. 500 seeds, 30c; 1000 seeds, 50c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.50; ½ oz., $5.00; 1 oz., $10.00; 4 oz., $35.00.

10. KENILWORTH GIANT EXHIBITION is the very finest complete mixture ever sent out. Seed carefully saved only from marked plants of the best varieties, with the largest and best shaped flowers and richest coloring. It is impossible to convey an adequate idea of the delightful variations in color and markings of this unrivaled mixture. 500 seeds, 30c; 1000 seeds, 50c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.50; oz., $10.00; 4 oz., $35.00.

19. TRIMARDEAU GIANT PANSY, improved; it is far superior to the ordinary run of Trimardeau that is sold. It is a very showy class of vigorous, compact growth. Flowers of enormous size in all the self colors, blocked, striped, margined, etc. It is very doubtful if any other pansy will give as good satisfaction as the improved Trimardeau for all general purposes. 1000 seeds, 30c; 3000 seeds, 75c; ¼ oz., $1.35; ½ oz., $2.50; 1 oz., $5.00; 4 oz., $18.00.

GIANT TRIMARDEAU No. 2, while not equal to the improved, is a good mixture containing all colors and will give good satisfaction where a mixture of moderate price is desired. 1000 seeds, 20c; ¼ oz., 80c; ½ oz., $1.50; 1 oz., $3.00; 4 oz., $11.00.

20. PRINCESS, the New Upright Pansy. This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy velvety texture, on heavy stems, carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00.

22. GIANT KENILWORTH STRAIN. The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are 3-inch. It is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, medium or dark mixtures. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00; 4 oz., $21.50.

24. GIANT KENILWORTH SHOW is undoubtedly the largest flowered Pansy in the world; the immense flowers are of circular form. A beautiful collection of colors and markings. 1000 seeds, 40c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; ½ oz., $3.75; 1 oz., $7.50; 4 oz., $27.00.

THE EARLY FLOWERING OR WINTER BLOOMING GIANT PANSIES in all colors or mixed. 1000 seeds, 60c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; 1 oz., $7.50.

No.

26. GIANT KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE. Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 6 or 7 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well. 1000 seeds, 40c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; ½ oz., $3.75; 1 oz., $7.50; 4 oz., $27.00.

28. GIANT MASTERPIECE. A remarkable type, the curled wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance; large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stems. 1000 seeds, 40c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; ½ oz., $3.75; 1 oz., $7.50; 4 oz., $27.00.

30. GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES. A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich, velvety colors; reds are particularly conspicuous, the petals being distinctly marked with three or five large, dark blotches. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00; 4 oz., $21.50.

32. GIANT PARISIAN. The flowers are of enormous size and beautifully marked, mostly five dark blotches on white and yellow ground; an unusually showy mixture. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00; 4 oz., $21.50.

34. GIANT BRONZE. A fine mixture of all shades of velvety brown bronze, Havana brown, mahogany and copper shades. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00; 4 oz., $21.50.

36. TRIUMPH OF GIANT. Remarkably beautiful. The imposing five-spotted flowers on long, vigorous stalks surmount the foliage in the most graceful manner, are of enormous size, perfectly round and of unusual substance. The individual petals are very broad and cover each other in such a manner as to make the flowers appear almost double, the border of every petal being conspicuously curled. The plants are of a robust growth and form compact bushes of a round shape. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00; 4 oz., $21.50.

40. GIANT BATH'S EMPRESS. The finest of fancy English Pansies. Flowers are very large, mostly frilled and blotched and of great substance and the colors are brilliant and varied. 1000 seeds, 40c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; ½ oz., $3.75; 1 oz., $7.50.

70. ORCHID-FLOWERED, Mixed. A dwarf, free bloomer, with a range of delicate colors that do not exist in any other Pansies; a remarkable combination of light rose, shell pink, blush mauve, fawn, light brown, orange and chamois. 1000 seeds, 30c; 4000 seeds, $1.00; ¼ oz., $1.30; ½ oz., $2.50; 1 oz., $5.00; 4 oz., $18.00.

that the Americans most insistent on low prices are those who have sold at definite fixed prices. Such an assertion, whatever the fact, amounts to saying the florists are able and would not be unwilling to pay the higher prices, although the dealers have said the insistence on the syndicate prices will curtail the consumption by three-fourths.

That things are not quiet in the bulb district is shown by the volume of information coming over, "dope," as one dealer calls it. One of the most trustworthy informants reports that, whereas two Holland-French concerns began buying at the high prices, they quickly desisted. The same authority states that America has bought no bulbs, that Holland has ceased to buy, and that England has canceled the orders already given, so that most of the export dealers are practically without definite orders. At the same time the leaders of the growers' syndicate are urging the members to sit tight, even going so far as to publish advertisements in the local newspapers asserting that the high prices are to be had by standing fast and pointing out that in a similar situation in 1899 the buyers finally paid the prices asked after holding off until July 15. In the meantime offers are beginning to trickle across by cable from persons who say they can furnish certain quantities, but not enough to cover aggregate American needs, at prices of from 100 to 110 francs. The coöperating American dealers have stated their limit to be 100 francs, but they are not yet buying.

One development has been the organization of an export dealers' assoeiation at Ollioules—Syndicat des Negociants en Bulbs. The officers are: President, Paul Lemoyne; vice-president, Raymond Moulis; secretary, Victor Lagarde.

TEXAS SEEDSMEN ELECT.

The annual meeting of the Texas Seedsmen's Association, held at Houston, June 4, was a notable success. There was a good attendance. All the leading seedsmen of Texas were represented, and, according to O. N. Templeton, reëlected secretary and treasurer, there was a great deal of good accomplished at the meeting. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Robert Nicholson, of Dallas; vice-president, Dick O'Bannon, of Sherman; secretary and treasurer, O. N. Templeton, of the Mel L. Webster Co., Waco.

COLORADO SEED CROPS.

The flood in the Arkansas valley did a great deal of damage to seed crops, particularly muskmelon and cucumber. How much it is yet too early to foresee. The condition of these crops and some others is given in the July report of the J. C. Robinson Seed Co., Rocky Ford, Colo., as follows:

The acreage of sweet flint and dent corn crops for seed we believe to be the most conservative in a number of years. While values for commercial corn are below the cost of production and the prices asked for seed corn are at the pre-war level, yet the tendency to wait until the new crop is made is more marked than usual. Crop conditions are excellent in every respect, with plenty of moisture, and good stands were obtained everywhere.

Acreage of cucumber in the Arkansas valley is somewhat reduced over normal and conditions are fair. Some loss has occurred from hail, but more from floods; how much damage will result is difficult to foresee. One of the main ditches has been repaired and others are promised to be rebuilt in from thirty to sixty days. All headgates, deflectors and storage reservoirs were destroyed and until these are repaired the crop is in danger. All crops on low lands were destroyed and it is impossible to replant with any assurance of making seed. We believe a great many hundreds of acres of seed crops are gone and with a chance that the balance will suffer until the ditches are all repaired, which is necessarily slow.

Conditions with muskmelon for seed are identical with that of cucumber. The acreage was under normal.

Acreage of watermelon in the south is about normal; conditions are good. In other sections acreage is fair and condition good. The northern growing districts for watermelon produce an excellent quality of seed, and we believe the northern-grown seed will produce melons earlier than seed grown farther south.

The condition of pumpkin and squash is excellent and the acreage under ordinary. Some losses have occurred from excessive rains and insects, but on the whole the crop in the middle west growing sections is good. However, little acreage was planted on speculation, growers confining themselves to actual orders in hand. Without doubt, owing to losses and small acreage, many shortages will be apparent this fall. The far west squash and pumpkin seed crops are in good shape, but the acreage is small.

Acreage of seed beans is small, but the condition is good. There has been some loss from excessive rains.

The Market.

Business was brisk all last week. Owing to the many weddings, stock has been in great demand. Roses have been good, especially Columbia and Russell. White Killarneys have been coming in good, though the hot weather made them open up quickly. Ophelia was much the same. Peonies are being received in large quantities and are good stock. Easter lilies are plentiful and have been useful for decorations.

Various Notes.

The most elaborate wedding of the season was the Clarkson-Abbott wedding. St. Paul's church was beautifully

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

REPORT of the meeting of the American Peony Society, at Boston June 18 and 19, which was attended by a number of nurserymen, is found on a forward page of this issue.

THE partnership name of Pfund's Nursery, of Elmhurst, Ill., has been dropped, as there was a recent incorporation, and the name of the Pfund Nursery Co. has been adopted as the corporate title. The officers of the corporation are: President, Paul Pfund; vice-president, Lee Pfund, and secretary and treasurer, Bruce Bell. The company now has 125 acres devoted to the growing of nursery stock.

To the trade William Peterson, proprietor of Peterson Nursery, Chicago, is known as a collector of peonies, but he is equally famous in other circles for other collections. Last week in a window of the State Bank of Chicago, of which Mr. Peterson is a director, were several valuable specimens of Swedish copperplate money from his private collection. These dated back to the early part of the eighteenth century, when long continued foreign wars drew all the gold and silver money out of currency and the bottoms of copper kettles were hammered out to pass for coin. The government's stamp on them made such copper plates pass for higher value, the amount depending upon the character of the imprint.

A. A. N. OPENS CONVENTION.

Big Attendance at Chicago.

The business-like program laid out by Henry B. Chase, M. R. Cashman and E. S. Welch, bringing before members of the association frank discussion of its principal problems, attracted a large and interested attendance at the opening of the forty-sixth annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, at Chicago, June 22. A good many were there the day before, when the executive committee held an open session in the Elizabethan room at the Congress hotel to talk over in a preliminary way the matters outlined on the program.

It was planned to devote sessions to the discussion of market development publicity, the trade-mark, the offices of executive secretary and traffic manager, and the schedule of dues. Speakers were picked to lead the discussion on each topic, open discussion to follow, with a final vote at one of the closing sessions.

Opening Session.

The opening session, Wednesday morning, June 22, was given over to the customary routine exercises. After the call to order by President Lloyd C. Stark, the invocation was delivered by Dr. Howard Agnew Johnston. Greetings were offered by Arnold Joerns, representing the Association of Commerce.

After President Stark had responded to the greeting of Captain Joerns, he called on J. W. Hill, of Des Moines, to introduce Former Secretary of Agriculture E. C. Meredith, who spoke in the stead of the present secretary, H. C. Wallace, who was unable to attend. Mr. Meredith discussed the work of the Department of Agriculture, pointing out the opportunities for research work curtailed because Congress cut appropriations for it in order to spend money for free seeds and the Agricultural Year Book.

Dr. Vandercleve, of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, spoke on the methods of coördinating business interests which have grown up of necessity in late years.

Prof. L. C. Corbett, of the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., was called upon by President Stark and spoke upon the work of the department in behalf of nurserymen.

The report of A. M. Augustine, chairman of the committee on arrangements, consisted of an expression of its intention to do the best it could.

For the program committee, Chairman Henry B. Chase thanked Secretary Watson for his assistance and hoped the program laid out would result in a more united and stronger association.

In the place of Dr. C. L. Marlatt, chairman of the Federal Horticultural Board, Dr. Karl F. Kellerman, associate chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry and a member of the board, spoke on "The Situation as to Future Imports of Fruit Tree Seedlings," but could give no definite prognostications.

Upon the conclusion of Dr. Kellerman's remarks the meeting adjourned until afternoon, when the president's address and the reports of several important committees were taken up.

Secretary Watson's Report.

The report of Secretary Watson, which was printed in the form of a 36-page pamphlet, contained a number of interesting items, devoted though it was to the presentation of financial facts in cold figures.

The credit and collection bureau, it showed, collected a total of $16,319.40 during the year, for ninety-six members of the association. Of this $629.49 accrued to the association as fees.

A list of members and the dues paid to June 7, 1921, showed 283 had paid a total of $28,471.88. Eighteen more had paid partial dues, totaling $370, twenty-three had not paid their 1920 dues, and twenty-six had resigned, six of whom had paid something on their dues. The association's income from dues for the year, to June 7, was therefore $28,841.88. Twenty-seven new members had been added near or since the first of the year, who have paid $915 in all.

The disbursements to June 1 were summarized by Mr. Watson as follows, detailed statement by voucher being made in the report:

A. N. PIERSON, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.

ment committee, Robert Pyle presented a printed document in pamphlet form, occupying fifty-six pages, to show the year's achievements. Copies of the advertisements used were reproduced. Twenty-one agricultural and gardening papers had been used, at a total expenditure of $4,379.33, with expense in connection of $159.92. The committee paid $856.56 for reading articles by some well known horticultural writers and for distributing them to several hundred newspapers, chiefly in agricultural communities. The two books distributed cost $305, and returns of $192.40 were obtained. The total cost of the market development work was therefore $5,508.41. The printed report contained copies of the articles distributed gratis to the press, a list of the papers to which they were sent, and comments on the association's work by the press and by state officials in different parts of the country.

The Exhibits.

In the lobby just outside the Florentine room were two vases from Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia. One contained blooms of that wonderful rose, Paul's Scarlet Climber, which brought, as usual, many admiring comments. The other contained blooms of Hydrangea Domotoi, in color a delicate pink.

In the rooms devoted to exhibits were a dozen rambler rose plants from the greenhouses of Frank Oechslin, Chicago, showing the stock supplied by Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y.

The Rochester Lithographing Co., Rochester, N. Y., veteran of twenty convention displays, showed the usual samples of its excellent work.

B. F. Conigisky, Peoria, Ill., showed photographs for use in illustrating nurserymen's and landscape architects' catalogues.

The A. B. Morse Co., St. Joseph, Mich., had a good showing of specimens of its work in the shape of nursery catalogues.

The A. T. De La Mare Co., New York, had a table of horticultural publications.

Geo. B. Carpenter & Co., Chicago, had an exhibit of cordage, particularly the kinds used in nursery work.

Those Present.

Those from out of town in attendance on the opening day of the Chicago convention included the following:

PRESIDENT STARK'S ADDRESS.

Vigilance Committee's Work.

We have made many internal changes in the last few years and we have moved rapidly. We have made some mistakes, it is true, but certainly no more than other associations that are sincerely and conscientiously endeavoring to upbuild their respective professions.

In the past we have found within our organization certain discrepancies and abuses. We have, without undue delay, set about quietly, but determinedly, to correct these abuses. A great deal has been accomplished. Some mistakes have been corrected and others will continue to be corrected.

After the Philadelphia convention in June, 1917, when you first honored me with the office of president, I took it upon myself to appoint our first vigilance committee. This, of course, was not an original idea, but was simply an adoption of the methods used in many other industries, but more particularly was it modeled after the vigilance committee of the Advertising Clubs of the World, of which association I happened to be a member at that time.

In our vigilance committee today you have the greatest power for house-cleaning and keeping your house in order. Its workings are quiet, but persistent. It protects the honest nurseryman and the honest planter alike; it protects the nurseryman against unjust criticism of the public and the dishonest planter; it protects the planter and the public against dishonest nurserymen. This committee working in connection with your executive committee is a great power for the elimination of fraudulent practices and unscrupulous men. You should continue in every possible way to give the vigilance committee your unanimous support.

Executive Committee Meetings.

Your executive committee this year, and heretofore, has not been able to serve you as well as it might because, due to the geographic restrictions laid down in our constitution, a meeting of your executive committee at the present time involves a great amount of traveling expense and loss of time to the members.

At the present time your constitution provides that special meetings of the executive committee may be called by the president, and that the expenses of the committee incident thereto may be paid out of the treasury. Heretofore, because of the burdensome expense and loss of time in connection therewith, these meetings have not been held as often as they should have been and the association's affairs have seriously suffered in consequence. I, therefore, make this further recommendation, that by vote or otherwise, you direct that your executive committee shall hold at least three special meetings annually, one in the early fall, one winter meeting and one late spring meeting, and that at the same time you specifically authorize the payment of the expenses in connection therewith.

Traffic Rates Up.

Within the year the members of this association, in spite of the hard fight put up by our traffic manager, have found themselves face to face with great, and what we believe to be, unfair increases in express charges on shipments of nursery stock. For your information, I will quote a few average examples from the Mississippi river to various points in the United States:

Town State	Old rate per 100 lbs.	New rate per 100 lbs.
Boston, Mass.	$2.56	$4.16
Pittsburgh, Pa.	1.86	3.12
Richmond, Va.	2.44	4.08
Cape Girardeau, Mo.	1.24	2.08
Winchester, Tenn.	1.86	3.11
Durant, Okla.	2.68	4.50
Des Moines, Ia.	1.29	2.14
Denver, Colo.	3.18	5.33
Phoenix, Ariz.	6.15	10.42
Los Angeles, Cal.	7.23	12.12

Our traffic manager appeared at the hearing of the Interstate Commerce Commission and made every effort to hold the old second-class classification on nursery stock. In spite of everything he could do, the Interstate Commerce Commission decided rather arbitrarily, we think, that nursery stock should be classified as first-class, which meant a tremendous increase in the cost of trees to the American tree-planting public. This increase, gentlemen, was on top of all the ordinary rate increases that the express companies have effected since before the war. During this time the express charges on nursery stock have nearly doubled, so that we now have an express burden on the shoulders of the farmer, orchardist and nurseryman that is almost unbearable.

Nomenclature Work.

The chairman of our association's nomenclature committee, who was appointed to represent us on the American joint committee on horticultural nomenclature, which was appointed by the various allied associations and societies to revise and classify American plant names, has about completed his work. This committee has not received the help from our association that it should receive. It is now face to face with the problem of publishing its official catalogue of plant names, which is the combined result of several years' hard work. I would recommend that the association assist in the underwriting of this publication to the extent of $1,000, with the understanding that this money may be paid back into the treasury as fast as the volumes are sold.

Recently this committee decided that it would be a valuable thing in addition to the catalogue of plant names of ornamentals, etc., to include also a section devoted to fruit nomenclature.

Mr. Kelsey, in connection with Professor Lake and others of the United States Department of Agriculture, has already done a great deal of work on this nomenclature section. However, your present and executive committee deem it unwise to issue a catalogue of fruit names and synonyms that has not the official sanction of a fruit nomenclature committee recently appointed for that purpose, and if the time before publication of the official catalogue of plant names is not sufficient to enable our fruit committee to have several months in which to bring the fruit list up to date, it is deemed unwise to include the fruit section in this volume.

In selecting the membership of the fruit nomenclature committee your president endeavored to select men who were not only familiar with the scientific names, but men who are practical orchardists and nurserymen as well. On this committee were included two men from the east, two from the central section and one from the Pacific coast, with Robert Simpson, of Vincennes, Ind., as chairman of the deciduous fruit section and Harold Hume, of Glen St. Mary, Fla., chairman of the tropical and subtropical section. Every nurseryman is urged to assist these committees as far as possible.

The subcommittee has finished its labors as far as preparing the initial copy for the forthcoming edition is concerned, and now follows the job of printing and distributing. This subcommittee has spent literally months in a most difficult, trying and laborious task, that both scientific and common plant names may become standardized in the American horticultural world, toward the desirable end of making buying easier.

As the subcommittee got deeper and deeper into this work they began to realize more fully that they were up against a man's size job in every sense of the word and that only by giving solid time in approximately 10-day units would it be accomplished. Even then it would not have been possible to get ready for the printer this spring had not Dr. Frederick V. Coville and the United States Department of Agriculture fully backed up the committee's work by providing offices and almost unlimited library and office assistance, and the aid of many experts in the department.

The result is manuscript for a book of probably 500 pages, which the subcommittee has placed with the J. Horace McFarland Co. for printing.

Financing the Work.

The amounts subscribed by the constituent organizations of the American Joint Committee have sufficed to pay the current expenses of the committee and there is still a balance of $377.93 in the treasury of the committee. But instead of a pamphlet we have a large book, which will cost from $4,000 to $6,000 to publish in numbers which will be at all adequate to insure wide enough distribution to accomplish our prime object, namely, universal adoption.

Therefore, it must be immediately decided whether the organizations composing the American Joint Committee will subscribe enough to finance the undertaking, or failing, will progressive nurserymen and other horticulturists underwrite the publication? Surely, this burden should not be placed on the subcommittee, who have freely given months of their time to a most exacting and laborious job, that American horticulture might profit thereby.

What It Is.

The new official catalogue will be a strictly alphabetical list of common names and Latin names for practically all trees, shrubs, fruits and perennials in the American trade today, including many new ones which it is expected will soon be introduced into general cultivation.

Special groups supplied by organizations, societies and individuals specially interested in such groups and best fitted to give authentic name lists, appear in alphabetical order, while certain large groups, such as fruits, iris, rhododendrons, azaleas and peonies, which have extremely large lists of named horticultural varieties, will appear suitably arranged in an appendix.

Labor difficulties and high costs of materials have combined to delay typesetting; but with these conditions clearing up, and financing arranged for, the work should reach publication before 1922.

It will be not only an absolutely necessary work of reference in every nurseryman's office, but a handbook and guide for every live employee in the field. It is a big beginning toward standardizing horticultural trade practice in America. Even to those who are entirely commercially minded it will be a godsend, for if it is consistently and intelligently used it means that the nurseryman and florist really will know what he is growing, advertising and selling, and, still more important, his customers and prospective customers will also know, and that means tremendously increased business.

The American Joint Committee on Horticultural Nomenclature should be a permanent committee, for many corrections and improvements must be made, and so long as horticulture progresses, so long will new plants appear and new names be necessary, while hundreds of plants of necessity still must have suitable common names supplied. Registration of new plants and approved names will become a necessity. If we believe in our business, let us waken to the fact that if we falter in the standardization of our business, Congress and state legislatures will attempt to do it for us—and disastrously to American horticulture.

The subcommitte believes that underwriting this publication is a safe proposition, and that sales that may be reasonably expected should return cost. But if every nurseryman becomes a booster for the official catalogue of standardized plant names, sales should be such that the American Joint Committee would have a substantial profit to continue the work now so well begun. It's a business proposition and it's up to you.

Frank Oechslin The Big Geranium Grower Says: He Just Wouldn't Be Without It

When you hear Oechslin's name, you promptly think of acres of geraniums grown to perfection.

When he tells you he wouldn't be without his Skinner System of watering, you take it as honest-injun-truth, just as you would if he showed you his particular way of making cuttings.

You know he is not the kind of a man to make a noise about a thing until he is fully convinced of its fullest merits.

If you could talk with half a dozen Skinner System owners this very day; owners who are using it on as many different crops; every one of them would tell you the one thing and one more.

That one thing would be "it doubles and triples your crop."

"It pays for itself the first year."

If the opinions of 6 men are not enough, we can send you 600 opinions.

Most of whom will put it even stronger.

But what's the use? You long ago convinced yourself you ought to have it. Then order it.

Give us the width and length of the ground you want to irrigate and we will send you some interesting facts.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

HOT WATER HEATING.

My greenhouse is 24x50 feet. Its walls have three feet of glass and three of concrete. It is fourteen feet to the ridge and has glass in one end gable. What is the best way to heat this greenhouse with hot water?

Will one 2-inch flow under the ridge and six 1½-inch flows under each side bench and four 1½-inch flows under each of the two center benches heat the house to about 55 degrees when the temperature outside is 16 degrees below zero? This house is new, tight and protected from severe winds.

C. L. S.—Ill.

So far as the amount of radiation is concerned, there would be plenty if the arrangement as suggested is carried out, but the result obtained when an attempt is made to supply twenty 1½-inch returns with one 2-inch flow pipe would be far from satisfactory. It would be advisable to use three 2½-inch flow pipes, placing one upon each side wall plate and the other three or four feet below the ridge. With this arrangement only fourteen 1½-inch returns will be needed. Four of these should be under each of the side benches and the others under the middle benches, the flows on the walls being used for the side coils and the others being supplied by the flow pipe under the ridge.

HEATING WITH FLUES.

I plan to build a greenhouse, 25x100 feet, for growing principally bedding and vegetable plants. The side walls are to be four feet, with two feet of glass on one side. I plan to heat only one-half of the house during the winter. Would it be possible to heat this half of the house by means of two brick furnaces and flues, having the chimney in the middle of the house? The outdoor temperature goes to 20 degrees below zero here. Would hot air be better? If so, what plans shall I follow in putting it in? C. A. P.—Me.

While we have known of houses of the size mentioned being heated by means of flues, it has not been satisfactory for carrying bedding plants through the winter. Where wood is cheap, they answer fairly well for use in the spring.

Long runs are not desirable, and for a house of the width mentioned we should construct two furnaces at each end of the house, from each of which we should run a flue, with a width of eight inches and a height of ten inches, inside measurement, to the center of the house. There would be two chimneys, each with two flues. In mild weather only two of the furnaces will be required.

If wood can be obtained for fuel, the furnaces should be four or five feet long, and with a width and height of fifteen inches, all inside measurements. The grate should be about twelve by eighteen inches. The ash pit should be about ten inches deep, fifteen in width and sixteen in length. The furnaces and first ten feet of the flues should be lined with fire brick. Care should be taken to have no wood within six inches of the flue or furnace. Hot air is not feasible for heating large greenhouses.

ALVIN, TEX.

The cape jasmine season just past is reported by the Alvin Cape Jessamine & Floral Co. to have been its most successful one, shipments topping the previous high-water mark by more than 150,000 buds. "We attribute this extra high record," says Manager W. L. Heller, "to two factors; first, good quality stock, as ninety-four per cent of our old customers came back this season; second, good advertising, which accounts for the long list of new customers, a large percentage of whom stated, 'We saw your ad in The Review.'"

We use HAMMOND'S SLUG SHOT on Currant Bushes in the Spring before the leaves are started. We put it on around the roots and have done it for two years, and find that the worms are killed before they get on the bush. For potatoes we put on SLUG SHOT as soon as the bugs come, and we have good vines, plenty of tubers and no bugs. It is the best thing we have ever used. For Sow Bugs in greenhouses it is sure death. We had a lot of them before using SLUG SHOT but they got out where it is used.

Slug Shot for Sow Bugs.

It is with great pleasure each week I read your valued paper, and I like to give a helping hand when I can. I do not wish to say anything against the use of Paris green and sugar, or bran, or any other material, for I know these are all good to kill bugs, such as wood lice (sow bugs), etc. But I would like to state, as I have done formerly, for the benefit of anyone bothered with sow bugs that I have thoroughly cleared my greenhouses of this pest by dusting freely with HAMMOND'S SLUG SHOT, spreading it well in the walks, under the benches, along the side walls and between the plants, using about 20 lbs. to a 20 ft. x 100 ft. house. This Slug Shot will not injure Carnation plants. I hope that this recital of my experience will be of help to others in trouble and especially recommend its use as it is not dangerous to human life as is Paris green.

The Market.

Stock has been extremely plentiful. Business has continued fairly good. Outdoor stock has greatly swelled the supply. Gladioli are especially numerous, the Halley variety being most in evidence. Carnations have been in heavy supply, but many are too poor for use. Good carnations are in demand. Snapdragons are not so numerous and sell readily. Roses are plentiful in shorts and mediums. Long ones are not to be had. Roses have continued in good demand, selling readily. Outdoor lilies are also in the market. Baby's breath can be had in abundance. While this sells readily, the large supply has not been utilized. Other miscellaneous stock includes calendulas, daisies, delphiniums, coreopsis, pinks, etc. Funeral work has been rather heavy, which has helped to utilize a number of blooms. Weddings have been fairly numerous, calling for decorations, corsages and bouquets.

Business here is still brisk and flowers are selling at a price that is about the same as a month ago. Carnations are small and of poor quality. Florists do not carry many of them in stock. Roses are plentiful and of fine quality. Fine Butterfly and Columbia are seen and the daily cut is larger than ever before. Gaillardias, larkspur and daisies are much in demand and are plentiful. CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

Retailers in this vicinity were complaining last week that business has been extremely slow and the crowded condition of the market would easily bear out their statements. With the exception of Saturday, June 18, business has been extremely dull. There have been a few weddings and funerals, which have kept business just about moving. Saturday, June 18, was quite good, however, business being brisk. Roses are being received in good shape outside of shipped stock, although they are not so long as usual, most of them running short and medium. Carnations are getting small and the quality is poor.

Peonies from storage have been moving nicely and have been used extensively for graduation exercises, while some commencements which call for cheaper stock have been taken care of nicely with white daisies. Ramblers have made their appearance and are moving fairly well. Delphiniums are being received in good condition in both light and dark blue. Gaillardias, bachelor's buttons, Easter lilies, achilleas, coreopsis and sweet peas are coming in well.

Various Notes.

Stephen Berthold, of the Cleveland Plant & Flower Co., is on a two weeks' vacation, which he is spending at his summer cottage in the country.

Mr. Stuhldreher, of Stuhldreher Bros., Mansfield, O., was a recent visitor.

W. A. R.

NEWARK, N. J.

The amount of graduation work is growing now, though the aggregate is far below what it was years ago, when floral gifts could be presented in public in all schools. The transient trade at present is dull, partly on account of the fact that such large numbers are unemployed. Prices, though much below those of a year ago, are not yet down to pre-war levels.

McLaughlin & Murphy, 181 Clinton avenue, report a good deal of funeral and wedding work, and considerable graduation work. R. B. M.

Mr. Greenhouse Man,

This Will Interest You

During the past few years you have been paying anywhere from $2.00 to $1.50 per gallon for your glazing cement, because of the costly method of selling.

We do away with this high cost. We have no salesmen's commissions to pay, and give you the benefit of this in lower price on your glazing cement.

Our price on Cealerite Glazing Cement is:

$1.00 per gallon in 60-gallon barrels
1.05 per gallon in 40-gallon ½ barrels
1.10 per gallon in 20-gallon kegs
1.20 per gallon in 10-gallon kits

We guarantee Cealerite Glazing Cement equal to any black asbestos glazing cement on the market, or your money refunded.

You take no chances. If we cannot prove to you our claims of quality to your entire satisfaction after you have our material, we will cancel our charges.

Cealerite Glazing Cement can be used with any glazing gun or putty bulb you may have on hand.

Save on your glazing cement.

LETTER FROM FERD. FISCHER.
To My Customers in America:
Those who are in the market for high grade Cyclamen seed, I wish to advise you that I have perfected the finest strain of Cyclamen seed I have ever offered, as for the past four years I have devoted my attention to improving my varieties. Cyclamen offered by me this season are all true to name and selected only from the best and healthy plants which in turn give very good results.
I have paid strict attention to my salmon and red shades particularly for the American trade. My seed soon will be offered by the American Bulb Co., who are my sole agents, and none is genuine unless purchased through the American Bulb Co. It is with pleasure that I recommend to all florists who are growers of high class plants to try out my seed. I hold recommendations from the best growers in the world. Yours very truly,
FERD. FISCHER.

In shipping out our transplanted seedlings, we surely pleased our trade, as one customer at Reading, Pennsylvania, who ordered 1000 wrote back: "Well, I can only say they are wonderful, never expected plants like these."

One at Columbia, South Carolina, wrote: "I want 200 more like the ones sent." Another at Baltimore, Maryland: "Cyclamen just arrived and they are surely fine."

This stock will be shipped during June and July, and you must expect to get selected plants as fine in every respect as you have ever received in 3-in. Cyclamen, for some plants now run as high as 18 to 21 leaves and they will be strong for 4-in. pots the day you receive them.

PELARGONIUMS

HURRAH FOR EASTER GREETING.
Look on page 17 March 26th issue of Review and see what advertising we got free. The panel photo on next page was taken by us March 17, 1915—note the date March 17th.
This article is wonderfully well written except that it minimizes the great superiority of Easter Greeting over the common sorts. We do not deny the regal beauty of all pelargoniums, but we should all think of the housewife, the ultimate buyer and judge. The old type are sure to disappoint.
Every claim we made for Easter Greeting when we introduced it in March, 1914, has been doubly vindicated. Our claim that it blooms from early March to October has never been denied.
But now, we have a nice stock of 2¼-in., some of which should go to you, if you would have Easter Greeting in it's grand perfection for Easter 1922. Only $7.00 per 100.

SEEDS

OZARK MAMMOTH STRAIN
PANSY SEED IS NOW READY.
You will find this strain has all the best varieties, native and others, blended, making this equal to any other known strain.
As there was a drought at seed time, our crop was light, but we have a limited amount of seed to offer at $5.00 per oz.; 2 ozs., $9.00; 3 ozs., $13.00.
We have tried every known strain that has been advertised during our 16 years of Pansy culture and know that ours is equal to any other grown.
We have just finished extensive improvements, so that weather conditions will not affect us summer or winter and hereafter can take care promptly of all orders, large or small.
Our terms are cash with order. Goods shipped prepaid and insured. When you buy plants it is our aim to get them to you if possible, and protect our customers until they receive the plants.

The Market.

Summer weather prevails. The first good rain for over three weeks came last Friday and it was much welcomed by all. The outdoor stock has not made any particular progress, but warm, sunny weather will show a great deal of difference. A big demand in aster plants is noticed by all the growers and fine, healthy stock is seen. The demand for bedding stock is falling off considerably; in fact, several of the growers have entirely sold out of geraniums. With a number of growers, geraniums were not grown so plentifully this year. Greenhouses are being cleaned up now and benches are being prepared for chrysanthemums. Outdoor stock is reaching us in fair supply, but the dry weather has held it back considerably. Indoor stock is not any too plentiful just now, especially in the rose supply, which last week fell off considerably, and the quality of the stock, combined with the warm weather and bad shipping, is clearly seen. The peony season is over. Peonies were particularly good in the later varieties. The early ones were caught by the frosts. Delphinium Belladonna is being shipped into our market and sells well. The supply is rather larger than the trade calls for at this time. Outdoor lilies are arriving and are selling well, but the supply is limited as yet. Large supplies of coreopsis are seen in all stores, but the demand has not been large. Lily of the valley is not nearly so plentiful as the trade would wish at this time. The demand for orchids has not been heavy so far this month, although a lot of weddings are booked for the end of the month. A few outdoor sweet peas are seen, but not in any quantity. There has been a considerable slowing up in the supply of carnations the last few days and they are getting small. Gladioli are reaching us in fair supply and the demand is good. There is a good supply of gypsophila on hand and the demand is good. Outdoor roses are making an excellent showing now and they are found useful for basket work, etc. Crimson ramblers are in good demand. Calendulas, mignonette, lupines, candytuft, snapdragons and daisies are in fair supply. There is a good supply of giant zinnias reaching the market and they sell well. Calla lilies and Easter lilies are not at all plentiful at this time. Bachelor's buttons are in good supply and sell readily. Green goods are plentiful, with the exception of smilax, which is somewhat off crop at this time. New fern leaves are arriving.

Various Notes.

Moses Patrick, of Auburn, N. Y., and James P. Boyle, of Lyons, N. Y., were delegates to the recent B. P. O. E. convention, held in this city.

E. F. Kennon, of the Climax Mfg. Co., Castorland, N. Y., called on trade last week.

Mr. Charles is calling on the seed trade at Fulton and surrounding country this week, making the trip by automobile.

A mantel decoration was seen in the window of Salter Bros. all week. The color scheme was brown and golden yellow.

David McGregor, of Grand avenue, was busy last week with a good number of wedding orders, which called for a fairly good quantity of flowers. He has several more orders for this present month.

Jacob Thomann & Sons have been extremely busy the last ten days with a heavy demand for funeral and wedding work. The former has been particularly heavy so far this month, while the amount of wedding work about equals that of last year.

Horace J. Head, representing George B. Hart, called on trade through the eastern part of the state last week.

Edwin P. Wilson attended the annual conclave of the Knights Templar Lodge, which was in convention at Syracuse Tuesday and Wednesday, June 14 and 15.

The second exhibit of the Rose Society of Rochester was held in Convention Hall Annex Monday and Tuesday, June 13 and 14. John Dunbar, city horticulturist and assistant superintendent of parks, said that it was his opinion that the display was considerably larger and of better quality than that of last year. Five silver trophies, four cups, a silver basket and also three medals were given as special prizes. The other awards for first and second prizes were blue and red ribbons. The park department had a beautiful exhibit of hundreds of choice blooms, but its specimens were not in the contest.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Wilson celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary June 17. They received many congratulations.

AJAX BLACK ASBESTOS

A PRACTICAL glazing material for water-proofing and air-proofing greenhouses - made for application in a practical manner. No clumsy, slow working tools necessary—simply a putty bulber or two and a filling gun to load same.

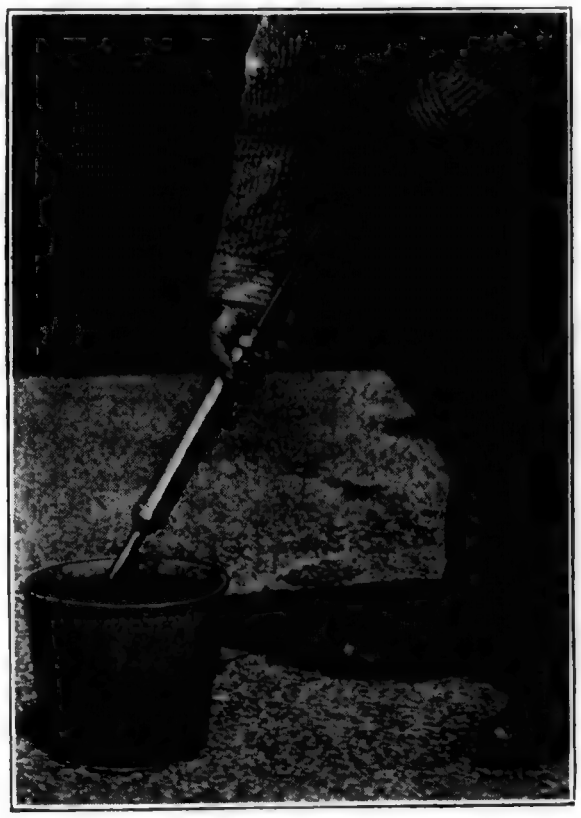
Ajax cement is a mastic composition of Asbestos fibres and heavy, semi and non-drying hydro-carbon oils. Its exceptional life is due to the fact that it never thoroughly hardens nor becomes brittle like an old fashioned white putty. The outside surface (which is, of course, exposed to the air) forms a tough, rubber-like skin, below which the material remains soft and elastic, for years. Because of this feature, Ajax Cement will not check or crack, and freely contracts and expands with changing weather conditions.

NOT AFFECTED BY EXTREME HEAT OR COLD

Ajax Glazing Cement is sold with the guarantee that the coldest weather will not cause it to become brittle or pull away.

On the other hand it is warranted not to sag or run in extremely hot weather (even when applied to vertical surfaces) due to its being interlaced with Asbestos Fibres.

As Ajax Glazing Cement never thoroughly hardens, glass glazed with it can be shifted when desired without the loss of breakage that so often results when hard drying white putties are used.



PAYS FOR ITSELF IN FUEL SAVING

While primarily made to stop water leaks, so thoroughly does Ajax Glazing Cement hermetically seal up the sash, that it will soon pay for itself in the saving of heat that is otherwise lost through air voids. This fact has been demonstrated time and time again, and we can prove it.

COSTS LESS THAN LEAD

Compared with the old fashioned White Lead putties, Ajax Glazing Cement not only lasts longer, but is a great deal lower in initial cost. One gallon is sufficient to glaze 500 linear feet of sash.

Illustrations Showing Method of Loading Bulber With Filling Gun and Applying Cement

1st Operation—Loading filling gun by drawing back handle and thus suctioning cement into barrel of gun.

2nd Operation—Loading bulber with injection of contents of filling gun.

Sealing Broken Glass.

Easily applied with a bulber. No clumsy tools necessary.

Filling Gun $3.00 (Solid Brass) Bulbers, each $1.25

AJAX GREEN HOUSE OUTSIDE WHITE PAINT

Made on a lead and zinc base. Durability fully guaranteed. The prices quoted are indeed nominal when the fact that this paint will cover 350 square feet of surface, two coats, is considered.

50 Gallon Barrels Gal. Per $3.00 25 Gallon Half Barrels Gal. Per $3.05 10 Gallon Kits Gal. Per $3 15

THE OLD RELIABLE
GLAZING CEMENT

Ajax Black Glazing Cement is one of the most favorably regarded asbestos glazing materials on the market, as well as one of the oldest. There is no better at any price, and if you permit yourself to be talked into paying more for some other brand of cement, you are simply throwing away just so much extra money.

You take no risk when you order Ajax Cement—if it is not all I claim it to be, you are reserved the right to return it, if not satisfactory.

The cement is shipped in steel drums, so you have no annoyance of leaky packages, If not all used up at once you can keep the material on hand indefinitely without loss from evaporation or leakage

In response to your Mr. D. S. Chapin's request for an opinion of Ajax Greenhouse Glazing Cement, will state that we applied several barrels of this product on our houses last spring, also a trial lot the year before, and find same giving excellent satisfaction.

Also quite a number of other growers in our vicinity have your glazing cement in use and are highly pleased with the service it renders and recommend it highly. Anyone in need of a good glazing putty will make no mistake in giving your product a trial.

THE GEORGE WITTBOLD CO.
CHICAGO

We have now used four or five barrels of your Black Plastic Bulbing Material and have glazed three of our houses without putty and simply bulbed the glass. We find that it makes a better job than when the putty alone is used and a great deal of money is saved in this way.

We find these houses do not leak and are in much better shape than the other houses which are bulbed with the liquid putty. We went over most of our houses with this material last fall, with the best results and we believe this material to pay for itself over and over by a saving of fuel.

McDONALD & CO.
CRAWFORDSVILLE, IND.

We do not want to be too complimentary, but we are pleased to say that after using three or four of the other widely advertised so-called glazing cements, we have found your material the most satisfactory. It is easier to apply, covers far more surface and best of all costs less than any of the others.

We do not want to be without it and we wish you would start a 10-gallon keg as we still have a small house to cover

First three houses built by us for Rockport Greenhouse Co., near Cleveland, Ohio.

There is a certain quality to our materials, an up-to-dateness of design, a fairness and courtesy to our business dealings that makes placing an order with us a pleasure.

Our customers will vouch for this. Take the case of the Rockport Greenhouse Co. In 1919, after careful investigation, they gave us the contract to build their first three houses, 36 ft. by 580 ft., then in 1920 they ordered three more and they have just placed their order for an additional three houses.

These are 41 feet 9 inches by 150 feet.

Texas Not Too Hot For Growing Year Around Greenhouse Roses and Carnations

"Any grower in ANY PART of the United States who has idle benches, just because 'it's the good old summer time,'" according to V. J. Davis of the Greenwood Floral Company, "is losing money he might just as well make."

He says Roses and Carnations can be successfully grown right through the heat of Summer. Located at Fort Worth, Texas, as his company's houses are, he knows exactly what he is talking about.

He does, however, say that to do it and make money you must have houses designed and constructed with that in mind. Before putting a dollar into greenhouses he did a lot of scouting about, then between us we worked out a house that gives him a temperature averaging five degrees below the outside. Of course you couldn't get that result with ridge and furrow houses. You must have ample ventilation on both sides, at the ridge and in each gable to insure a full sweep of air.

You recall that when we first started building wide iron frame houses there was a lot of talk about their being so much hotter than wooden ones. Some said the iron held the heat. And it does. But the extra height of the ridge with the distance the bulk of the iron members are from the plants, more than offset it.

If you can't exactly see why this is, you have only to compare in the Winter time, the quality of the air in a narrow and a wide house, first thing in the morning before you "open a crack of air." One is heavy and lifeless. The other buoyant and surprisingly fresh. There is your answer. When you are ready to talk over building one of our specially designed, all-year-around money-making houses —say when and where and we'll be there.

FREESIA PURITY---Improved

We believe we are the largest handlers of high-grade Purity Freesia bulbs in America. All our fields are thoroughly examined during their growing stage by members of the firm, to insure our customers the best the crops can produce. We can deliver Freesia bulbs early enough to enable you to get them in bloom for Christmas, if properly handled. Our bulbs are not grown in the wet district of California, but are properly watered by irrigation. They are all grown near Los Angeles, which florists in California recognize as the best place to grow high-grade bulbs. The fact that we sell quantities in California of our own growing is evidence that florists know where the best quality is produced. Bulbs offered in the following sizes, all up to size:

Up to ½	$ 7.50
½-⅝	12.50
Mammoth Bulbs, ⅝-¾	16.50
Jumbo Bulbs, ¾ and up (quantity limited)	22.00

M. WEILAND, Florist, 602 Davis St., Evanston, Ill.

American Bulb Company, Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sirs:

The Freesia Purity you sold me this year were as good as ever. I have found that I can always rely on your Freesia Bulbs. The large ones for early forcing were in for the holidays as usual.

The Rainbow Freesias are fine, growing tall and have very stiff stems. The colors are very fine and sell readily. Yours truly,

GEORGE C. WEILAND.

Gentlemen:

Just a word about the Freesia bulbs you sold me last year. I have grown Freesia bulbs for the past 20 years, but I have never before cut so large a percentage in December. I cut fully 50 per cent of my crop for the Christmas holidays. They were fine and sold well at the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange in Detroit.

Your Dutch bulbs are also fine.

Yours truly,

ROBERT KLAGGE, Mt. Clemens, Mich.

ROBT. CRAIG CO., Norwood, Pa., planted 100,000 of Fischer's celebrated Cyclamen Seed. A visit to the Craig establishment proves they have the finest plants ever seen, all in perfect, healthy condition.

CYCLAMEN SEED

Letter from FERD. FISCHER, Specialkultur und Versandgeschaft, Wiesbaden-Aukamm.

TO MY CUSTOMERS IN AMERICA:

Those who are in the market for high grade Cyclamen Seed, I wish to advise you that I have perfected the finest strain of Cyclamen Seed I have ever offered, as for the past four years I have devoted my attention to improving my varieties. Cyclamen offered by me this season are all true to name and selected only from the best and healthy plants which in turn give very good results.

I have paid strict attention to my Salmon and Red shades particularly for the American trade. My seed will be offered by the American Bulb Company, who are my sole agents, and none is genuine unless purchased through the American Bulb Company. It is with pleasure that I recommend to all florists who are growers of high-class plants to try out my seed. I hold recommendations from the best growers in the world.

Yours very truly, FERD. FISCHER.

Our Customers Stay With Us Year After Year because—

IT PAYS TO ORDER DIRECT OF THE GROWER

We are Rose growers especially for the shipping trade. We cut our Roses more in the bud, and grow them cooler, so that they will ship in better condition. All of our Roses are grown in one large range of glass, and are brought in from our greenhouses two and three times per day.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

SEEKING SUCCESS WITH SNAPDRAGON

Snapdragons have increased in popularity and usefulness in the flower shop year by year, well paying growers' efforts to produce them. The suggestions given here by one of the foremost growers of the flower will aid materially to success in its culture.

By G. S. RAMSBURG.

SNAPDRAGONS have become so generally known that there is no question about their usefulness or their popularity. Demand in every section exceeds the supply, and growers find them a profitable crop. Aside from the usual pests which trouble greenhouse plants, snapdragons are of such tender character as to invite many fungous diseases, some of which are troublesome and cause loss if not carefully handled. Possibly, the greatest enemy to snapdragon is rust, Puccinia antirrhini, a disease not yet conquered. Preventive measures are the best we know. We know that dampness on the foliage must be avoided, whether it comes from drip or from careless watering of plants. Likewise, all side drafts should be avoided, and in rainy weather air from overhead should be reduced to the minimum, always keeping the temperature above 55 degrees. Until rust became a factor a lower temperature was thought necessary and growers generally preferred a temperature of from 40 to 45 degrees. New conditions brought changes in growing plans and now we vary the temperature to suit our needs.

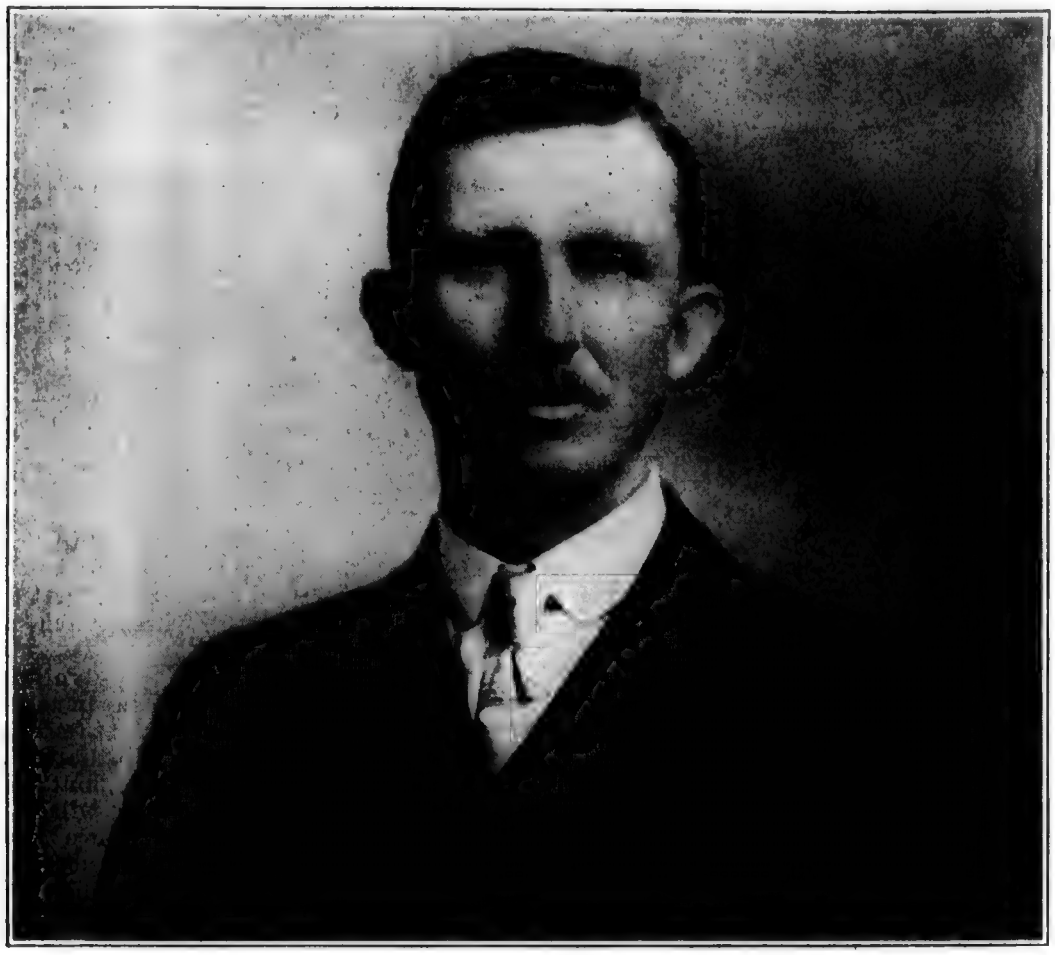
Warmer.

The last season we produced the finest snapdragons we have grown and produced them in a temperature of from 55 to 70 degrees. The third crop on the same plants is yet so good and so abundant that we cannot give them up. In this particular bed there are 450 plants, from which a good crop was taken last fall. The plants were then cut back to new shoots and, at different times, well dressed with ground bone and sheep manure. There were always some blooms in sight. The second crop resulted in over 1,600 fancy spikes and a number of seconds for spray work, as every shoot was permitted to flower. Later, on each spike cut, three to six shoots grew and flowered, with stems twelve to eighteen inches long. They came most heavily at Memorial day, when much needed. This crop was slow and was forced for three weeks in a temperature of from 65 to 100 degrees, with air excluded below 75 degrees. We mention this to show that snapdragons will function under forced conditions when necessary to meet a demand. It is not, however, advisable to force young plants. Thus, by experimenting, we find that we can take a great many liberties with snapdragons and still get profitable results.

Care Necessary.

Great care should be exercised at every point. Seedlings or cuttings must not be carelessly handled. They should be placed on a bench in good light, with four or five rows of pots set together, leaving enough space between the blocks to water the plants from the sides, so that the foliage may be kept dry. The plants can be kept growing by potting on, if benches are not ready when a shift is necessary. It is better to set plants from small pots, getting the stock to the flowering bench as quickly as possible.

A common error is to give too little space to plants set in benches. Plenty of growing room results in strong plants, and a strong plant will not only give more and better blooms, but will have greater power to resist disease. Each season, when planting, we have allowed more space, and this year we shall set the plants fourteen to eighteen inches apart, according to variety. A single plant, dug from the bench referred to and grown separately for experimental purposes, developed over thirty strong flower spikes, while the plants remaining in the bench averaged only about seven spikes. This is proof that more space is necessary. We have also observed that isolated plants were far more vigorous and healthy, and have never found such a plant affected by rust. Rust, like many contagious human diseases, thrives best in congested areas. Air, sunlight and watchful care are the best that can be offered today for prevention of this troublesome fungus. Another preventive measure is to keep the foliage covered with powdered sulphur, ordinary sulphur, the kind mother gave us in the springtime with molasses.



A Bench of Such Snapdragon Is Worth Money to Any Florist.

Sulphur.

We elaborate this, as one grower wanted to know which of five kinds of sulphur we meant. Apply the powdered sulphur with bellows, or any convenient method, at every stage of growth from seedlings to the blooming period. Do not apply it after the blooms appear. Plants should be fumigated regularly to control green fly, the most harmful insect pest. If tobacco stems are used for fumigating, be careful not to scorch the leaves.

To be successful with snapdragons, we would urge close attention to small details. In fact, this would apply to any plant, and we have observed that, where a grower was successful with snapdragon, he had other stock coming in good shape. Daily watch over all plants is none too close attention. Note the slightest change and immediately apply a remedy. If green fly is present, fumigate at once. If yellow spots appear on leaves, pick such leaves and destroy them. Do not wait to see if it means rust, which always shows first on the top of a leaf. If rust should develop, this watchful method will keep it in check. Should rust be discovered in small seedlings, destroy each affected plant, together with all the plants around it. A small fire is easily quenched, and the loss of a crop may be averted by the sacrifice of a few plants. Be watchful and act quickly.

As to the marketing of snapdragon blooms, we have found no trouble in getting customers. Snapdragons, when well grown, are good keepers, ship well, and satisfy all classes of trade. The spikes should be cut when from four to eight buds are open, especially in summer, when bees of various kinds are operating. Flowers soon wilt and drop off after a visit from any bee, while, if bees are kept away or if it is a season when there are no bees, flowers will remain good and hold on for days and even weeks. In sections where bees are abundant it pays to screen the windows, or screen the flowering beds to protect the blooms. If it is desired to protect only a small lot of blooms, it would be cheaper to screen the plants. If a house of plants is to be protected, screens may be placed over the windows, using ordinary cloth netting. By the use of screens, a crop of blooms may be held in perfect condition on the plants for two or three weeks.

Sowing Seeds.

The best method for shipping blooms is to tie them in bunches of twelve to twenty-five spikes, wrap them in tissue and then in heavy paper, always leaving the top open. This not only makes a neat package, but makes one that carries well and makes delivery safe, which is important.

If flowers are wanted in the fall or early winter, seed should be sown in June or July, according to the section of country. For plants to follow chrysanthemums, allow seventy-five to ninety days from the sowing of the seed until planting out. Note again that the use of small plants is advised, principally to avoid any check in growth.

As to culture, snapdragons grow well in either light or heavy soil, prepared with about one-fifth well-rotted dressing. If plants are to remain over one crop, light feeding may be done. At this time it is not wise to cultivate the soil, as the roots are too near the surface. Apply dressing as a mulch or in liquid form and see that the soil is kept moist. Healthy plants will use quantities of water, as their root systems are heavy. Plants suffer on bright or windy days from wilting, if they are not kept watered, but water may be withheld in cloudy or rainy weather, thus avoiding excessive moisture in the houses.

The outlook for snapdragon is bright. Growers have overcome minor obstacles and reports of great success come from every section. We climb the hills to view the valleys, and growers of snapdragon will conquer its enemies to gain the reward, and have for their satisfaction an abundance of blooms of this grand flower in any desired color.

MAY QUARANTINE CANADA.

W. R. Walton and L. H. Worthley, of the Department of Agriculture, engaged in corn borer work, appeared June 28 before the Federal Horticultural Board to urge the adoption of quarantine measures against Canada on account of the discovery in Ontario of the European corn borer. It was said that Canada had not made any particular provision to combat this pest, although J. M. Swaine, acting Dominion entomologist, in a telegram to the board stated, "Our quarantine extremely thorough and would seem that if you quarantine material from our infected counties in Ontario you would avoid any danger."

The board is taking the matter under advisement, but it is probable that a blanket order embodying the terms of Quarantine 37 against all plant products will be adopted and that exceptions will be made to take care of uninfected sections of Canada.

KOST DESCRIBES COAL SAVING.

Forced Draft Aids Combustion.

A grower since he started to work for Pitcher & Manda, at Short Hills, N. J., in 1890, S. A. Kost, whose soil pulverizer is helping solve a problem for many florists, is always interested in whatever concerns a greenhouseman's interests. Talking with a prominent engineer on the combustion and ignition of gases, on a Mississippi river steamboat a short time ago, Mr. Kost gained an inkling of how to save as much as twenty-five to fifty per cent of the coal the average grower burns.

"This heating engineer," says Mr. Kost, "has invented a machine to blow finely pulverized coal dust into the boilers. With a forced draft arrangement, as high as sixty per cent of the fuel is saved. We talked on combustion and the proper mixture of the element of oxygen with carbon gas. A proper mixture is necessary for the ignition of fuel gases. By obtaining the most efficient mixture the waste that goes up the chimneys of nearly every boiler is saved. This engineer is at the head of a large corporation and is installing this system in many large factories."

An Inexpensive System.

How the average grower can install his own system for less than $100 is described by Mr. Kost in this way:

"Get an ordinary blower, driven with a small electric motor. Install this under your grates. With the increased amount of oxygen blown under the grates a proper mixture of gases for ignition is made, thereby burning up the most vital energy of heat units in coal, which is carbon. You will have little smoke and twenty-five to fifty per cent more heat from the same amount of coal. The reason the draft of a chimney does not properly mix the elements of carbon gas and oxygen is that the lighter carbon gas is drawn up the chimney first, and you thereby lose vital fuel heat units.

"Carbon gas will not ignite unless a proper mixture with oxygen from the air is made. Another point is that excessive heat drives out the oxygen, so that a forced draft under the grates is necessary. If you run an automobile and overheat the engine, the reason it loses its 'pep' is that the heat drives out the oxygen and an improper mixture is the result, causing poor ignition."

SWEET PEA SOCIETY MEETS

SWEET PEA SHOW.

Good Despite Drought.

The thirteenth annual exhibition and meeting of the American Sweet Pea Society was held in the American Museum of Natural History, New York, Saturday, June 25. The exhibition continued through the following day, Sunday.

The exhibition was staged in the foyer of the museum and was creditable, considering that the drought of the past few weeks made a large showing impossible. Under the circumstances, the quality of stock staged was remarkable, although the entries were few. The finest exhibits were staged by William Gray, Newport, R. I., gardener for Princess Anastasia of Greece, formerly Mrs. W. B. Leeds, and rarely have finer flowers been seen, flowers of large size on unusually stout stems. Mr. Gray easily won first in class 2, calling for six vases of six varieties, twenty sprays to a vase, with Rosabelle deep pink; Floradora, purple; Mrs. Arnold Hitchcock, blush; R. F. Felton, lavender; Elegance, blush; and Constance Hinton, white. It was a splendid exhibit.

Special Classes.

Mrs. Robert Winthrop, Lenox, Mass., whose gardener is S. W. Carlquist, won first in the class for three vases of novelties for 1921, with Rose Elliott, cerise pink, Lavender Bell, and Fair Lady, light pink. In class 8, calling for six vases of six distinct varieties, fifteen sprays to a vase, Mr. Gray won first with Daisybud, light pink; Mrs. Arnold Hitchcock, Constance Hinton and Hawlmark Pink; Mrs. Tom Jones, purple, and Elegance.

The Hutchins memorial cup, to be held for one year only, offered for twelve vases, twelve distinct varieties and twenty sprays to a vase, the class which also carried the Burpee trophy cup, was won by C. F. Cartledge, of Locust Valley, N. Y., for whom William C. Noonan is gardener, with Hercules, Mrs. Tom Jones, King Edward, Mrs. Cuthbertson, Mrs. Hugh Dickson, King Manoel, Loyalty, Alfrida Pearson, Lady Evelyn Eyre, Jack Cornwall, Constance Hinton and Royal Purple, a fine exhibit.

The Max Schling gold bronze medal for the best vase of a 1921 novelty catalogued by an American seed house, was won by Mrs. Winthrop, with Picture, a light pink, with keel darker than the wings.

Burpee Stages Fine Display.

The only commercial exhibitor was the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, which staged a handsome exhibit, embracing a large number of varieties set up in the concern's usual good style. Four novelties in the exhibit won certificates: Giant White, which seems destined to oust Constance Hinton from its position as the premier white variety; Floradale, a bright and lively purple; Improved Margaret Atlee, richer in color and larger in stem than the original, and Rosalind, a clear rose.

Prize-Winners.

Other prize-winners were as follows:

Vase of fifty sprays mixed Spencer, six or more varieties—Princess Anastasia, first; Mrs. Winthrop, second; William G. Taylor, Newport, R. I., third.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the American Sweet Pea Society was held in the curator's office of the museum, with an attendance of about six, outside of the president, secretary and a few committee members. President W. A. Sperling called the meeting to order, and remarked that he would dispense with an address, as his subject matter had already been published in the society's bulletin. He hoped, he said, that there would be a renewal of interest in the society's work the coming year, and that the society would be able to make a better showing. Secretary Vick announced that his report would be forthcoming at a future time. There was no report from the treasurer, but President Sperling announced that there was a balance in the treasury of $358. The Professor A. C. Beal said there was no report to make on the trial grounds at Cornell University, as no official trials had been made since before the war. Some work had been done at the university in the direction of trials of winter-flowering sweet peas, and a report on them would be the subject of a bulletin to be issued soon.

Officers Elected.

The society's officers were re-elected, as follows: President: W. A. Sperling, New York; Vice-president, David Burpee, Philadelphia; Secretary, E. C. Vick, Jersey City, N. J.; treasurer, William Sim, Boston, Mass. Selection of the next place of meeting was left to the executive committee. After a vote of thanks to the Horticultural Society of New York and to the museum's authorities for their cordial coöperation in the exhibition, the meeting adjourned.

SOIL STERILIZATION.

The problem of finding a practical and inexpensive form of soil sterilization for the florist who has no ways or means to avail himself of steam has often been touched upon in your columns, but so far I have not seen it satisfactorily solved.

Here in the south, where nematodes, commonly called eelworms or rootknot, are especially troublesome, some form of soil sterilization, not only in the greenhouse, but also in outside beds and coldframes, is really a necessity for success, and I have for years been experimenting with different chemicals with more or less favorable results.

Heavy applications of lime and kainite are beneficial, but their use is not always practical or desirable.

Last year, in talking the matter over with Dr. W. E. Hinds, the Alabama state entomologist, he recommended a trial of sodium cyanide in solution, one ounce to eight gallons of water. I tried this out, first on a small scale, and afterwards for bench soil. I have found it so satisfactory in its effect that now I use it on all potting soil and also on outside beds.

As yet, my experiments have not gone far enough to say definitely to what extent it will control the different fungous spores and bacteria, but far enough to say that it is the best thing I have ever tried and to recommend it for trial to my brother florists.

Ordinarily, I find the above-stated strength satisfactory, but I have used it weaker, when, for instance, a soil pile can be covered, or stronger, when I wish to reach such pests as grubworms or mole crickets.

After the soil is on the benches, ready to be planted, I soak it thoroughly with this solution, using about 150 gallons to a 4x100-foot bench. After applying it, I close the house down for the night. The next morning, even the worst nematode-infested soil will show no living nematodes, earthworms or grubs. In one instance, when I planted sweet peas twenty-four hours after this application, I found the plants showing bad effects; namely, a pale, sickly color. Nevertheless, they outgrew it and did well. But in no other instance have I found any bad effects from planting after twenty-four hours. However, it may be safer to delay the planting for thirty-six or forty-eight hours.

In solid beds I soak the soil to a depth of six or eight inches. Small piles of potting soil I usually cover with sacks or tarpaulin to keep the fumes confined within the soil.

For applying the solution I use an ordinary watering can with sprinkler and have never found any bad effects upon myself or the men during or after the operation. Of course, it must be kept in mind that the poison is deadly for humans or animals should they drink any of it and it must be handled with due care.

I use ninety-six to ninety-eight per cent pure sodium cyanide, manufactured into egg-shaped lumps, averaging one ounce each and sold under the proprietary name, "Cyanegg." The uniform size makes it easy to gauge the proper strength. The cost of material does not average over 50 cents per 100-foot bench. H. P. Loding.

A CHECK CASHER.

A month ago a young man about 32 years old, of dark complexion, slight build and medium height, called on us to solicit an order for calla bulbs, giving his name as E. De Roo Mitting, with offices in Chicago and San Francisco. He had printed stationery and exhibited letters from some prominent firms in this line. We believed him to be what he represented himself and gave him an order for later delivery. A few days later he returned and stated that he was held in town longer than he had expected and asked us to cash a personal check on a Chicago bank for $25, which we did. This check was returned to us, protested for insufficient funds, and although we have written several times to him, we have had no reply. We have since been informed by other seed houses, upon whom he called, that the investigation they made in California showed him not to be in good standing there.

We have thought it proper to give The Review these facts, which may help to save some other people from our experience. S. S. Skidelsky & Co.

IS IT THE SAME BUG?

Having read the article on "Battling Rose Beetle" in The Review for June 16, I am giving a little information which may be of benefit to fellow florists. It is surely not expensive to try.

We have this same beetle down here and we term it the June bug. It bothers us considerably on certain vegetable crops outdoors. We eliminate it to a certain extent by using a galvanized tub and a lantern or lamp. We put about eight inches of water in the tub and rest the lantern on a narrow board, just wide enough to hold the lantern or lamp without falling. The beetles are attracted by the light and fall into the water and are drowned.

I believe that greenhouses can be absolutely rid of this pest by the use of this device. Of course, outdoors after we have rid our own fields the insects come in from the neighbors'.

I should like to have some of the growers in the north try this plan and let me know how well they succeed with it. Joseph L. Weil.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Boston, Mass.—A meeting of the creditors of N. F. McCarthy & Co. was called Thursday, June 16, by N. F. McCarthy himself, to consider his assets and liabilities. His statement showed that his troubles were due wholly to a lack of working capital. After some discussion a committee was appointed to investigate the case more fully and to report at a later meeting. This committee comprised W. H. Elliott, Thomas Roland, William Hannan, J. M. Cohen and Clarence Blakely. A later meeting was held June 23. All present seemed desirous of helping Mr. McCarthy tide over the present crisis. A committee of five trustees was appointed, which will work in conjunction with Mr. McCarthy in carrying on the business. Debts to June 1 were covered by a mortgage, and the creditors were given notes, paying six per cent interest, and payable in full in five years.

Youngstown, O.—The trade fixtures and merchandise of A. W. Wilson, who operated Wilson's Flower Shoppe at Hotel Ohio, Youngstown, O., were ordered sold to the highest bidder June 29, at the Fisher-Gilder warehouse, 575 Mahoning avenue, Youngstown. The appraised value of goods was $536.75; the face amount of accounts, $77.94, and liabilities were $8,267.49. W. J. Smith, of the Altimo Culture Co., Canfield, O., is assignee.

Moorestown, N. J.—The Stokes Seed Farms Co. has halted its contemplated bankruptcy proceedings. See page 106.

ARE YOU WORKING UP STOCK?

There seems no end to the quantities of plants and bulbs which can be sold in the trade and by the trade to the public. Although the trade spent a busy season in propagating for spring business, still the demand exceeded the supply. Like this:

Here's your check, and welcome. That little ad sure sold the goods; am regretful only that I did not have more stock to offer.—F. W. Meyer, Cherryvale, Kan., June 25, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

LOS ANGELES' LEADERS

GHT-SEEING AT SAWTELLE.

Armacost's Big Range.

name, Walter Armacost & Co., become so well known to the trade rally that nothing in the way of introduction is necessary. The writer has ently visited this range, at Sawl, Cal., and watched its growth from mall beginning, some nine or ten s ago, to its present colossal protions. Its record has been one of tant and consistent progress, until it ranks with the finest in the coun. It has been built up by thorough-, by confidence in the outcome and everlastingly watching for any way which either the growing end or the vice to the firm's patrons could be proved. It must have taken a great of courage at times, when business all kinds looked bad, to keep on nding money, building at high prices d purchasing high-grade equipment do this. But a fearless optimism or optimistic confidence seems to pos- Walter Armacost and he goes quietly on, improving systematically every part of his great place. And the beauty of it all is that no one is more willing or anxious to concede this than F. E. Royston, Mr. Armacost's partner.

The exhibition features being prepared for the convention of the California Association of Nurserymen are expected to draw many trade visitors to Los Angeles October 20 to 23. A 7-acre garden of growing exhibits, an armory full of indoor displays and a choice exhibition of fruits are some of the attractions. Additional interest will be found by trade visitors in a number of establishments in the vicinity which occupy a prominent place in our industry. One of these is described here; others will be noted in subsequent issues.

One of the principal departments here is the rose-growing and the cut was being graded for the day at the time the writer called. This naturally led to a question as to numbers, and while statistics are dry reading, it may be noted that that day's cut was about 13,000 salable flowers. Mr. Armacost says his average daily cut is about 10,000. Among three of the most popular varieties during the week previous, Milady had run from 3,600 to 4,000 daily; Russell, 1,600 to 2,200, and Ophelia was steady at 1,500. At present about 150,000 square feet of glass is devoted to roses, but nine new houses, each 36x300 feet, are to be added this summer, as will be noted later. Besides the above, Beauties are largely grown, also Butterfly, Columbia, White Killarney, Premier, Hadley, Hoosier Beauty, Pilgrim, Crusader and the new varieties, Golden Ophelia and White Ophelia. Butterfly, according to Mr. Armacost, does not produce quite so freely as Ophelia, but is a popular rose with retailers. He also notes that the splendid red, Crusader, has the bad habit of sometimes developing the blue tint that has sounded the death knell of so many fine reds.

Rose Culture.

Regarding the culture of the roses, there is not much to say. House after house is visited and the same fine growth, abundant shoots and robust health are visible in all. Solid beds on the ground level are used, no tiling or other drainage as yet having been found necessary, though, should it become so, an outfall ditch has been provided at the south end of the range and into this the land will be drained. There seems no necessity for this, however, judging by the uniformly fine appearance of the plants. A special house is given up to propagating roses and growing valley, the pips being inserted in batches every four days, thus insuring a constant supply for the shipping and wholesale business at 321 East Fourth street, Los Angeles.

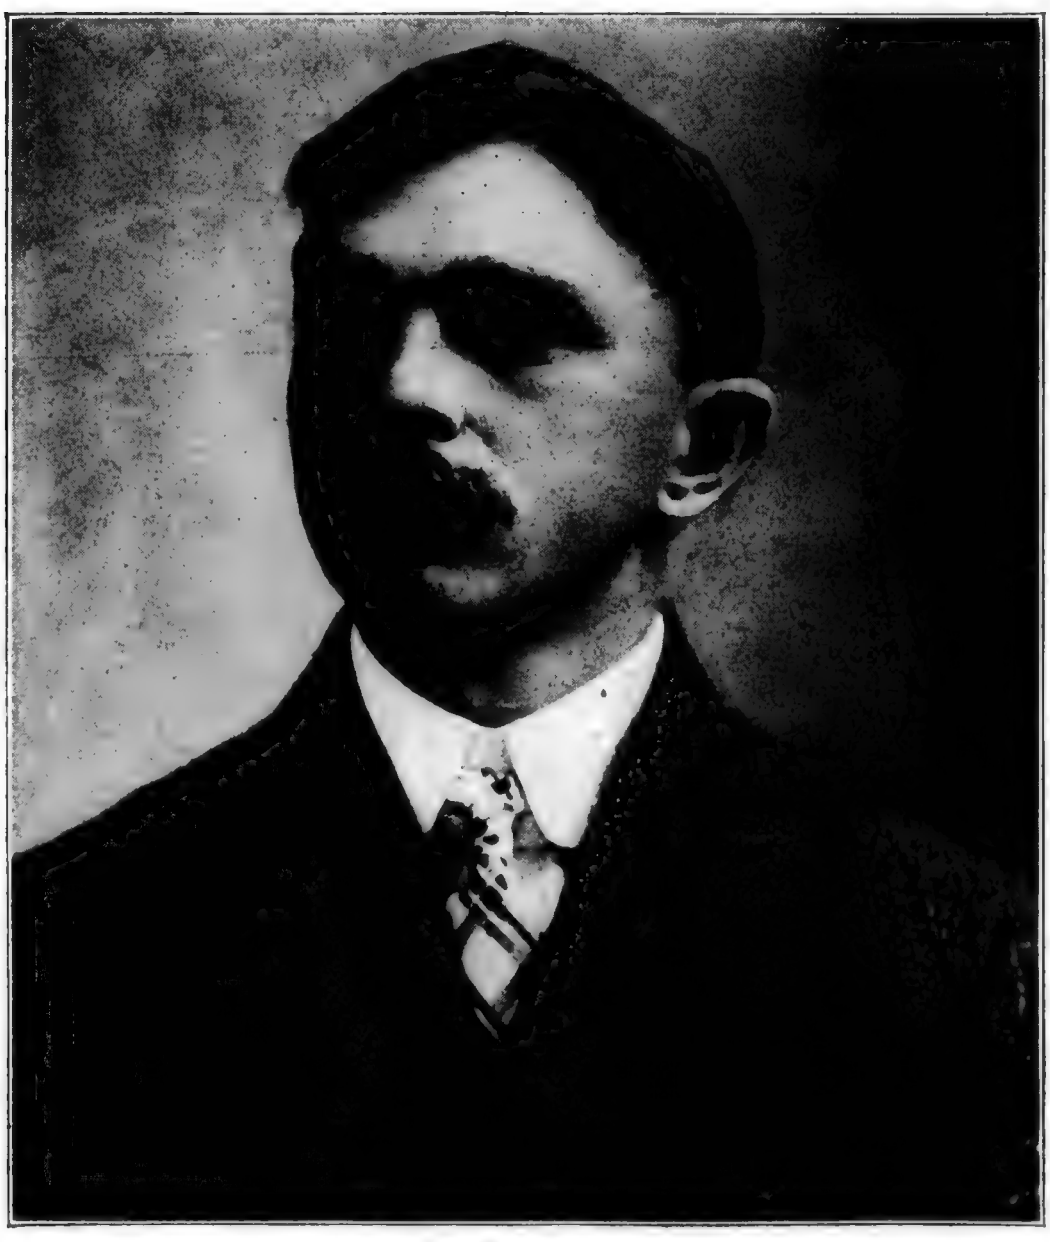
Of the thirty-two and one-half acres comprised in the range, fifteen acres are devoted to Asparagus plumosus under lath and, with this big area, there is still no surplus, though every foot is productive. All the regular shipments of greens are made direct from Sawtelle, thus saving the trip to Los Angeles. Doubtless this accounts for the fresh condition in which the greens arrive, even at such far-off points as Minnesota. Every bunch is wrapped separately in paper for the longest journeys, also for those sections where long desert trips intervene. The stock is shipped all summer long to Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico and nearer states to the east; also, to Oregon, Washington and other northern states. The advantage of packing and shipping direct from the growing quarters can hardly be overestimated.



Packing Standardized.

While on the subject of packing, it may be noted that all plants are shipped direct from Sawtelle and the system here is the best possible. Around the walls of a 60x60-foot sawmill are racks in which a supply of every piece of lumber needed to make any packing case is stored, and a stenciled sign shows at a glance which piece is in any rack. A number of shipping cases are always on hand, ready made up and marked for capacity. Thus a case to take a dozen 5-inch pots is marked 12.5 P., another to take plants out of pots will be marked with the number and O. P., while still others are marked for wrapped plants packed erect. The sides of the cases for 5-inch pots or other sizes are exactly high enough so that they may be cleated at the top, thus saving a great amount of labor. Everything, in short, is standardized, so that, at a busy time, when experienced help is short, the cases are practically foolproof, and green hands of ordinary intelligence can hardly make a mistake. The roof of this building is truss-supported, so that there are no posts in the way. This facilitates the handling of lumber in all lengths to the saws and other machines. Mill-run lumber is bought and resawed on the place.

What will eventually be the principal plant-packing shed is now used as a paint shop, and the material for the nine new houses is being painted, sash-bars, gutters, ventilators and all woodwork being given two good coats before erection. Additions to this shed are in contemplation and, when they are complete, the plants will be trucked direct from the greenhouses to the packing shed, orders assembled and at once placed in the service trucks for delivery, at a great saving of time and labor.

A Big Plant Business.

Some idea of the size of the plant business here may be gathered from the fact that in Erica melanthera alone there are 50,000 pot plants for this year's sales, and another 50,000 coming on for next year, a total in pots of 100,000, mostly 4-inch and 5-inch. Then of cyclamens 115,000 are grown, 75,000 for sale in shipping sizes, mostly 3-inch, the other 35,000 to be finished and shipped in bloom. Hydrangeas, primulas, cinerarias, coleus and many others are grown, in smaller numbers, it is true, but still in large quantities. The ericas for this year's sales are already potted and established, so there is no fear of their not holding up when shipped, a common fault when these capillary-rooted plants are disturbed at or near the blooming period. They are a splendid, even lot, well worthy of a long journey to see. Returning to the cyclamens, it was noted that the 3-inch stock, now being shipped out for growing on, was all stood at a good distance apart and the plants are of wonderfully good appearance, leafy, dwarf and extra full. Mr. Armacost said, "Any of these that are not sold will remain here and be finished." So it is necessary to keep them in good cultural shape, both to give satisfaction to purchasers of young stock and to guard against loss in the event of their not being sold at this stage.

Walter Armacost.

The Orchid Houses.

Among other interesting features are the orchid houses, where cattleyas, phalænopsis and others are grown for cutting. The orchid grower here is preparing to go in for seedling raising, and is on the lookout for good varieties for crossing. A number of Phalænopsis grandiflora and amabilis were making a fine show, C. gigas being also in bloom. Seedling fern raising is going on and thousands of young plumosus are just breaking through their covering of humus, of which material Mr. Armacost uses large quantities. Outside several acres of American Beauty asters look promising and more are being planted. An interesting feature, too, is the growing of lily bulbs, both from the "flakes" and also from seed. This has not progressed far enough to be determinate, but the hundreds of tiny plants look promising in the extreme.

Fine Equipment.

These notes are more or less rambling, but no notice of the place would be complete without a mention of the immense new reservoirs for liquid manure and water. In order to save as much rain water as possible, the house gutters are connected with sewer pipes to the main water conduit, into which the water is pumped and runs by gravity to a great cement reservoir. By the side of this is a leaching floor for manure, which is hauled in and water turned on it, the drainings being led to another cement reservoir, which can hold enough liquid manure to water the whole plant at one operation when necessary. An electrically driven centrifugal pump delivers the liquids to the houses at an eighty-five-pound pressure and the valves are so arranged that clear water, liquid manure at full strength or a mixture of the two at any required strength can be had by manipulation. This is the finest and most complete installation of its kind the writer has ever seen, east or west.

The boilers here are capable of 390 horsepower at normal, though a much higher horsepower could be developed if required. In one of the boilers all the refuse of the place is incinerated, and this is used to soften and heat the water before it goes to the main boilers. By a system of valves, the steam from any one or all of the boilers can be used in any group or all the houses, so that, in case of a breakdown, no part of the range is in danger. Oil is used as fuel and a new cement reservoir of 3,000-barrel capacity has been built this year. During the summer this is not used, but the original and smaller one has been retained for use when not running at full capacity. Such a large storage, of course, makes it almost impossible to be caught without a good oil supply, no matter what happens.

Every Man a Part.

Regarding the new houses already mentioned, the construction is going on rapidly. The benches and pipes are all in place and Mr. Armacost hopes to plant before glazing. All the work is done by mechanics in the employ of the firm, and here the same systematic methods are followed. In the building or pipe fitting every man has his part to do, and the assembling is done smoothly and without a hitch.

In tools and equipment the best obtainable labor-savers are used. An electrically driven power pipe-threader, for instance, is a most useful tool. By its aid, pipe up to 4-inch can be threaded in a few seconds, a job that would take three or four men, with hand dies, a long time. It is also just as well adapted to threading ½-inch or ¾-inch pipe. In fact, the whole place is run in an almost perfect system, and reflects the greatest credit on its head and everyone else concerned. Visitors to the big show of the California Nurserymen's Association next fall should not fail to take in the great range of Walter Armacost & Co., or they will miss one of the most interesting and instructive places in the west. Attractive Window Displays Are Usual at Lubliner's New Store.

The "Service Corner" Is a Restful Spot in Lubliner's New Store.

LUBLINER'S NEW STORE.

The rapidly increasing business of William Lubliner, Milwaukee, Wis., demanded that he move his business into a place where he could get larger quarters. So he moved in the early part of May into one of the largest and best equipped florists' stores in the state, and comparable to almost any in the middle west.

The two illustrations show the exterior and interior of the store. The show window is a spacious affair, prettily tiled, with a mirror effect on the sides, and opening out into the store at its full width. Thus an unobstructed view of the attractive interior is obtained by all who pass the store. The view of the interior shows the manner of decorating the store. It is all in white tile and white woodwork. The little "service corner," where patrons may sit and write cards or sit and rest and wait, is attractive and cozy.

The store occupies a space twenty-three feet wide and ninety feet long, which makes it a good-sized store.

LOW-PRICED CASH REGISTER.

In the past many florists who were starting in business, while realizing the great value of receipt-printing cash registers, felt that they could not afford machines of that type because of their higher price.

Announcement has been made by the National Cash Register Co. that a new low-priced cash register, designed to fill this long felt want, has been placed on the market. The new machine, which is called the Class 1100, is a low-priced register that issues a receipt with every transaction.

The company's corps of inventors set to work; a model was built and given severe tests to make sure that it was up to standard; then the register was placed in actual operation in stores and met requirements with success.

The new register is built in several different models, adapted for use in varied lines of business. At each operation of the register a receipt is printed and issued. This receipt shows the merchant's name and address, the amount and number of the transaction, and the date.

GERMAN METHOD

CYCLAMENS IN GERMANY.

Methods of Expert Growers.

German growers have been celebrated for their splendid cyclamen plants and a great part of the seed sown by florists of the United States each year comes from that country. The methods used in this country follow, as a rule, those learned by our growers either in their youth abroad or from florists of German extraction. After having read the article on cyclamen culture in the June 9 issue of The Review, outlining approved American methods, it will be interesting to learn how a cyclamen specialist of Germany describes the methods used there today. Johann Dlabka, one of the foremost cyclamen growers, at Zehlendorf, writes for The Review's readers regarding the German ways as follows:

"Seed sowing may be done from early August to December, according to the time in which the plants are wished to be in flower. Sow the seeds in handy boxes; cover them; keep them moderately moist, in a warm temperature, about 65 degrees, and dark for three or four weeks, until they are well germinated. Then give them plenty of light and a lower temperature, about 60 degrees. During the fall and winter the seedlings must be transplanted two or three times and should not be kept warmer than 55 or 60 degrees. Otherwise, they become weak and subject to diseases.

The Last Shift.

"From March to May the seedlings are potted in 3-inch pots and placed in moderately warm hotbeds, which are kept shaded and closed for some days. The plants should not be bedded in the compost of the hotbed, but placed upon it. Then, under favorable conditions, some air may be given them, and, as soon as they are well rooted, the plants must be shifted again to 4-inch pots. The last shift must be done, at the latest, about the middle of August. Heavy dews, falling from the end of July on, will do the plants much good and, therefore, plenty of air should be given them during both the day and the night.

"If this method is followed, the plants may be placed in the houses in a well hardened condition and not subject to attacks by disease. The compost never should be of a fresh nature, but old and well decayed, and fertilizers should be mixed with the compost some months before it is used. When the plants are shifted the last time the compost used should have been mixed with additional fertilizer some months before. From the time of mixing to the time of using, the compost should be well worked through and kept moist.

"To repeat some of the important points: Keep the plants, after they are well rooted, in moderately warm hotbeds, never too warm; give them air according to the outside conditions; spray them in the morning and water them in the afternoon. On bright days, shading is needed. Use only well decayed and old compost and never mix in fresh or undecayed fertilizers. Keep the bulbs in a growing condition when bedding them in the compost, but place the bulbs on the surface of the compost when shifting them for the last time.

"The best strains will give unsatisfactory results with a poor grower, but a bad strain can not be improved, even by the best grower."

The Cyclamen's Disease.

In explanation of the disease which has troubled so many growers of cyclamens in this country of late, another German with an intimate knowledge of cyclamen culture, Robert Blossfeld, of Potsdam, writes for the benefit of the readers of The Review as follows:

"Regarding the disease of the cyclamen, of which much has been heard in the last year from American growers, my personal opinion is the following: The cyclamen is the favorite of the German growers and is grown in great quantities throughout the country. In former times, about ten or twenty years ago, the plants were grown in hotbeds, and often, during the growth of the plants, some of the best and most promising plants rotted off in one night, and even during the day. Plants which seemed in perfect health would have, a few hours after an inspection, bulbs which were soft and rotted. Since we have grown the cyclamen, not in hotbeds, but in moderately warm beds, packed with undecayed leaves mixed sometimes, especially in the early spring, with fresh horse manure, and since we have given it plenty of fresh air and have followed the culture outlined previously, no more disease has appeared.

"The reason for the disease is not only the weakness caused by the hotbed and the warm, moist temperature, but also, I think, when the growth is pushed in this manner, the leaves are not able to transform and assimilate the enormous amount of nourishment offered by the roots, which are working with a maximum power. So, in the cellular texture an overpressure is caused, bursting some of the cells, into which the fungus enters. Then the bulbs rot. This fungus is, in my opinion, of the botrytis class and allied with the fungus which occurs sometimes in propagating houses where the temperature is too high and where growth is pushed too much."

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

Funeral work was in the ascendency last week at Albany, N. Y. The death of two prominent aviators created an unusual call for floral expressions of sympathy, in which practically all the craft in Albany took part. Some beautiful designs were noted; especially so was one of the 8-foot propellers of the ill-fated hydroplane in which the aviators met their death. This giant piece was covered with white roses, white sweet peas and white carnations, with the center a solid circle of Hadley roses and tiger lilies. It took two delivery trucks to convey the orders placed with W. W. Hannell, of Watervliet, together with some choice floral tributes from his family, one of the deceased having been a close friend.

"Social functions of every kind have kept up the tone of our business," asserts Mrs. Henry Eberhardt, of the Rosendale Flower Shop, Schenectady, N. Y. Proprietor Henry Eberhardt is sojourning for a while at Lake Champlain.

• • • •

E. V. B. Felthousen, Schenectady, reports one of the best seasons for bedding plants, both in quality and price, and is figuring out next season's requirements on a similar basis. "Why," he asks, "has not the price of pots come down in sympathy with other material?" Chrysanthemums, the next main crop, are starting up well.

• • • •

A shipment of stevia arrived just before week-end quitting time at W. W. Hannell's, Watervliet, supposed to be out of 2-inch pots. Scarcely a plant carried any soil and some nary a root. 'Twas a repeat order. The first arrived mushy; this lot the reverse. "Awfully discouraging," commented Mr Hannell, "but we shall give them careful treatment and possibly save most, if not all. Now why," queried he, "will some growers of small plants persist in sending out rooted cuttings at pot plant prices? The Review is constantly advocating the principle of the square deal and it does look sometimes as though the matter will need attention from the authorities at Washington to punish the guilty and to encourage the conscientious."

• • • •

Being desirous of adding to our store of horticultural knowledge gained from first-hand sources, we decided to spend our vacation with a confrere, who at one time filled the position of superintendent on a Rockefeller estate and, as would naturally be assumed, has imbibed some of the traits of his successful employer and applied them in conducting his own business, in which he is ably assisted by his good wife and their two sons. Our first job was pinching back carnation plants in the field, a delicate task, as, owing to the drought, the plants were soft. By holding the shoot between the thumb and forefinger of the left hand, one can pull the eye out with the right hand without injury to the plant. The Skinner system is a fine substitute for rain, but one can see where plants started in the bench early have a decided advantage. In this case, the old plants are kept in as late as possible to meet the retail demand for blooms.

The next job found us cleaning up and repotting cyclamens, which, from the report in The Review, promise to be the leader in blooming plants next winter. This stock will compare favorably with the best. There seems to be no great secret in growing the plant—good soil, plenty of leaf-mold, care in watering, ventilation, with frequent spraying to keep the plants healthy.

Planting chrysanthemums in bench and solid beds was the next task, Major Bonnaffon on the upper, yellow and white Chadwick in the center, pompons on the lower, the houses being on a hillside. Planting Boston ferns in solid shallow beds was our next job, loam, leaf-mold and a scattering of pulverized sheep manure forming the compost. Later, in repotting from 4-inch into 5-inch and 6-inch, cow manure takes the place of sheep manure. The liberal use of leaf-mold, which is gathered in its virgin state from near-by woods, is doubtless largely responsible for the abundance of roots and glossy foliage of the ferns. W. M.

WARMTH OF WASHINGTON.

Gude Proves It Not Hottest City.

As one of the leading citizens of the national capital and as the Washington representative of the S. A. F., William F. Gude is working energetically to promote the national convention of florists in his city August 16 to 18. He seeks to draw as many members of the trade to Washington at that time as ever attended one of our conventions. In this effort he wishes to dispel the popular idea that Washington is a particularly torrid place. He quotes an article by the secretary of the Washington Chamber of Commerce to this effect:

"Objections are sometimes urged against bringing conventions to Washington in the summer months on account of the heat. We are able to present convincing evidence that these objections have no more force against Washington than any other city which has any claims as a convention city. We have obtained from the United States Weather Bureau official figures showing the average temperature by months for the fifty years from 1871 to 1920, inclusive, in the twelve cities named below. In presenting these figures fractions of a degree less than one-half are omitted and one degree is added when the fraction is more than one-half. The figures for the summer months follow:

	July	Aug.	Sept.
Boston	72	70	63
Chicago	73	72	65
Cincinnati	77	75	69
Cleveland	72	70	64
Indianapolis	76	74	67
Kansas City	78	77	69
New Orleans	82	84	79
New York	74	73	66
Philadelphia	77	74	68
Pittsburgh	75	73	66
St. Louis	79	78	70
Washington	77	75	68

"It is not necessary to draw any conclusion from the above figures. They speak for themselves. We have also obtained from the Weather Bureau the highest temperature recorded by it in each of these cities during the same period. These temperatures are as follows: Boston, 104; Chicago, 103; Cincinnati, 105; Cleveland, 100; Indianapolis, 106; Kansas City, 108; New Orleans, 102; New York, 102; Philadelphia, 106; Pittsburgh, 103; St. Louis, 107; Washington, 106.

"This must forever set at rest all criticism of Washington in comparison with other cities on account of hot weather. And this should be borne in mind, that for any disadvantage from the point of view of desirability as a convention city, Washington has a multitude of advantages over any other city."

ROSES AT ELIZABETH PARK.

It was almost necessary to get out the "Standing Room Only" sign at Elizabeth park, Hartford, Conn., Sunday, June 19, so dense were the crowds eager to see and take snapshots of the many roses in bloom in this wonderful rose garden, where there are over 300 varieties. It was estimated the automobiles numbered 3,500. A few hundred were from Massachusetts and there were a good many from New York, Rhode Island, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Besides the rose garden proper, with its many arches, there is one of three-fourths of an acre and the test garden is full of roses. There are a few Gloire de Dijon and Jacqueminot roses, but they are almost obsolete. A dark red rose that was greatly admired is Prosper Langier and a white one, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria. Other varieties seen here were Eugene Furst, Horace Vernet, Com. J. Gauvreau, General MacArthur, Baroness Rothschild, Earl of Dufferin, Duke of Connaught, Baron de Bonstetten, Souvenir de la Malmaison and a great number of other newer varieties.

The gardeners seem to be unable to get any size to yellow roses. There is an old-time yellow rose, Persian Yellow, and the now popular variety, Mrs. Aaron Ward.

There are many other flowers besides roses, but at this time of year the roses attract the most attention. Superintendent Parker says there was no display at all at this time last year. Now it is normal. C. B. M.

PENN'S JUNE BRIDE AD.

Time and custom have created a relationship between June and brides that has become institutional. Every day in this month hundreds of pictures of brides appear in daily newspapers and the public seems never to tire of these portraits. In every case, the question, "What kind of flowers did she wear?" is inevitable. For the bride's bouquet, too, has become institutional.

Penn the Florist, of Boston, has been quick to perceive the advertising potentialities in an appeal to the public through the sentiment that surrounds June and brides. An instance is the advertisement reproduced herewith, which was run in the Boston papers. Penn introduced another point of interest and attraction. The young lady portrayed as a bride is a popular actress now playing in George M. Cohan's "The O'Brien Girl" at the Tremont theater. The many Bostonians who have seen her in the play were additionally interested to see her in bride's costume. This advertisement proved to be one of the most successful of that conspicuously successful florist-advertiser.

AT KANSAS CITY

MISSOURIANS MEET.

At Kansas City.

The annual meeting of the Missouri State Florists' Association was held in Knights of Columbus hall, Kansas City, Mo., Monday, June 27. About fifty were in attendance. The morning session was opened by T. J. Noll, president of the Kansas City Florists' Club, who extended a hearty welcome to the visitors on behalf of the club. L. H. Archias, of Sedalia, president of the association, made an address and Secretary J. J. Beneke, of St. Louis, made his annual report, as follows:

"Since May 5, 1920, when I was elected your secretary, we have had, according to our membership list, 166 members. Of these, only thirty-three have paid any dues. We have eleven life members. All members have received their statements for dues.

"Since May 15 I have received from L. H. Archias $165.41; from C. C. Sanders, who was treasurer up to May 15, 1920, $4.85, and dues from twenty-seven members at $2 each, totaling $54, making the total receipts to date $224.26.

"Disbursements include expenses of L. H. Archias, $32.84, and expenses of the secretary, $47.93, making a total expense since May 15, 1920, $80.77, which leaves a balance on hand of $143.49."

P. A. Manson, of Pleasant Hill, Mo., treasurer, was unable to be present at the morning meeting, so his report was deferred. A resolution of sympathy was adopted on the death of Mrs. A. H. Hummert, wife of one of the St. Louis members. A message containing the resolution was sent to Mr. Hummert.

Interesting Addresses.

After President Archias had opened the afternoon session, T. J. Noll announced a plan of entertainment for the visitors who could remain over Tuesday.

In the absence of G. A. Knapp, Nevada, who was to have read a paper, J. F. Ammann spoke on "Organization." Mr. Ammann and H. V. Swenson, who were in the city for a special meeting of the local and visiting florists Monday night, attended the afternoon meeting of the convention.

William L. Rock gave an interesting address on "Benefits of the F. T. D. to the Retail Florists."

"The Wholesale Florist" was discussed by H. G. Berning, of St. Louis.

S. Bryson Ayres, of Independence, Mo., read a paper on "Promoting the Planting of Hardy Perennials."

H. S. Wayman, of Princeton, told "How the State Fair Benefits Horticulture." Mr. Wayman urged the florists to make more exhibits. In order to work up enthusiasm on this matter, Mr. Wayman and H. C. Irish, of St. Louis, were appointed to wait upon the state board and request an increase of premiums for the state fair.

Election of Officers.

After a general discussion of various matters pertaining to the organization, the election of officers took place. W. A. Rowe, Kirkwood, was chosen president. T. J. Noll, of Kansas City, who was also a nominee, withdrew in favor of Mr. Rowe and he was elected unanimously. Mr. Noll was elected vice-president. William Wade, manager of the Pinehurst Floral Co., was chosen secretary. He succeeds J. J. Beneke, of St. Louis, who declined reëlection. P. A. Manson, Pleasant Hill, was re-elected treasurer.

These officers will meet at the call of the president to select district vice-presidents and committees for the year and to decide upon a meeting place for next year.

Frank X. Gorly, of St. Louis, who was on the program, sent the following telegram to the convention: "I regret very much my inability to be present at your meeting on account of my absence from the city when your notice was received. I would advocate close coöperation, organization, efficiency and economy. My best wishes for a big meeting and wonderful success."

The hall where the convention was held was decorated with palms, ferns and cut flowers furnished by the W. L. Rock Flower Co., the Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co., the T. J. Noll Floral Co. and the Pinehurst Floral Co. Cigars and cold drinks were furnished to the delegates all through the day from a refreshment stand in the hall.

FRENCH ROSE SHOWS RESUMED.

The next great rose show in Europe will be held in Paris in July, under the auspices of the French Administration of Horticulture, Architecture and Fine Arts. These rose shows are a national institution, but had to be abandoned during the late war. The July show will, therefore, be the first for several years.

Samuel S. Pennock, of Philadelphia, at present on official Friends' service in Europe, writes from Essen, Germany, that he is looking forward with a great deal of interest to his visit to Paris for this event, in which he will take an official part, having been appointed one of the judges.

In addition to the French officials on the board of judges, some names appear that will be familiar to most rosarians on this side of the Atlantic, such as A. Chatenay, C. Cochet, Henry Graveneaux and Messrs. Levecque, Noublot, Nonin and Pernet-Ducher, of France; Alexander Dickson, and Messrs. Paul, Pemberton and Turner, of Great Britain; Jonkheer J. L. Mock and M. Leanders, of Holland. Samuel S. Pennock will be accompanied by J. Edward Moon, the head of the American Friends' service committee. The exhibition will take place in the Bagatelle Gardens, Paris.

FARGO MEETING

TRI-STATE FLORISTS MEET.

Hold First Gathering at Fargo.

The Tri-State Florists' Association held its first regular meeting in Fargo, N. D., and Moorhead, Minn., June 24 and 25. The meeting was called to order by the president, W. B. Shotwell, of Fargo, N. D., with about two-thirds of the members present.

The matter of incorporating the association was immediately taken up. Max Kaiser, of St. Paul, Minn., made a few remarks on the benefits to be derived from incorporation, and a vote showed all present to be in favor of incorporation papers being taken out at once. By-laws were then read, approved and adopted as read. Annual dues were next discussed; since it was the consensus that best results would be obtained through a large percentage of the employees being members of the organization, it was voted that the employees' dues be made extremely reasonable.

Motion was made by B. F. Siebrecht, seconded by Mr. Shotwell and unanimously passed, that a donation of $50 be immediately made to the publicity fund of the Society of American Florists. Resolution was also passed to the effect that this donation be increased each year to keep pace with a probable increase in membership.

Max Kaiser then delivered a stirring address, laying particular stress on our slogan, collective effort, proper treatment of employees and the great benefits to be derived from the S. A. F. At the conclusion of his address a rising vote of thanks was given Mr. Kaiser. At this time, enthusiasm having risen to a high pitch, inquiry was made among attendants as to their membership in the mother organization, and it was found that but one attendant was not a member and his application was immediately obtained. Fine talks were then delivered by B. F. Siebrecht, of Aberdeen, S. D.; Guy French, of Chicago; Mr. Shotwell and others.

A place of meeting for the January gathering was then discussed, and it was found that two cities were desirous of entertaining the club, namely, Bismarck, N. D., and Grand Forks, N. D., and it was decided to accept the invitation of the latter city. T. B. McElroy then suggested that a flower shop be held in connection with the meeting and after discussion it was voted that this be done.

The florists were entertained royally by the Fargo and Moorhead florists and everyone reported a good time. Trips were taken to all of the greenhouses in the two cities and a banquet was held in the evening.

Those in attendance were:

Harold Briggs, Moorhead, Minn.

SOIL FOR PANSY SEEDS.

The preparation of soil for pansy seed should be given care. E. J. Steele, of the Portland firm whose pansies are so well known to the trade, gives the following summary of the important points in soil preparation and the sowing of pansy seed:

1. Have your soil perfectly clean, free of weeds and trash and pulverized to a depth of six or more inches.
2. On the level surface spread evenly a layer of pulverized manure, barnyard scrapings preferred, to a depth of at least one inch.
3. Overlay manure with one-half inch of the best soil you have, thoroughly pulverized.
4. Roll or rake down and tramp surface true and smooth.
5. Use the hose freely and soak down the bed several inches.
6. Sow your seed in drills or broadcast.
7. Cover as lightly as possible with your best soil or sand. Sand is better.
8. Use spray of water to moisten surface.
9. Allowing plenty of ventilation, keep your beds moist, quite moist, but not soaking wet, until plants come up.

Unbleached sheeting of the cheapest grade is good to retain moisture. As soon as the plants begin to come through freely the sheeting should be removed permanently, and on the tops of the beds may be sifted a thin layer of barnyard scrapings. Never allow the beds to become dry. Any dryness after the seeds sprout is absolutely fatal. These directions are for sowing in the open field, but will apply to flats or coldframes. An ounce of seed is sufficient for sixty to seventy-five square feet.

Iowa City, Ia.—A. G. Prince, who deserves to be classed among the veterans in the trade, has been having a rather serious time with an infection in his hand. He has been confined to the house for the greater part of the last two months, but is again able to attend to business.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

SUMMER is a good time to boost birthday flowers.

IT seems probable there will be a considerable shortage of field-grown carnation plants this season.

HOUSES are being well stocked with roses for next season. Those having surplus lots of these plants have found rapid sale for them of late.

WEDDINGS and flowers should not be divorced. Florists should emphasize the traditional necessity of one to the other, lest the public lose the habit.

BIG business men in the east are starting a Sell Now League, whose sole idea is to carry out the name. It costs florists nothing to join—just sell flowers now.

DURING the last season The Review has added 800 names to its list of subscribers, principally through one florist recommending the paper to a neighbor, or to a beginner in the trade.

AUTOMOBILE salesmen testify to the public's continued purchases of pleasure cars, though sales require more effort than formerly. Then we can surely sell the public flowers if we try hard enough.

THE true measure of financial success is not found in the size of a business, but in ability to pay bills as they become due. Those who do pay regularly and promptly are successful; those who do not do so seldom are continuously prosperous.

WINDOW displays cost little besides time, and florists have plenty of that in summer. You can advertise cheaply and effectively with a good summer display, such as the old mill pond which many florists have staged so well.

THE depression of the coal market is unparalleled and production has followed the market downward. When factories begin to buy coal in the autumn, there will be a soaring of prices and a shortage of fuel. Better buy yours now.

THE trade has been doing exceptional business, and corresponding efforts may be needed to get bills paid. Rest assured others are as assiduous as you are; if you aren't, the money will go to other merchants who are more strenuous collectors.

WORD from Detroit is that E. A. Fetters is on his honeymoon. The wedding took place June 25.

SIR HARRY VEITCH has been elected president of the British Chamber of Horticulture, to succeed George Munro.

UNLESS the business shows an unthinkable falling off, there surely will be a shortage of stock in many lines next season.

FLOWERS are not costly if one makes comparison. The price of a Sunday afternoon automobile ride will put a vase of flowers on the dining table that will last beyond the Sabbath. Show customers the value of what you have to sell them.

WHAT IS YOUR CHARGE?

Our firm fills and delivers about thirty lawn vases at a price of $3 each, unless special stock is required. In this respect, we are wondering what other florists get for the same service. We suppose some get more, some less. What would be a fair price and how much of that should be for stock and how much for services?

We have no growing facilities, so it is necessary that we buy our plants for vases and bedding. For locating the necessary stock, we find The Review indispensable. F. A. Forbes.

ACQUAINTED WITH THESE?

I wonder if some reader of The Review can answer two queries for me. A woman who lives near me has some beautiful lily-like flowers in bloom. She bought the bulbs in a near-by city. Planted on the north side of the house, they grew rapidly, with leaves like amaryllis. The flowers are pure white and fragrant, with several bloom stalks to a bulb. As little sunshine reaches them, they last well. I have thought that the variety is Ismene calathina. Is it? If so, what is the best treatment for the bulbs after blooming? Should they be well dried after being taken up?

Another neighbor of mine has a fine begonia which belongs to the ricinifolia family. The leaf is large and has from nine to ten points and is of a rich, dark Indian red. The stalk is heavy and hairy, about three feet in length. The large, spray-like bloom is of a rich peach pink color, like Duchartrei. If any florist has this or anything like it, I should like to hear from him.

Mrs. Jennie Farmer.

SOME WAYS OF ECONOMY.

Economy does not always consist in saving money. Sometimes the truest economy is to spend it. This is true at the present time. During the last few months, when liquidation sales of stocks have been held, there has been a reluctance on the part of many to buy. When it was difficult to get goods, everybody ordered large amounts well in advance, hoping that a part of their order would be delivered in the course of time. Now there are plenty of goods, and deliveries are reasonably prompt, and the market is slow. A little later, when affairs loosen up, as they are bound to do, everybody will begin to order at once. Prices will grow firmer and deliveries will be slower.

Then there are many who are not spending or planning to spend as much as usual for advertising. They argue that printing is costing a good deal, and consequently they must cut down on expenses of this kind. This is about as good business policy as to expect the cow to continue giving milk abundantly after you have reduced her feed to just enough to keep her alive. In place of cutting out advertising, it is more to the point for the florist who is alert and wide-awake to roll up his sleeves and say: "This is the time for me to do more than ever, but I must be careful to do it in a way that will be economical and bring results."

Economy may mean borrowing money that we may finance our business economically, for by paying six per cent annually and discounting our bills monthly, we can make anywhere from twelve to twenty per cent clear on money that we do not own.

Economy is not miserly conduct. It is the ability to exercise wise discrimination as to what we spend our money for, how we put in our time and how we build for the future. This is the period of readjustment in more ways than the superficial thinker realizes. Consider well what is truly economical in relation not only to today, but to the business of tomorrow as well.

OBITUARY

J. Edward Marret.

J. E. Marret died at his home in Louisville, Ky., June 26 as the result of a paralytic stroke. When the firm of Rompen & Marret was established in 1878, Mr. Marret was junior partner. The firm ran under this name for several years, when Mr. Marret took over the business and operated it under his name until Jan. 1, 1918. At this time his son-in-law, J. S. Miller, bought the business and, although Mr. Marret was not active, the company has been run under the name of Marret & Miller.

Born in Louisville, May 13, 1857, Mr. Marret was engaged practically all his life in the trade, building a fine business in the forty years that he conducted it. He was chaplain in the Elks' lodge and an active church worker.

He is survived by a widow and two daughters, Mrs. Louis Wesch, of Pittsfield, Mass., and Mrs. J. S. Miller, Louisville.

George Boyce.

George Boyce, 77 years of age and the oldest florist in Utica, N. Y., died at his home in that city Saturday, June 18, following an illness with a complication of diseases.

Mr. Boyce was born in Hartford, Conn., May 17, 1884, a son of Fred Boyce, an English gardener, who took his family to Utica when George Boyce was only 9 months old. The latter, as a boy, worked for and with his father and soon became expert in the care of plants and flowers. In 1875 he had built his own greenhouse and from that time on was in the business for himself. He was active in political circles and popular as a musician. He was married in 1880. Two sisters, Julia and Helen, both in Utica, survive him.

DeWitt S. Benjamin.

DeWitt S. Benjamin, of the firm of J. M. & C. L. Backus, Groton, N. Y., was drowned in Owasco lake, Friday evening, June 10.

Mr. Benjamin, 23 years of age and the son of Edward T. Benjamin, of Rocky Point, Long Island, N. Y., went to Groton with the intention of learning the flower business thoroughly. His start, combined with a pleasing personality, promised a successful career.

The remains were sent to Long Island for burial, accompanied by many flowers. He is survived by his father, his mother, a brother and a sister.

Ralph M. Marquardt.

News of the death of Ralph M. Marquardt, manager of the bulb department of F. G. Marquardt, Inc., importers and exporters, New York, was learned with sorrow by many of the trade. Mr. Marquardt entered the bulb business as a boy, with Ralph M. Ward & Co., going through the various grades of advancement until three years ago, when he went into business for himself. When on the road, Mr. Marquardt secured for himself many friends.

George W. Russell.

George W. Russell, owner of the greenhouses of the Spy Hill Conservatories, Beacon, N. Y., died June 12 at the Highland hospital after two weeks' illness following an operation for appendicitis and gall stones.

Mr. Russell was born at Fishkill, N. Y., March 12, 1866. He married Miss Lacella C. Brown at Fishkill March 12, 1886. A few years after his marriage he moved to Beacon, where he established the business on West Center street which he continued for twenty-nine years. He had about 12,000 feet of glass and was an exceptionally good grower.

He is survived by his mother, his wife, two daughters, Kate and Sadie, and three brothers.

UTAH ORGANIZING.

J. F. Ammann, secretary of the National Flower Growers' Association, and H. V. Swenson, who are making a tour of the country in the interest of organization, were guests of the florists of Salt Lake City and vicinity at a luncheon at the Newhouse hotel, Monday, June 20. The main object in view was to start an organization of Utah florists, so that they might derive the benefits which will come through coöperation, and to stimulate an advertising campaign.

Mr. Ammann showed, during the course of his remarks, the benefits to be reaped through organization. Mr. Swenson outlined briefly what Chicago had done since it organized. The result was that before the meeting was dismissed, a committee was appointed to draw up a constitution and by-laws for the state organization, to be submitted and adopted at a meeting to be called at an early date. The committee was composed of Arthur Gramshaw, Albert Alt, and Walter King, of Salt Lake City, retailers; Emil Lund, of Bountiful; Robert Miller, of Farmington; William Sorensen, of Murray, and Albert Reading, of Centerville, growers.

Mr. and Mrs. Ammann and Mr. and Mrs. Swenson were guests of Robert Miller Sunday, June 19, when they visited the greenhouses of the Miller Floral Co., at Farmington.

G. J. B.

CLEVELAND O.

The Market.

Business Saturday, June 25, was good, but the remainder of the week was exceedingly slow, stock moving sluggishly at low prices. There is a small demand for flowers for weddings, since the average wedding uses few flowers. Valley and white roses are in ample supply to take care of the demand. A few graduations are helping slightly to move the stock. Asters have made their first appearance. Roses are arriving mostly in short and medium grades and when, occasionally, there is a call for long stock, it proves difficult to supply it. Easter lilies are coming in spasmodically and lily of the valley is arriving regularly. A good many field and Shasta daisies are being used in weddings and graduations and have proved satisfactory. Water lilies have been arriving in quantity and have been moving slowly.

Various Notes.

F. Routman, the Superior avenue florist, had an accident lately. His delivery car turned over and injured a pedestrian.

The J. M. Gasser Co. has moved its main office from the retail store to a better location at 221 Huron road, over the wholesale store, and now has one of the best equipped offices in the city.

Carlton Low, of Chagrin Falls, was recently married and has left on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Buffalo.

Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Lisy recently left on a tour of the east.

Harry Ingraham, of the Cleveland Plant & Flower Co., leaves shortly for a week's vacation.

Paul Kunze and family leave soon to tour the east. W. A. R.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Toward the end of last week a change in the situation began to be apparent. The long spell of hot, dry weather was seen to be producing the usual result. Outdoor flowers, which had been competing strongly with indoor stock, began to fade away. At the same time the supply of roses and carnations decreased rapidly. The heat had made much of the stock too poor to be of value and the decrease in the supply, as it frequently does, resulted in an increase in the footing of the day's sales tickets. It is a mistake to say business has not been good in June; it was not business that was poor, but stock. One of the larger retail stores says its sales for June are below those of last year for no other reason than that roses were so poor it was impossible to ask much money for them; that good flowers would have brought at least a third more dollars on the same number of sales, with the probability that better flowers would have made more sales. Last week brought the end of the school year. There was an unusually good demand throughout the week, with a rush at its close. June 25, for some of the houses doing large local business, was one of the best days of the season and, because of the sharply reduced supply, prices were quite a little better than earlier in the week.

Possibly the demand may fall away with the passing of June, but there will be comparatively little stock in the market during July, so that growers who are able to ship good flowers should realize fair money; indeed, some of them figure that conditions are in their favor.

With replanting or resting in full swing, the supply of roses has shrunk to half what it was a week ago. Buds are small, but otherwise average quality is improved. There are plenty of short stems, but not many of the longer grades, although these are not so much in request as earlier in the season. For the next month or six weeks the principal supply will be from young plants of early benching.

Carnation growers are becoming active in the work of throwing out, repairing benches and replanting, with the result that each day sees a reduced supply. On the other hand, gladiolus growers one by one are beginning to cut in the fields. There still are a few shippers of indoor glads, but most of the stock now comes from fields in the central part of the state; the local crops

Fancy Gladioli in Quantity

Our famous local crop of Gladiolus flowers will be in full swing next week. Every buyer who used these flowers last year will want them again, as the list of varieties is the newest and best—also the flowers are grown expressly for cutting and are in a different class from those that are only a by-product of bulb growing. We handle Gladioli with the same care we handle other flowers and that makes a difference, too.

will come in this week. There will be no shortage of gladioli this summer.

The peony season came practically to its end last week. The crops were light this season, everywhere except in the Wisconsin fields, which are so new that the cuts are not yet a large factor. There remains only one lot in the cold storage warehouse and this final supply will be used up within another fortnight. The Wisconsin flowers were the best of the season and, except for the Tennessee crop sold at Mothers' day, brought the best prices. The peony season was of about sixty days' duration this year.

Sweet peas, both under glass and outside, were nearly ruined by the heat. There are excellent lilies. Larkspur is about done and heat and drought have finished off gaillardias, coreopsis and most of the other outdoor flowers. Gypsophila is abundant and is the chief filling for boxes and sprays.

Valley is equal to all requirements, unless the call is received too late in the day. Cattleyas constitute almost the only scarce item. The demand at $2 per flower is limited, but is sufficient to take up more good flowers than are available.

Flat ferns, which were $6 per thousand a month ago, may now be had for $2.

Extrusion of the Beauty.

Famous as Chicago once was for its Beauties, the Beauty here is no more. It has been pushed out by other varieties. For several years Beauty has been going downhill. One by one the large growers cut down their plantings and finally dropped it. The final act has come this spring, when Richard Salm, at Union Grove, Wis., and Poehlmann Bros. Co., at Morton Grove, have thrown out all their Beauties. These were the last of the growers here to let the Beauty go. Both had made great successes with it in earlier years and clung to the old favorite in the hope it would come back, but after last winter's experience they gave up; they concur in the opinion of other Beauty growers, that Beauty can no longer be grown profitably in this vicinity. Mr. Salm, whose range was all in Beauty, has planted Premier, Columbia and Milady. At Poehlmann's Beauty's space has been given to other roses.

Draw the curtain. Shed a tear.

William Dittman, of Newcastle, Ind., still ships a few Beauties to this market, but will drop the variety when he finishes replanting this year. Next season any Beauties offered on this market will have had a ride from New York or Philadelphia.

Thirty-two Years at It.

This was the thirty-second season that Klehm's Nursery has placed peonies in commercial cold storage. The start, in 1890, was in reality merely a trial, as only five bucketfuls were stored. The experiment was so successful that what was, for those days, a considerable quantity was stored the next year and since then the business has grown to large proportions. This year somewhere between 150,000 and 200,000 flowers were stored.

although the crop did not exceed seventy-five per cent of normal. For the first quarter century or so the flowers were bunched in dozens before they were placed in storage, but in recent years they have been stored without bunching, and without counting.

Charles Klehm says this has been an unusual season. He brought in a wagon-load of festiva maxima May 29, the second time in the entire thirty-two years that flowers have been cut at Arlington Heights before Memorial day. And the prices received at the end of June never have been so good as this year, resulting in the best year's sales record of the entire thirty-two.

Various Notes.

Wanted: A man big enough to put through a deal for the removal of the flower market to some other center. News that Poehlmann Bros. Co. will change the location of its store by May 1 next year has revived talk of another market center, outside the high rent area. Retail trade steadily is encroaching on the present wholesale cut flower district and the pressure is sending rents skyward. Sooner or later the market must move. It will take at least a year to put through such a program as converting one or more buildings to the trade's use. Now seems a good time to start. Where is the man who can swing the deal?

During the last six months Archie Spencer has found his Ford truck of material assistance in giving the quick service which has been one of the strong factors in building up his large business in funeral pieces and presentation baskets. There probably is no other florist who makes more large designs than does Mr. Spencer.

Peter Miller, well known as George Wienhoeber's right-hand man, is driving a new Dodge touring car. His chief has a new Packard and Bert Cole a new Nash, making three new pleasure cars acquired at this store within a little more than a month. It is said reception hour for automobile salesmen has now been abolished.

Paul R. Klingsporn spent a day with the trade at Detroit last week and says the florists there report a good June in spite of a generally quiet situation among the industries of that city.

There has been large loss of carnation plants in the field as the result of five weeks of high heat practically without rain. Few local growers will have any surplus whatever, while many have left a smaller number than will be needed to fill their benches.

Joseph Foerster states this has turned out to be the best June in the history of his establishment. In spite of the low average prices for flowers, sales passed the highest previous June mark June 25, leaving four days' business in the clear for a new record. The gain is principally attributed to the excellent demand for the peonies from Klehm's Nursery.

A. Miller left June 23 to attend the meeting of the Tri-State Florists' Association at Fargo, N. D., June 24 and 25. He is spending this week at other points in the north.

The venerable mother of W. N. Rudd died June 25, at her son's home in Blue Island, and was buried privately at Mount Greenwood, June 27. Many of the trade sent flowers.

Freesias arrived from California June 24. The quality is excellent and the number of orders on file with most of the jobbers is said to be up to previous records.

A. Henderson went to New York on the Twentieth Century June 27, to attend a meeting of the importers of French bulbs, called on receipt of word that the French syndicate will stand pat on the announced raise in prices for the 1921 crop.

The Gould Co., of Onarga, Ill., ended its 1921 peony season June 25, when the business for some months, with Andrews & Co., as an inside salesman. He says it is easier than wheeling soil, but he prefers the more active work and is looking for a chance to get back into the trade.

The passing of the American Beauty rose is lamented by T. C. Fogarty, who finds among the patrons of the Congress Flower Shop many who watched the blooms open with pleasure and miss the interest of that process in such roses as Russell, which continue in the stage at which they were cut.

He will be confined to his home for some time. Since he has been obliged to give up his work in behalf of the Pageant of Progress, H. E. W. J. Smyth and Mrs. Smyth have gone to their lake villa at Antioch, Ill., for the summer. The treasurer of the Allied Florists' Association and the Retail Florists' Association will be at his office one day a week during July and August.

The trade received undesirable publicity in the daily papers June 27, when it was reported that the police were called to the flower store at 1727 North Campbell avenue. The affair concerned LeRoy Carlson, aged 24, son of Hannah Carlson, owner of the store, who was alleged to have been responsible when a girl ran screaming from the place. Of all safe places for women, flower stores should be kept the safest, because so many of our customers are women.

C. E. Gullett, of Lincoln, Ill., was in town last week. He reports a big spring season in young stock for benching and in bedding plants.

Last week E. G. Hill came up from Richmond and spent a few days at the Congress hotel during the nurserymen's convention there. He met many old acquaintances of the days when he sold 2½-cent roses instead of 50-cent plants as now.

BOSTON.

The Market.

June business held up remarkably well until near the end. In addition to numerous weddings, class graduations, college commencements, etc., there have been several funerals of prominent men, which have called for large quantities of flowers, and it is doubtful if retailers have ever had a more satisfactory business during the first month of summer. Roses have been in good demand and clearly outclassed all other flowers at weddings, funerals and college exercises of late. There is still a fair demand for Columbia, Premier and other colored varieties possessing quality, but four days of 90 degrees in the shade weather knocked much of the substance out of them.

Carnations coming in are of little account and hardly need any mention. Some fairly good open-air sweet peas are arriving and sell well. The tail end of the indoor crop is about over, the quality of flowers being indifferent. Gypsophila elegans has met with a good call of late for banquets. Marguerites are practically over; so are snapdragons. During the last week lilies have sold well for funeral work. This week the demand is light. There are flowers of regale, speciosum and auratum in addition to giganteum. A good number of gladioli are coming in and the call for these is weak at present.

Delphiniums are still in good supply and have met with a heavy sale of late. Such open air flowers as gaillardias, coreopsis, agrostemmas and sweet williams are offered, but meet with an indifferent demand. There are few orchids on the market and any cattleyas offered realize fancy prices.

Rose and Strawberry Show.

The dates of several exhibitions of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society have been too late this season, owing to our climatic vagaries; among them the annual rose show came a few days too late for a good display. While a fair number of flowers were shown they were generally of indifferent quality and their arrangement and naming left much to be desired. There were several tables of roses entirely unnamed, to say nothing of hardy perennials. Exhibits of this character, whether competitive or not, are anything but educational, and, when exhibitors fail to name their flowers, they must take the consequences, which meant disqualification of quite a number at the present show.

The principal exhibitor of roses was E. E. Randall, superintendent to Mrs. H. C. Frick, Prides Crossing, Mass. Others making displays were J. B. Wills and Henry Stewart. J. B. Wills' collection of ramblers was good and included Silver Moon, Climbing American Beauty, Alberic Barbier, Farquhar, Flower of Fairfield, Lady Duncan, American Pillar, White Dorothy Perkins, Sweetheart, Excelsa and Tausendschoen. There were no baskets of roses, and the show of the queen of flowers lacked entirely the artistic effect seen at many previous shows.

W. C. Rust, gardener to Mrs. C. G. Weld, was first for six pans of achimenes. Henry Stewart had the best sweet williams and also showed Japanese iris and other flowers. Faulkner Farm took first for twenty-five varieties of hardy herbaceous plants, also receiving a silver medal for the same. Hillcrest Gardens had an interesting display of annuals, perennials and rambler roses. T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. had a table of fine late peonies. Specially good were the varieties La Tendresse, Soulange, Galathee, grandiflora, Winnikenni, Pierre Ducharte, R. P. Whitfield and Milton Hill.

Strawberries were far below the average, in both quality and quantity, frost and recent hot, dry weather having largely spoiled the crops locally. Marshall and Barrymore were the best varieties shown. Wilfrid Wheeler lectured each afternoon of the show on strawberry culture before large and attentive audiences.

Farquhar's Annual Outing.

The annual outing of the store and nursery employees, with their wives and families, of the R. & J. Farquhar Co. was held at Thompson's Island, Boston Harbor, June 25. The party, to the number of about 150, left on the steamer at City Point Landing at 8:45 a. m., and, on arrival, a baseball game was played between the store and nursery forces. The nursery team overwhelmed the store men 10 to 2. The winning team was composed of Minster, catcher; Dixon, pitcher; Voigt, first base; Leahy, second base; Boyer, third base; O'Galovan, shortstop; McKenzie, right field; Basher, center field; Hatch, left field, and L. F. Montgomery, captain. George Cruickshank was the umpire. After the ball game had been completed, all sat down to a sumptuous dinner served by a noted Boston caterer, to which full justice was done. During dinner and at intervals during the afternoon the Thompson's Island Farm and Trade School boys' band of thirty pieces furnished delightful music. Following dinner the balance of the sporting events were contested with the following results:

100-yard dash, men—E. Wheeler, first; J. Leahy, second.
50-yard dash, ladies—Miss Fordham, first; Miss Ballard, second.
Three-legged race—Watt and Halkett, first; Woodbury and Stone, second.
Throwing baseball, ladies—Miss Reardon, first; Miss Cox, second.
50-yard race, men over 40 years—LeQuern, first; J. H. Cooper, second.
Shoe race, men—Bush, first.
Egg race, girls—Miss Eleanor Schriver, first; Miss Irene Russell, second.
Pipe race—Albert Schellenberg, first.
Running broad jump—Leahy, first.
Throwing baseball, men—Otto Wright, 278 feet.

At the completion of the sports the prizes were distributed to the winners by Alexander P. Dewar, manager of the seed store. A number of races and other sports were arranged for the boys attending the school on the island and suitable prizes given. All were keenly contested. Everyone spent a most enjoyable day, weather conditions being perfect. The steamer left for Boston at 6 p. m.; the port was safely reached with no untoward incident to mar a day of real pleasure.

McCarthy Creditors Meet.

A second meeting of creditors of N. F. McCarthy & Co., wholesale florists, was held at 18 Tremont street, June 23. It seemed to be the desire of all present to help Mr. McCarthy tide over his temporary embarrassment, and a committee of ten was appointed, which in turn selected five trustees, who will operate the business in conjunction with Mr. McCarthy. Debts to June 1 are entirely covered by a blanket mortgage. Each creditor gets a note due in five years, paying six per cent inter-

Funeral of Gen. C. H. Taylor.

For the funeral of General C. H. Taylor, the well known and respected proprietor of the Boston Globe, services for whom were held in Trinity church June 24, there was a magnificent lot of floral tributes, the greatest display probably ever seen at any funeral here. Penn's supplied over 100 designs and Galvin's, Inc., T. F. Galvin, Jr., and Carbone all supplied a large number. There were about 300 designs in all and, as these were nearly all large and elaborate, the flower market was pretty well cleaned out. All flowers were sent to the hospitals at the close of the funeral services.

Various Notes.

For the funeral of Frederick L. Ames, of North Easton, June 22, Carbone furnished a beautiful casket cover of cattleyas and farleyense fern. A wreath made here of white streptocarpus was quite out of the common and extremely pretty.

June 22 James Wheeler, of Natick, celebrated his thirty-fourth wedding anniversary. J. Harris, of Penn's, who furnished the delightful entertainment given before the Gardeners' and Florists' Club on the previous evening, took over the same excellent troupe of entertainers, including the Echo quartette; Miss Eckert, soloist; Nelson Waring, pianist; Miss Colenburn, violinist, and others, who gave an excellent concert. Refreshments were served and an enjoyable evening was spent.

The Hingham Horticultural Society held a rose and strawberry show in Loring hall June 24. Roses, hardy perennials, vegetables, table decorations and strawberries of splendid quality were shown. W. N. Craig acted as judge and lectured on "Roses, Strawberries and Hardy Perennials" to a large audience.

The list of sporting events is ready and all other details completed for the annual picnic of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, to be held at Cunningham park, East Milton, July 21, and fine weather alone is needed to bring out a record attendance.

The Boston Florists' Association, which planned to hold a dinner at Nahant, chose Nantasket as a better ocean resort to visit and had a large attendance on the evening of June 28, leaving Copley Square, Boston, between 5 and 6 p. m. It was a garden party.

The concert given June 21 before the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, through the efforts of J. Harris, of Penn's, was the best ever given before that organization and all selections were repeatedly and enthusiastically encored. Floral decorations were unusually elaborate.

The Market.

There are plenty of flowers to offer, on a market that is still active. Orchids and valley are the exceptions to this rule. Weddings and commencements have made heavy demands on good stock of certain varieties. General cut flower business has declined, as it always does when the mercury rises. The heat has been excessive. With it there is drought, most trying for outdoor flowers. Fortunately, the present week sees rain. Carnations and sweet peas have been of little account; it is too hot for them. Valley from a distance has suffered. Roses are, in some cases, reaching the wholesale commission houses too open for use. Russell shows decided superiority as a summer rose. It keeps well, opens slowly and holds its color. Many of the Russell roses now coming into the market are short-stemmed.

Gladioli are fine. Herada gives an unusual color, a violet that is highly prized by floral artists. The better gladioli are sold under name in quantity —Panama, America, Mrs. Francis King, Pink Beauty, Herada, Prince of Wales —not that this is, especially, news; it is merely emphasized to show that the day of mixed gladioli has departed.

Easter lilies are good and plentiful, so plentiful that the price has declined, in an effort to find buyers for the increased receipts.

Hydrangea arborescens is the latest addition to the assortment.

In New England.

A business arrangement of especial interest to plantsmen goes into effect July 1. Louis J. Reuter has accepted the position of New England representative of Clarence U. Liggit. Mr. Reuter's office will continue at 15 Cedar street, Watertown, Boston. Mr. Liggit will conduct the New England business from 303 Bulletin building, Philadelphia.

Louis J. Reuter is as well known and as popular in Philadelphia as in New England. His brave struggle in the early days when he leased the Bunting place at Fifty-eighth street and Elmwood avenue won him many friends here, who wish him well.

The extension of the plant business of C. U. Liggit is a distinct gain to commercial floriculture. By ability and industry Mr. Liggit has developed an entirely new branch of our business—that of a plantsman who encourages the production of desirable stock. He deserves to succeed.

A Visitor but Not a Stranger.

Herbert A. Pennock, of Jupiter, Fla., was a visitor in the wholesale cut flower center June 25. Mr. and Mrs. Pennock have just returned from a week spent at the seashore with Casper Pennock. Mr. Pennock was a member of the firm of Pennock Bros. in the nineties. He kept the books then and, in speaking of those days and the way in which business was conducted, he instanced an arrangement with William K. Harris for the entire crop of carnations in one season, at 75 cents per hundred. Mr. Pennock has been growing Asparagus plumosus for cut sprays at Jupiter, Fla., for the past fifteen years. He has three and one-half acres of asparagus under slat protection. The slats are plasterers' laths, nailed two inches apart to keep the fronds a deep, rich green. The asparagus planted in the full sunlight loses its color. The sprays are bunched and then shipped to northern markets. Jupiter is seventy miles from Palm Beach.

Various Notes.

The sweet pea exhibition of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society was held in Masonic hall, Ardmore, June 21.

The London Flower Shop had a large commencement order that required 5,000 roses June 24.

William Doughty, manager for M. J. Callahan's Twentieth street shop, was married June 29. Who was the bride? Why, the dearest girl in all the world, of course.

Samuel S. Pennock will be the American judge in the rose gardens of the Bagatelle in July.

The Robert Craig Co. has five houses filled with superb cyclamens on their place at Norwood, cyclamens that will keep the Craig banner to the fore.

The Henry F. Michell Co. is sending out a neat card giving the dates of coming Easters and a picture of a fine Easter lily to hang in the office or shed.

prominent beach front hotel in the city by the sea. It must be confessed, however, that Mr. Berkowitz had some longing for Chelsea this season.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. have leased a building on Twelfth street for workshop purposes.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange filled commencement orders for 19,000 roses in three days, Manager Deutscher computes.

F. Herbert Steinmetz will manage the Twentieth street store of M. J. Callahan while William Doughty is on his wedding trip.

Edward Reid and Miss Reid have been motoring to Harper's Ferry. They will probably continue into Virginia.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

There is little change to note in the condition of the cut flower market. The usual summer dullness is now experienced, a little earlier than customarily, perhaps, but the same old dullness. Arrivals are largely of summer flowers, and this year they are in great variety. Outside of staple flowers, clearances are difficult of accomplishment, and there is a good deal of wastage at the end of each day. Outdoor gladioli have made an appearance, coming in quantity, adding largely to the general supply and moving slowly. Business in general is spasmodic, dull for a day or two, then becoming lively for a day, without any material change in values.

Roses are abundant. American Beauty is off crop with some growers, but there is no dearth of stock to meet the limited demand. Hybrid teas are showing the effect of a hot spell, which has lasted several days, and concessions have to be made to move open stock. Tight stock moves well at the prices last reported. White roses continue on the scarce side, but there seem to be enough to go around.

Carnations are not overplentiful, and arrivals are poor in quality. Growers are commencing to clear out their benches, and it will not be long before the carnation season is ended.

Orchids are not in large supply, but quite sufficient for the demand. White lilies are not plentiful, but are only in demand for funeral work, which just

FRAT-M'S

Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-M's a trial; you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address about absorbs the stock available. Lily of the valley is in good supply, but sales drag, owing to the small call for it. A few Lilium speciosum and L. auratum are arriving and meet a moderate demand, as also do flowers of the Madonna variety.

The supply of herbaceous stock is heavy, and sales of some varieties are made at low figures to effect clearances. Gladioli, gypsophila and Delphinium Belladonna, perhaps, are the best sellers, although the quantities of them arriving are much too large for profitable distribution. Outside sweet peas are coming in quantity, but the quality is inferior, owing to the drought, which has lasted for several weeks, but has within the last day or two been broken by copious thunder showers. Gaillardias, stocks, candytuft, yellow daisies, alyssum, calendulas, hollyhocks, Japanese iris, centaureas in two species, didiscus, campanulas and antirrhinum are all in heavy supply, and clearances of them are more or less difficult.

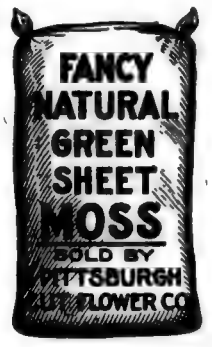
Various Notes.

Max Schling's summer school is in full operation, and some of his pupils, most of whom are from out of town, are seen in the flower markets each day. Adolph E. Gude, of Washington, and A. Holm, of Minneapolis, who are taking the course, spend quite a little spare time in the wholesale district.

The funeral services for Harold W. Trepp, whose death was reported last week, were held June 22, and were attended by many of the young man's friends in the trade, whose floral offerings filled three carriages. As the cortege passed the Eighteenth street flower market, all lights in the market were extinguished and business suspended for a few minutes.



Louis J. Reuter, of Boston, was calling on the trade last week. He announces that his plant business has been merged with the business of C. U. Liggit, of Philadelphia, the merger taking effect July 1. Mr. Reuter will have charge of all New England business, continuing his office as before.

Henry Weston, of Hempstead, and Charles Weber, of Lynbrook, left June 27 by automobile for Atlantic City, where they will stay for a few days, with a party of the Masonic fraternity holding a meeting there.

The store of Dolansky & McDonald is temporarily closed. Samuel C. Gilbert, the traveling wholesale florist, whose quarters are opposite to those closed, is handling the firm's orchid shipments.

The New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association had an outing lasting three days at Greenwood lake, N. J., last week. The company numbered about fifty members and friends. A. L. Miller was unable to join the party, for the reason that he was starting the construction of a new range of

The Market.

With the coming of warm weather the flower business has slowed up somewhat. Garden flowers are coming in and are taking the place of the greenhouse varieties in some cases.

Various Notes.

The various floral societies are holding flower shows all over the country. In Toronto there have been several. The largest one was that of the Rose Society, in which amateurs and professionals exhibit. The exhibitions were fine this year. There were roses entered from various parts of the province and there were keen contests in all classes. The judges were well known to all florists and included John H. Dunlop, H. J. Moore, Professor Crowe, F. Davidson, B. Hughes, A. Kirkness, R. S. Holmes, Mrs. Dunnington-Grubb, Miss Yates, Miss Galbraith and Miss Roye.

The members of the Gardeners' and Florists' Association and the Toronto Retail Florists' Club were the guests of Senator Frederick Nicholls at his home in York county June 23. They were shown his beautiful gardens and were entertained at tea.

Many florists have arranged to close their stores half a day weekly in July and August. The downtown stores are mostly closing Saturday afternoons and the uptown stores, Wednesday afternoons. All the stores will close Wednesday afternoon, July 6, to permit all to take part in the florists' annual picnic.

H. G. Dillemuth is in demand these days at the various luncheon clubs in the city. He has been giving addresses on floral development, pointing out especially the work of the F. T. D.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Jurgens were in New York last week to bid goodbye to Mrs. J. K. Graham and Miss Graham, who sailed on the Empress of India for Europe.

Charles A. Samuels has been summoned for petit jury duty in the Superior court of Newport county.

Leikens had charge of the floral tributes at the funeral of Frederick Lothrop Ames, at his country estate, North Easton, Mass., last week.

Benton Harbor, Mich.—William Espel has withdrawn from the business and will no longer grow gladioli.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

Conditions in this market are still on the go, even though the weather is extremely hot and the thermometer registers 95 to 98 degrees.

Roses are showing the effects of the heat more than any other flowers, and more than they have in any previous year at this time.

Carnations now are small; in fact, they would almost pass for the hardy garden pinks.

Gladioli are now in their prime and the sales, so far, have been exceptionally good. Sweet peas are no more, and cornflowers are getting ready to follow suit. Miscellaneous stock of all kinds, including snapdragons, valley, pink and white lilies, gaillardias and Shasta daisies, can be had at popular prices and they move well.

Various Notes.

H. W. Sheppard has been exceedingly busy during the last week with weddings and funerals. This shop deserves special mention on its cool window display, representing an old mill, with the babbling brook, etc.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange is receiving some excellent Lilium Harrisii from William Schumann, of Highlands, and also reports good double cornflowers from Frank Schumann, of Delhi.

L. H. Kyrk has been receiving the best carnations of the Ward and Laddie varieties that have been seen around here for some time. They are from Frank Bros., Portland, Ind. He is also receiving some good Gladiolus Halley from George Klotter, of Price Hill.

E. G. Gillett reports the shipments of water lilies he is receiving from Charles Pommert, of Amelia, O., as being good and the demand on a par with shipments.

Julius Baer reports a good week in basket work, some being for the opening of a new home for distributing Nash motor cars. He also reports June so far this year better than June of last year.

The William Murphy Co. is receiving some excellent gladioli from William Taylor, of Price Hill, and some of the best Columbia roses arriving on this market.

E. A. Forter reports a good week in plant sales and also reports his wedding orders were many.

Last week occurred the death of a sister of Robert Betz, of the Ball & Betz Wire Works. The florists are all extending their sympathies to Mr. Betz, who is an ardent worker and is well liked by all the florists.

Peter Weiland reports astonishingly good carnations for this time.

The wedding of Ray Eck and Miss Marie Buehler, of Clifton, was solemnized Saturday, June 25. It was a brilliant affair and Mr. Eck and his bride are now spending their honeymoon at Niagara Falls and other Eastern points. When at home they will reside in Clifton.

Among the visitors that graced our city last week were George Asmus, of Chicago; J. H. Nielson, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago; Julius Dilloff, of Wertheimer Bros., New York; Walter J. Gray, Jr., of Hamilton, O., and J. H. Herdegen, of Aurora, Ind. G. H. K.

TOLEDO, O.

The Market.

Business has settled down to a summer basis earlier than usual. This is in part explained by the extreme heat of the past month and the lack of wedding work, owing, no doubt, to the stringent times. Occasional funeral work helps to brighten up the otherwise dull days. Some fair carnations, considering conditions, may be had. Outdoor peas are in bad shape.

Various Notes.

J. L. Schiller has incorporated his business as the J. L. Schiller Co., to do a general greenhouse business. The company is capitalized at $65,000.

C. J. Zeems, landscape architect, says bookings for fall planting are ahead of last year and also ahead of spring work.

Mrs. Alice DeWitt Root, of Wooster, O., was a recent visitor. Mrs. Root was looking for ideas for her new store, which will be first-class in every respect.

The Helmer Flower Shop reports business good, considering existing conditions.

Metz & Bateman are keeping busy with funeral work.

Max Spanner is well pleased with business so far this month.

The Century Flower Shop is showing some good window arrangements.

The Moose convention is bringing many thousands to the city, but they do not seem to buy flowers. H. E. K.

S. A. F. MEMBERSHIP DRIVE.

Are you all busy? Oh, no! There are a few fellows who have a boiler to fix, some who have a little painting to do and others who are getting ready for their vacations.

Well, fishing for members for the S. A. F. is great sport. Just try it. All the "bait" you need is the "Say It with Flowers" slogan. If you can't take a long vacation, just take a short one to a near-by town and fish on your neighbor's premises. If they don't "bite" there, try the next town and if you only get a "nibble" at either place, go back soon again and you may run into a whole "school" and nab a half dozen or more real live ones. You might catch a shellfish who will really "shell out."

Write for application blanks. They make fine "fishing tackle."

BUSINESS IS GOOD.

There may be florists who did not have a good spring season, but they do not seem to be among those who use The Review. It is like this:

I want to thank you again for the great business your wonderful paper, The Review, has brought me. The three ads did wonderful work and I sold more bulbs than I intended to. This was the biggest spring trade I ever had in bulbs and bedding stock. Completely sold out and might have sold 100 per cent more.—Rychlik Floral Gardens, Painesville, O., June 20, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

FOR SALE

ONE OF THE LARGEST AND MOST SUCCESSFUL PLANT-GROWING ESTABLISHMENTS IN AMERICA

I am offering for sale my entire business, which includes two large ranges, the Quincy Street range and the Harlem range. Both places are devoted exclusively to potted stock. The business will be sold just as it stands, buildings, land, equipment and stock, and along with it will go the good will that has been built up by years of growing the best pot plants in Chicago. I will give possession as soon as sale is closed.

The Quincy Street place is only five miles from the Chicago loop. It is in fine condition. Nothing has been spared in putting in improvements and keeping it in good order.

The Harlem place is practically new; nearly all of it has been built recently. The glass in this range covers 75,000 square feet. It has all modern equipment: concrete benches, coal unloading machinery, etc. The centralized heating plant with two new boilers that have just been installed has a capacity for a place twice as large. There are ten acres of land connected with this place, excellent for growing outdoor stock, especially carnations. It also has a good location, at the outskirts of Chicago, not far from the Quincy Street establishment.

The business is well established, is one of the largest and most successful of its kind in the United States, and is well-known throughout the country. It is in an excellent location, having all city conveniences, good transportation facilities, and a ready local market for all that can be produced. Excluding two months of the year, cash sales alone cover the pay roll. There is plenty of room for expansion and even a larger business can be developed.

This is an unusual opportunity, but it must be a man of experience who is a capable manager and who can produce high grade stock. It would be a good proposition for two or three experienced men, commanding enough capital to form a corporation.

This is not a small proposition, but a large one, that requires a substantial amount of money, and that can be handled only by responsible persons, having the ability to successfully manage a big business. Others will not be considered.

Wire, write, or phone for appointment, and arrangements will be made for a complete investigation.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Oakland, Cal.—Okada Bros. have sold their business, conducted under the name of the Elmhurst Floral Co.

EUREKA, CAL.

The San Jose establishment of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries has been sold, the title having passed to W. B. Clarke, formerly sales manager of this enterprise, though in business for himselfe since the receiver took it over. It is understood that Mr. Clarke has a prominent nurseryman of the northwest as a silent partner in the operation of the San Jose tract, where roses and some nursery stock are grown. The price paid is said to be $20,000.

The sale of this tract enabled the receiver, G. Vanden Abeele, to redeem the Eden property by giving a mortgage for $20,000 on the latter. This will enable him to continue the operation of this property.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Although last week there was a fair demand for stock of the better grades, on the whole, conditions have favored the buyers, while for the cheaper grades there has been little demand. Gladioli have fairly overflowed the market and the prices have been ridiculously low for the quality of the flowers. Dahlias are coming in more freely and as yet sell fairly well. At present the asters coming to market are poor, small and thin in texture and of fair color only. Roses continue to arrive in good shape, but a hot spell struck the neighborhood this week, rendering shipping difficult. Carnations are keeping up well and the indoor flowers are bringing good prices. Outside of greens, the long-distance shipping from this city is small. June weddings have not been so plentiful as usual and only a good demand for funeral work has prevented a slump.

Various Notes.

Baskets of Los Angeles roses are great favorites at the Athletic Club Florist's, this fine variety lasting well and giving great satisfaction to customers.

Funeral work and colonial bouquets of strawflowers and statice formed the biggest outlets at Westrem Garland Florists. They have put on a fine new delivery car here. Fred Westrem starts for a vacation trip to the Sierras July 1.

A delivery car has been added to the equipment of Wolfskill's & M. Goldenson.

When J. F. Ammann was here recently he saw the new fern, Adiantum Wrightii, and was so pleased with it that he at once ordered stock from Tom Wright. Propagation of this distinct novelty is going on rapidly and a large stock is already developed.

David Stathatos, of the Broadway Florists, was missing from his place last week and, as this is so unusual, inquiries were made, leading to the fact that he and Mrs. Stathatos were on a little vacation trip to San Francisco. Mr. Stathatos surely deserves it.

A wonderfully good business is being done at the store of W. Armacost & Co. in the new Mas-Art baskets.

Our old friend, James Menasco, was seen about town again, with his roses which he grows so well at Baldwin park.

Manager John Gordon, of Darling's Shop, reports business keeping up fairly well. He has been having rather a severe siege with the dentist.

Harry Bailey, of Montebello, is busy shipping freesia. So far, about 300,000 of the large-sized Purity have been shipped. H. R. R.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

Stock in almost every line is already showing the effect of summer. Gladioli are again on the market and proving the favorite, as in former years. Outside sweet peas are starting to arrive and are welcome, as indoor stock has been getting poor. Bedding stock is about exhausted, after a good season. Potted plants are scarce, but the demand is also limited.

Various Notes.

William Peters, of Peters & Sons, Hillyard, Wash., is wearing a broad smile these days, the cause being the arrival of a son.

S. Younkin spent the first part of June on a trip to McMinnville, Ore. He drove down in the firm's sedan, advertising "Say It with Flowers." He reports a splendid trip and roads in fair shape.

A trip to the various greenhouses finds them all getting ready for the fall and winter crops, with prospects of good stock. Conditions about Spokane were never better in crop prospects.

A noted increase in the use of baskets and window boxes by business houses is noticeable this year, for which the city beautiful committee is to be thanked.

The annual peony show was held in the show room of the Spokane Seed

Co. Some fine specimens of blooms were shown and many orders were booked for fall delivery of plants. A dahlia association has also been started in the city.

At the regular meeting of the Florists' Club the election of officers for the ensuing term was held. H. Hill, of Hoyt Bros., was elected chairman, and R. W. Neville, of the Spokane Seed Co., secretary and treasurer. It was with regret that the resignation of Superintendent of Parks Duncan as secretary and treasurer of the club was accepted. Mr. Duncan gave much of his time and was valuable to the club. However, he intends to hold membership in the club.

Graduation and funeral work has kept all the flower stores busy.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

There is plenty of good stock in the market at present. Roses are plentiful and numerous varieties are in season. Carnations are also plentiful and of good quality. Italian growers are sending in many outdoor gladioli in a great variety of colors. The market is also full of early summer flowers. Dahlias are numerous and sweet peas are being much used for bouquets and decorations. Iceland poppies are both numerous and popular, and pansies, delphinium, cornflowers, marigolds and summer lilacs abound. Orchids, gardenias and lilies of the valley are fairly plentiful and the first chrysanthemums are appearing, though they are not yet fit for shipping.

For the Flower Show.

Plans are progressing rapidly for the fall flower show which will be given under the auspices of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society with the aid of the Retail Florists' Association at the Exposition auditorium in this city October 26 to 28. At the last meeting of the Retail Florists' Association the task of appointing committees was completed, as far as the association was concerned. These association committees are as follows: Exhibition committee: P. V. Matraia, chairman; B. M. Joseph, Albert O. Stein, Fred Bertrand, Angelo J. Rossi, J. Kilrey, C. W. Brown, R. Dinucci, F. C. Jaeger, Jr., Frank D. Pelicano, E. C. Krase, P. Benedotte and A. Serveau; hall committee: A. J. Rossi, F. Ferrari, Charles

Mr. Cut Flower Grower! Plant Fraser's Strain, they are first in size and otherwise.

CALENDULA King of Kings (Fraser's Production)

We believe this strain of Calendula has a great future before it. A Golden progeny of the famous Double Orange King. Color: Dazzling orange. The flowers are larger and the blue-black disk smaller, with broad overlaid petals. Habit: 2 feet, with fine erect heads and stiff stems, and for these reasons will be in great demand for the flower market. Trade pkt., $1.00; Ounce, $2.50.

NEW MYOSOTIS President Harding Blue: (Fraser's Introduction) Winter-flowering.

This new Winter-flowering Myosotis (Forget-me-not) is the result of a carefully thought-out cross, said by some experts to surpass any other strain yet offered. Color: Harding Blue. Habit: Bold and branching, forming open bushes from 18 to 20 inches high and of equal diameter, extra vigorous sprays of bloom last long as cut flowers. Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 Trade pkts., $2.00.

COSMOS Extra Early Single Dahlia-Flowered (Fraser's Selection)

A very fine strain, the result of many years' careful selection. Its points for earliness, size, color and productiveness are good all round. Height: 4 feet, with flowers of splendid substance, resembling giant single Dahlia flowers and stiff stems, unusual in the older varieties. The most profitable cutting cosmos in cultivation. We are offering 2 separate colors: Dahlia White, Dahlia Pink, Dahlia Mixed. Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 Trade pkts., $2.00.

Rosaia, B. M. Joseph, A. Serveau, P. V. Matraia; guarantee fund committee: V. Ferrari, A. J. Rossi and B. M. Joseph; prize committee: W. Kettlewell for private growers, B. M. Joseph for retail florists, and E. James for growers.

The committee was instructed to see the MacRorie-McLaren Co. and W. Kettlewell regarding plants. A committee from the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society will coöperate with the committees of the Retail Florists' Association. J. R. Walsh, of the Sevin-Vincent Co., is secretary of this organization. A preliminary prize list has already been made out. There are also numerous prizes for chrysanthemums, roses, carnations, lilies of various kinds, begonias, dahlias and orchids.

Various Notes.

The Richmond Pottery, Inc., is the name planned for an enterprise which was organized in San Francisco June 21. At the meeting, which was attended by a number of florists and growers, the whole of the $20,000 capital stock was subscribed. A factory site has already been leased at Richmond, where there is plenty of clay for making flower pots. Machinery is already available and Frank D. Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., one of the board of directors, states that the factory will be ready to deliver pots in six weeks. H. Plath, Ocean View, is temporary chairman, and it is expected that he will be president of the company; J. R. Walsh is secretary and a permanent treasurer has yet to be appointed.

J. A. Axell says that the numerous June brides this year have plenty of lilies of the valley.

The United Flower & Supply Co. had six dozen of the new crop of chrysanthemums from its growers last week and expects to have more for the local trade in July. They will probably not be ready to ship until August, when the growers will be sending in early Golden Glow blooms.

Domoto Bros. are importing a number of umbrella pines from Japan. They have been bringing them over for ten years and report a growing demand, as Victor Podesta, of Podesta & Baldocchi, states that there never was a June wedding season when bridesmaids ran so much to pastel colors. "At many of the weddings," said Mr. Podesta, "the various bridesmaids wear gowns of some pastel shade of pink, blue and yellow. The bouquets must match and the decorations are a combination of all the colors in the bouquets of the bridesmaids."

P. V. Matraia finds that the seamen's strike has done much to stop the custom of sending bon-voyage baskets. People are so uncertain regarding their reservations, when they get out on a strike-breaking steamer, that they think but little of flowers. Mr. Matraia, whose Art Floral Store supplies many bon-voyage baskets, says he lives in hopes of a prompt strike settlement.

The telegraph poles were put in by the Western Union, while there are signal lights and other devices that make the beholder think he is looking at a railroad in miniature. M. M.

bells and gladioli have been freely used in the baskets made up of late. Peonies are also being used heavily.

One of the most popular of the roses seen at present is Ulrich Brunner. A heavier cut is noted on Cecile Brunner, and the same can be said of Ward. Ophelia and Columbia are in ample supply, and there has been practically no demand for Russell.

The midseason cut of iris leaves little to be desired in the minds of buyers, and the deeper shades of blue are quick sellers. Carnations are increasing in supply.

Scattering deliveries of late hydrangeas, begonias and fuchsias are seen, but, in general, ferns form the only quotable offering. Whitmanii are coming to hand in larger quantities, and are in limited demand. The general sale of bedding stock is past, although there has been a good demand lately for seeds. Primroses are not up to standard and are scarce.

Various Notes.

Late visitors included Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Joseph, of Joseph's, San Francisco; J. M. Bridgeford, managing director of Watkins & Simpson, Ltd., of London, England, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jandl, of the Spokane Florist Co. The Josephs are on an automobile tour of the Pacific coast and will visit British Columbia before returning home.

S. A. Dunlap, until recently with the Swetland Flower Shop, Portland, is again attached to the Hollywood Gardens, replacing Raymond Kester, who has returned to Cleveland. Mr. Kester made many friends in his short stay in the northwest, and it was with regret that it was learned climatic conditions here are unfavorable to his stay. E. O. Peterson, of this shop, is away on a two weeks' vacation trip.

Fred Gust has left on his long trip for the McCallum Co., and will visit all of the Pacific coast and Rocky mountain states before returning to his headquarters here.

Lloyd Martin, of the Woodlawn Flower Shop, is receiving congratulations on his marriage last week to Miss Ethel Stern. After a short wedding trip, the young couple are at home on Summit avenue. The store force presented the couple with a handsome silver carving set.

Funeral work has been heavy for Kenney's Home of Flowers. Among the more notable pieces are double-ended casket sprays worked out in red, white and blue for the funeral services of those soldiers whose bodies are being brought back from France.

Rosaia Bros. handled the church decorations for a number of the largest weddings. Much attention has been attracted to a window wherein two large tanks have been used for display. Water lilies were shown in one of these, while goldfish were shown in the other tank.

General business is reported good at the City Flower Shop, there being an especially good movement of Ulrich Brunner roses. This shop made up a huge bunch of this variety for the Disabled Veterans' Association on the occasion of its reception to a popular motion picture actress.

Frank Bell is starting the delivery of some fine yellow snapdragons and is also handling a heavy cut of Cecile Brunners. He expects to have a big crop of pompons this fall.

A nice business in large baskets was reported for McCoy's on the occasion of a bank's opening last week, with Ulrich Brunner the favored flower among these buyers. A novel decoration was handled for the War Women's Association, blue delphinium, carnations and roses being used to reproduce the blue, white and red of the French colors. Some new pottery lines have been shown as a window feature of late.

The Orpheum Floral Co. has been securing fine results from made-up baskets at popular prices. Some of the most delicately tinted sweet peas seen this season have been handled by this shop, notably coral shaded stock.

George Lawlor, grower of Gardenville, is back from a business trip to Spokane, and he advises that trade conditions there were generally good.

THE RETAIL STORE

A PAGE OF HINTS AND HELPS FOR THE RETAIL FLORIST

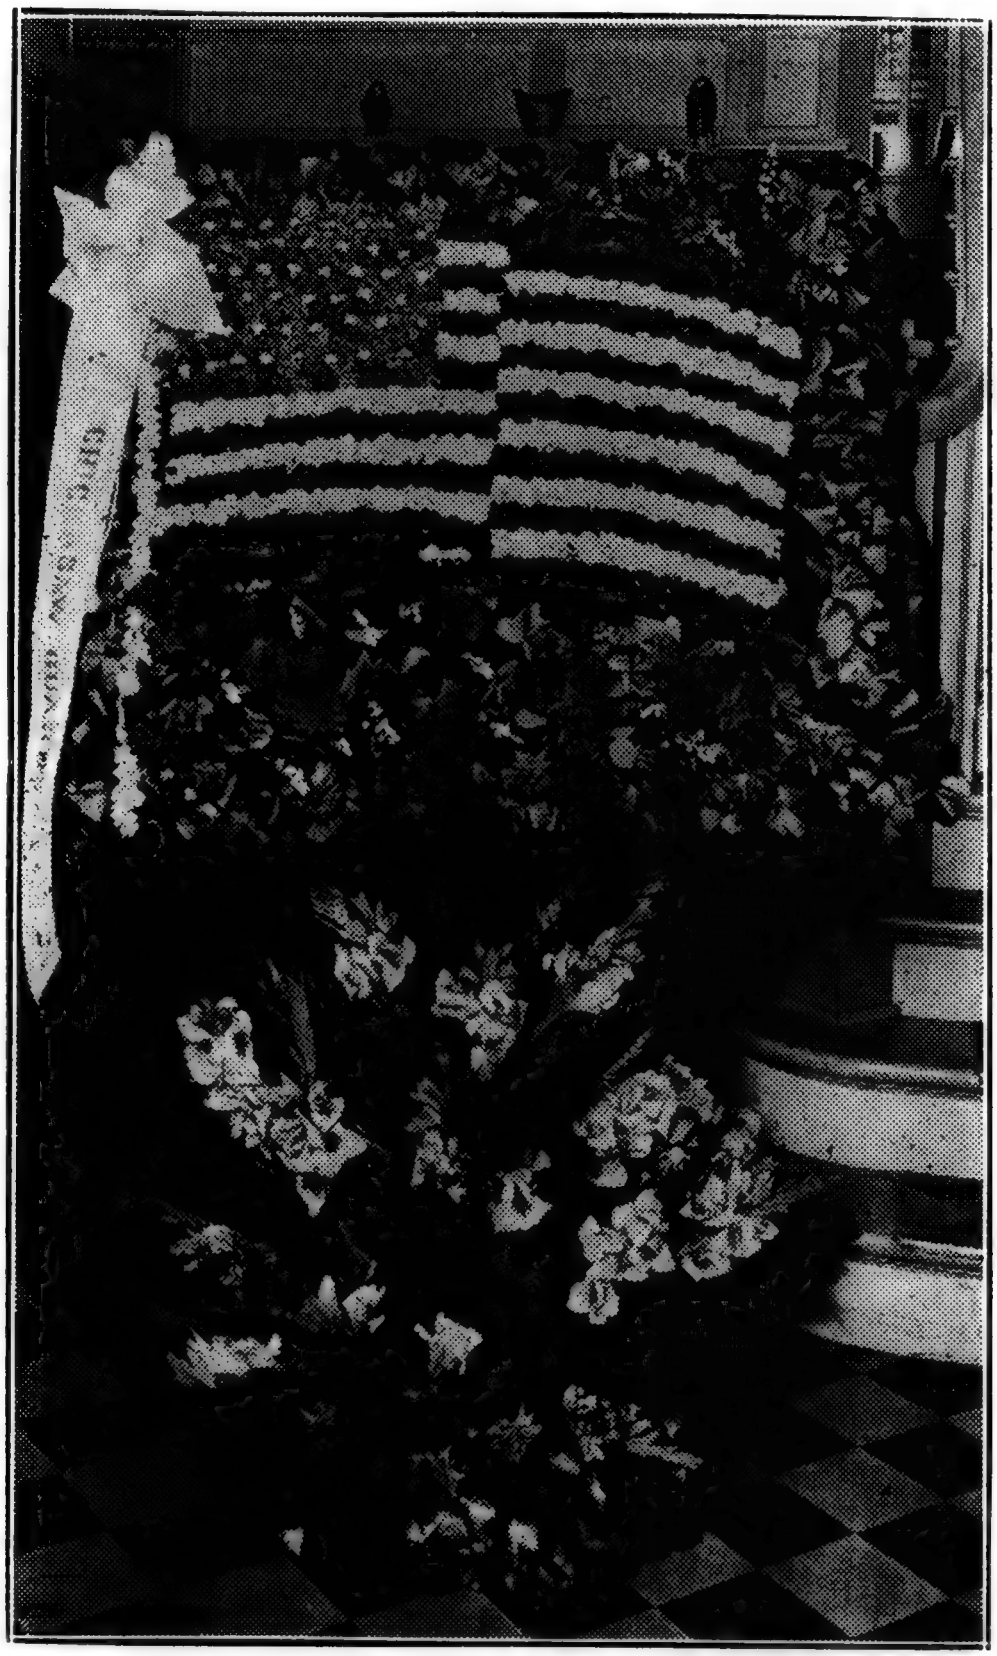
PUT LIFE IN THE WINDOW.

One of the things in which John Mangel takes pride in his store in the Palmer House, Chicago, is the window display. Just off busy State street, he has the opportunity of getting the attention of the throngs of shoppers, business men and travelers visiting the city who turn down Monroe street. There is usually something in the window to draw attention and constantly there is a group of from two or three to six or eight pedestrians in front of the store. Just now a birch bark setting, with bubbling water in the circular stream around a pedestaled statue, makes a delightfully cool window. Vases of outdoor flowers are placed to their rims in the water, so that the movement of its surface sways the blooms up and down and to and fro. Baskets of flowers are placed in the corners of the windows. The scene is a cool, attractive one; yet the emphasis of the display is on flowers.

This is the time for summer window displays. Each week's issue of The Review carries the description of some new one, if not several. For instance, recently was mentioned the rustic mill, with pond and ducklings, at the store of the Woodlawn Flower Shop, in Seattle. That scene has proved a great drawing card for florists in many places. If you have not installed your summer window, now is the time to start.

Few florists avail themselves of one of the best assets they have in an advertising way. The drawing power of a good window display is realized only by those who have had the experience of staging one and who have seen the results of the interest aroused. At this time of year there is not the ready excuse of "Too busy." Nor can the cost be given as a reason for neglecting this opportunity. A window full of palms and ferns is symbolic either of an undertaker or a florist dead to his opportunities. Put some life in your window.

A FAREWELL IN FLOWERS.



The Chickasaw Guards, at Memphis, Tenn., wanted to find someone who could design a floral tribute suitable for placing upon the grave of Lieutenant Thomas S. Tate, a fallen comrade. So they chose Johnson's Greenhouses. A glance at the picture on this page argues well for the judgment of the Guards. It shows the design which Johnson's Greenhouses made.

The body of the design was composed of greens and galax, while the flag in the center was of red, white and blue immortelles, imported from France. The flagstaff and ferrule were of white immortelles and to this was fastened a silken streamer bearing the words, "Chickasaw Guards." Above the flag and to the right was a spray of Francis Scott Key roses, and below were sprays of maidenhair fern, valley and Key roses. A basket, filled with yellow gladioli and palm leaves, formed the base of the design.

ARE YOU A GO-GETTER?

There are two types of people to be met in the business world today. One type essentially belongs to that class which may be described as I-am-here-and-will-be-pleased-to-serve-you. The other class are coming briefly to be known as "go-getters."

The old-time business man opened a retail store, trimmed his windows, did a little advertising and then waited for people to come to him to spend their money. He was on the job early and late. He had clerks and assistants, but quite as often as not this proprietor himself squandered time doing what an ordinary clerk, a bookkeeper, or some other employee could have done quite as well.

In the meantime, he was often anxious about where the money was coming from to discount his bills, or to make such changes and expansion as he felt desirable and necessary. The more anxious this type of business man became, the closer he stuck and hung to business. The closer he stuck and hung, the tighter money became—and so a vicious circle was completed and kept constantly spinning round and round until the poor man's life and courage were worn out like an old rubber tire. Sometimes a fair living was made, but few businesses conducted on this plan ever became large or permanent.

A test was worked out in a rather more than average business town as to the extent of business mortality, covering a period of thirty years. It was discovered that at the end of the 30-year period not a single retail business was alive which was on the map at the beginning. There had been a mortality of 100 per cent. Out of all other businesses—factories, manufacturing plants and jobbing houses, eight per cent were still alive.

Similar tests in other places have shown as startling results. In each new issue of Bradstreet's report, twenty per cent of the names that were in the previous report fail to appear.

Came All The Way Back From Washington To Learn How To Tie Our Corsage Bow

If it wasn't for giving you a chance to laugh in high glee at him, I'd tell who the florist was. But suffice that he is one of the big men in the business.

He heard about our unique way of tying a corsage bow and came on from Washington to find out how to do it. We gladly showed him very painstakingly. But when he got back home, try as he would, he couldn't do it. So he promptly sent one of his men all the way back again.
Before he left you can depend on it he could tie it with his eyes shut.

I'd gladly tell everyone of you right here and now, exactly how to tie it, but it's entirely too complicated.
But any of you who will drop in, I'll gladly take all the time you want in showing you.

This is a terrific waste and makes one feel that there must be reasons which could be corrected. Broadly stated, these reasons can be summed up in the one blanket charge of I-am-here-and-will-be-pleased-to-serve-you.

We are ready to acknowledge that most of these men are honest, earnest, courteous and genuinely anxious to succeed. But that type of business man has had hard sledding in the last decade or two and it is going to be an impossibility for him to survive in the face of conditions which we shall have to meet in the next decade.

The man of the present and the future must be a go-getter. What is a go-getter? He is an individual with erably since the social season has closed and society folks are off on their summer vacations. Last week saw practically the end of the season. Dealers will depend on a few late weddings and funeral work from now on. There is a daily good supply of all varieties of roses and only the choice stock moves, while the poorer grades are being jobbed off at low prices in order to move the surplus. Carnations are poor in quality and the hot weather shows plainly on the blooms. There are plenty of them, but they are hard to move. There is an excellent demand for sweet peas, but the quality of the stock coming in is so poor that these, too, are hard to move at almost any price.

The market last week was well supplied with nearly all seasonable flowers.

Gladiolus spikes are beginning to arrive in large quantities. These were in large demand and cleared daily, but from now on there will be a large surplus and prices must be reduced in order to move the daily cut. Valley had an excellent call last week and the choice stock cleaned up well. Easter lilies are arriving in good quality and come in for a good demand. There is also much outdoor stock, such as candytuft, daisies, cornflowers, coreopsis and delphiniums, to be had daily. These move fairly well. Asparagus, smilax and ferns move well daily and the market is well supplied.

Retailers' Meeting.

The St. Louis Retail Florists' Association held an open meeting Monday night, June 20, in Moose hall, and sixty members of the trade responded to the call. President Theodore Miller presided at the meeting. The meeting was held for the purpose of investigating the charges brought against the management of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., which, it is said, is doing retail work and not confining itself to a strictly wholesale business. The meeting opened with several prominent retailers bringing in the charges. D. S. Geddis, manager of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., was present to defend his company and denied all except one of the charges brought forward. Several heated discussions took place during the evening.

Secretary F. C. Weber then asked Mr. Geddis to sign the agreement, as the other five wholesale houses had done, not to do any retail business, stating if he did this he would be taken back into the good graces of the association. This he refused to do without consulting with the board of directors of his company. A committee was then appointed by the chair, consisting of A. Hoffmann, Sr., Frank X. Gorly and Carl Beyer, to lay the matter before Louis A. Hoerr, the majority stockholder in the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. This committee is to report at a special meeting to be called when the committee is ready to report. All the leading retail florists in the city were present at the meeting.

Bowlers Organize.

The largest and most enthusiastic meeting of the St. Louis florist bowlers took place June 20 at 9 p. m. in the salesrooms of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co. The attendance would have been larger had it not been for a special meeting held by the Retail Florists' Association the same night. However, twenty-five responded to the call of President Frank Windler. The first order of business was the presentation of the gold medals to George Kuehner and A. Y. Ellison, the champion double team in the recent city bowling tournament. Then came the election of officers, which resulted thus: President, Oscar Ruff; vice-president, Albert W. Gumz; secretary, J. J. Beneke, and treasurer, J. J. Bentzen. Eight new members were elected to membership; six were placed on teams, and a waiting list of two re-

Walter Amling, of Pana, Ill., president of the St. Louis district branch of the National Flower Growers' Association, spent June 21 in the city. Mr. Amling is looking forward to July 19, when the district holds its third quarterly meeting at Centralia, Ill., which should be the largest and best meeting the association has yet held. J. W. The Market.

Business conditions have changed little the past month. There has been a large supply of stock, with a limited demand. An occasional commencement exercise or wedding causes a little demand, but really not enough to clean up the market. Weather conditions have been exceedingly warm, which has caused some of the shipped stock to arrive in poor condition, almost unsalable. White roses, lilies of the valley and orchids are in constant demand and are cleaned up promptly daily. Gladioli are also being received in large quantities and are being moved fairly well. The supply of roses is fair, but some of the stock is not so good as it has been in the past, due to the warm weather that we have been encountering. Carnations have been moving slowly and, in some instances, at bargain prices. The majority of carnations are showing the effects of this warm weather. The season for carnations is about over, but some growers have arranged for their crops to come along until asters begin to arrive. Easter lilies have also been in fair demand. Delphinium, feverfew and larkspur have been a factor in this market this season. Outdoor stock coming along in heavy supply includes larkspur, candytuft, feverfew, cornflowers and sweet williams. Sweetheart roses have also made their appearance again in this market. The other varieties of roses received are White Killarney, Ophelia, Crusader, Russell, Richmond, Premier, Columbia, Butterfly, Pilgrim and Mrs.

The supply houses seem to be busy and from all reports it is hoped that business for this June will at least reach that of last year, which, of course, would mean an increase in orders, as prices have been reduced considerably as compared with those of 1920. Some of the local florists report that their June business has been the largest in their history.

Various Notes.

Florists in the Pittsburgh district should be particularly interested in knowing that there will be a joint meeting of the Retail Florists' Association and the Florists' and Gardeners' Club sometime in September. The members of both organizations are enthusiastic in making this one of the largest meetings ever held and it is hoped that every florist will arrange to take part in this joint celebration by being present. The date will be announced later.

The Market.

Demand decreased last week and, while there were not many lines of stock on the market, there was more of each than was required. Funeral work has held up well, and what demand there is for stock is caused principally by funerals. While there have been no large funeral occasions, this sort of work has used much stock. Roses are holding up well for this season. The recent new varieties are all that could be desired for summer stock. There is a large supply of outdoor sweet peas, but the stems are short and the sweet peas keep poorly. Carnations are pretty well over. There is some miscellaneous stock, but it does not amount to much. Smilax is getting a chance and can now be had in reasonable quantities.

Meeting at Hotel Rennert.

Monday, June 20, was a sweltering hot day, but in spite of this about twenty representative men of the trade assembled in one of the private dining rooms of the Hotel Rennert, and, over one of this hostelry's famous luncheons, devised ways and means for the big flower show to be held in conjunction with "Say It with Flowers" week. It was inspiring to see the preliminary arrangements that had been made for this meeting. For instance, H. Clay Primrose, one of the best landscape architects of the city, had blueprints of the floor of Lehman's hall to represent a garden, the beds being spaces that will be rented to the trade. This plan was at once adopted, and H. Clay Primrose, William F. Feast and George Black were appointed a space committee, so that anyone desiring space should see these men at once. You can make your selections from the blueprints. Get in early and get a desirable location. Another big feature is going to be the program. This is going to be more of a reference book than a program. It will contain cultural methods for amateurs, suggestions for laying out and planting gardens, and other floral information that will make it of value to amateurs. Robert W. Johnston and his finance committee went into executive session while the main committee was holding its meeting. They calculated that it would take $4,000 to put the show across. This amount will be underwritten by the club. Among those present were Isaac H.

The Market.

Unusually hot weather last week caused a slight lull in the market. Outside stock has been coming in steadily, but roses and carnations grown inside show the effects of the weather greatly. The last few days carnations have been of a little better quality, but are small and some are burnt on the edges.

they can only be used in funeral work or where short stems can be used.

Lilies have also felt the weather and are soft, but are still holding a fair price. Funeral work has kept up fairly well, thus enabling the stock to be consumed much better than during the preceding week.

Various Notes.

H. G. Walker has benched about 12,000 mums in his new 230-foot greenhouse and expects to build another the same length in the fall. He has also put in a new 75-horsepower boiler, which will enable him to take care of new houses which he expects to erect in time.

The E. G. Reimers & Son Co. is installing a new heating system that will take care of more glass. E. G. Reimers, president of the firm, will leave July 7 for New York, where he will visit his son.

Anders Rasmussen, of New Albany, entertained the Kentucky Society of Florists at his new home, at Silver Hills. A meeting was held first, in which nothing of interest happened. This, however, is attributed to the men's not having their minds on business, for they all knew that Mr. Rasmussen had planned an afternoon of pleasure. And so he did. All kinds of games were played and while these were going on a wonderful dinner was being prepared. All enjoyed themselves immensely. E. G. R.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The intense heat of last week practically caused the flower buying public to abandon the use of flowers, except in cases of necessity. Weddings have been more numerous this week than any week previous during the month of June, but only a small percentage used any particular quantity of flowers. Weddings this season appear to be more quiet than usual, possibly due to the fact that employment is not satisfactory throughout this locality.

Funeral work continues to be the mainstay of the business, and stock is usually cleaned up pretty well. Graduations are numerous, but there appears to be a lack of flowers at these functions this year.

Indoor stock is not particularly good, for the terrible heat of the middle of the week has done much to soften it. Roses are not particularly plentiful, and, regardless of the quantity of ice packed with each shipment, as soon as the flowers are exposed to the air they become full-blown and, in many cases, are unfit for general use. The demand for valley is strong, but only a limited supply is obtainable. It is surprising in most cases how well the carnations are standing the heat. Little stock outside of roses and valley is seen in the greenhouses at this time.

and quantities of outdoor stock. This, however, is not so good as the usual run of summer stock, owing to the fact that the season has been dry. Rain is needed badly.

New fern leaves are becoming more plentiful. Asparagus is in good supply, but little smilax is seen.

Various Notes.

Charles W. Curtis, of Summerville boulevard, has a splendid field of gladioli and asters, which will be in bloom within a week or so. His soil, which is most adaptable for early stock, combined with the sprinkling system, gives splendid results. His gladiolus planting has been increased by several thousand this year, and comprises most of the best commercial varieties.

Edward Brockman is cutting a large quantity of outdoor stock.

market. So far this season, the market has not been oversupplied with this stock and the majority of it sells well.

Homer E. Rogers, of Brockport, N. Y., was in town a few days ago on a purchasing trip. He reports business good.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. La Porte, of Oswego, N. Y., leave for San Francisco Sunday, July 3, to attend the annual convention of the B. P. O. E. While on their trip, they expect to spend a week in Yellowstone park. The trip will occupy about five weeks.

The flower stores at the city cemeteries have resumed their summer cut flower business, and immense quantities of stock are sold there every Sunday. Their spring bedding trade has been enormously heavy this year and, in most cases, practically nothing in that line is seen in the greenhouses. Throughout the city the same prices obtained for bedding stock last year were obtained this season. H. J. H.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Several heavy rains have held up the supply of garden flowers a few days, but they are now being gathered again and can be had in great profusion and of extraordinary size. Cornflowers, gaillardias, feverfew and larkspur are in largest demand. Outdoor sweet peas are plentiful and hold up well. Orchids are hard to obtain. One local florist wired Chicago for orchids, but the wire arrived too late to ship in time, whereupon he called Cincinnati and Cleveland. There were none in Cincinnati and the Cleveland price was so exorbitant that other flowers were substituted. Such flowers as white sweet peas and swainsonas are being used as a substitute for valley, while Ophelia and Butterfly roses have replaced white roses.

Various Notes.

Business here is still brisk and flowers are selling about the same as a month ago. Carnations are small and of poor quality. in many different ways. Sweet peas have been scarce, but outside stock is beginning to arrive and the shortage is not so acute. The warm weather and the showers have brought on the outside flowers in a rush. Roses of the best quality are not numerous, but there is a large amount of second-rate flowers.

Gladioli are getting better and heavier each day, although the majority of growers will not cut for at least two weeks. Most of the gladioli arriving now are Prince of Wales, Mrs. Watt, Francis King and Chicago White, at $6 to $12 per hundred.

Various Notes.

Among the out-of-town callers on the trade last week were Robert Newcomb, of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., and M. H. Levine, of New York.

Miss Emily Petersen, of Hess & Swoboda, will be an over-Sunday visitor at Fremont, Neb.

apply to sand, soil, or earth used for packing the articles enumerated in item No. 1 of Regulation 3 when such sand, soil, or earth has been previously sterilized in accordance with methods prescribed by the Federal Horticultural Board under the supervision of an authorized inspector of the country of origin, such sterilization to be certified to by the duly authorized inspector of such country of origin. This provision is extended also to bulbs and corms imported under special permits under Regulation 14. The prescribed method of sterilization is as follows:

All sand, soil, or earth used for packing any of the bulbs referred to above must be brought to a temperature of 100 degrees C. and held there for a period of one hour. Such sterilization is accomplished at one of the department's field stations by the use of a large iron receptacle holding about a cubic yard of soil. The soil should be kept stirred during the heating process. Any method which will maintain the heat throughout the mass at the required temperature for this length of time will be satisfactory to the Federal Horticultural Board. The sterilization must be performed under the supervision of a duly authorized inspector of the country of origin and must be certified to by such inspector.

Bulbs and Corms.

The board has also authorized the use for packing of bulbs and corms of certain soil materials which are believed to be sufficiently sterile to meet this requirement. Such materials must, however, be certified as complying with the required conditions by the duly authorized inspector of the country of origin. It should be definitely noted that the use of sterilized soil, and of the naturally sterile soil materials described below, is not authorized for plants or roots other than bulbs and corms.

(1) Subsoil from Japan.—The conditions of the use of such subsoil are indicated in the paragraphs quoted below, which were submitted for approval by Dr. S. I. Kuwana, director of the PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

June, 1921, has established a record for the number of weddings held in Providence and vicinity. While only a few of them have been large social affairs, the demand for cut flowers, bouquets and decorations has been active and has increased the volume of business. Funeral work has also been brisk and, with the commencements, graduations, recitals, dances and other small functions, the month has been an especially good one. Prices have been proportionately low because of the prevalence of outdoor stock, but everyone is satisfied.

Various Notes.

At least three members of the trade in this city announced their intention last week to join the ranks of the benedicts, marriage licenses having been secured from the city registrar by Maurice Miller and Miss Lillian Shanbrun, Willmore R. Simmons and Frances E. Anderson, and Thomas J. Hogan and Miss Mary A. Maguire. All have the best wishes of the trade.

William B. Hazard has sold his 40-acre farm at the head of Academy avenue to La Salle Academy for a new school site.

John A. Macrae, Theodore R. Peterson, Vincenzo Bararducci and Martin Noonan have been drawn for petit jury duty in the Superior court for Providence county. W. H. M.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.

Wm. Foster has resigned his position as manager of the Cheyenne Mountain Floral Co. He will leave soon to resume his former duties as superintendent of the range of J. F. Wilcox & Co., at Council Bluffs, Ia. Mr. Foster was manager of that concern for nearly twenty years before he severed his relationship six years ago and went to Colorado Springs for Mrs. Foster's health. He then purchased the greenhouses at Broadmoor and later sold them to the Broadmoor Hotel Co., remaining in charge of the firm. He is leaving now only to be again in the commercial field, in which he has been always interested. Glen Wilcox spent a week in Colorado Springs recently and, as a result of a conference between him and Mr. Foster, the latter is returning as superintendent of the Wilcox range.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

June, 1921, has established a record for the number of weddings held in Providence and vicinity. While only a few of them have been large social affairs, the demand for cut flowers, bouquets and decorations has been active and has increased the volume of business. Funeral work has also been brisk and, with the commencements, graduations, recitals, dances and other small functions, the month has been an especially good one. Prices have been proportionately low because of the prevalence of outdoor stock, but everyone is satisfied.

Various Notes.

At least three members of the trade in this city announced their intention last week to join the ranks of the benedicts, marriage licenses having been secured from the city registrar by Maurice Miller and Miss Lillian Shanbrun, Willmore R. Simmons and Frances E. Anderson, and Thomas J. Hogan and Miss Mary A. Maguire. All have the best wishes of the trade.

William B. Hazard has sold his 40-acre farm at the head of Academy avenue to La Salle Academy for a new school site.

John A. Macrae, Theodore R. Peterson, Vincenzo Bararducci and Martin Noonan have been drawn for petit jury duty in the Superior court for Providence county. W. H. M.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.

Wm. Foster has resigned his position as manager of the Cheyenne Mountain Floral Co. He will leave soon to resume his former duties as superintendent of the range of J. F. Wilcox & Co., at Council Bluffs, Ia. Mr. Foster was manager of that concern for nearly twenty years before he severed his relationship six years ago and went to Colorado Springs for Mrs. Foster's health. He then purchased the greenhouses at Broadmoor and later sold them to the Broadmoor Hotel Co., remaining in charge of the firm. He is leaving now only to be again in the commercial field, in which he has been always interested. Glen Wilcox spent a week in Colorado Springs recently and, as a result of a conference between him and Mr. Foster, the latter is returning as superintendent of the Wilcox range.

NEWS OF THE SEED TRADE

FRANK H. LECKENBY, of the Chas. H. Lilly Co., was among the Seattle business men who took part in the southwest Washington trade expansion tour arranged by the Chamber of Commerce.

GEORGE L. PROTSMAN has bought a half interest in the Forbes Seed Co., Plymouth, Ind., which, prior to February 15 of this year, was known as the Forbes Seed Store. Mr. Protsman, although new in the trade, is quick to take hold and has already demonstrated his business ability. The company has enjoyed a good business this season, principally in field, garden and flower seeds, incubators and brooders, and poultry and other feeds. The company has handled two carloads of certified seed potatoes from the northwest, beside geraniums, cannas and other bedding plants.

SEEDSMEN AT ST. LOUIS.

Officers Elected.

At the thirty-ninth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association, at St. Louis, last week, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.

First Vice-president — Alexander Forbes, Newark, N. J.

Second Vice-president—L. B. Reuter, New Orleans, La.

Secretary-treasurer — C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

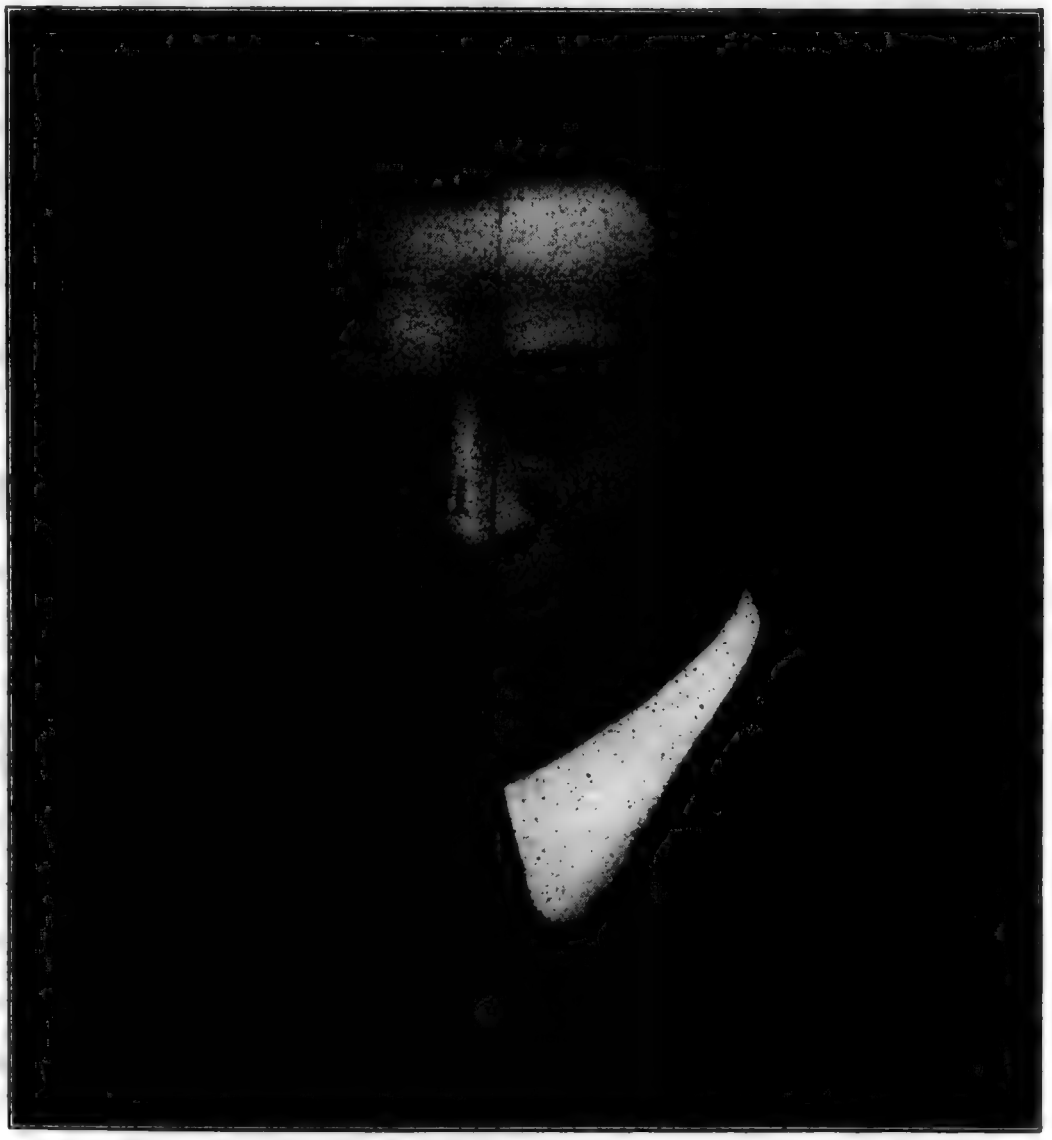
Assistant Secretary—Clifford Corneli, St. Louis, Mo.

The executive committee for the coming year will be composed of the following: H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; C. C. Massie, Minneapolis, Minn.; John L. Hunt, Cambridge, N. Y., and L. H. Vaughan, Chicago.

The membership committee for the coming year is made up of the following members: Alexander Forbes, chairman; R. W. Palmer, St. Louis; George S. Green, Chicago; L. B. McCausland, Wichita, Kan., and W. P. Stubbs, Louisville, Ky.

Convention of Workers.

In opening the Wednesday morning session of the convention President Hastings said, "Gentlemen, some of us are guilty of disobeying the law against wearing coats." So all the coats came off. That, in a way, tells the spirit of the convention. The members of the association had their coats off to do some real constructive work.



Wednesday afternoon was given over to an executive session. Curtis Nye Smith, counsel, met with the voting members and made the report of the year's legislative activities. In his summary he stated that the various legislatures with which he had come in contact have usually taken stands detrimental to all business in the effort to correct the evils existent with the present depressed economic conditions. It is his belief, and this was upheld by members, that regulation of prices and the arbitrary fixing of profits should not be undertaken. The natural law of supply and demand should always be allowed to assert itself. So the session passed a resolution on that subject to be sent to Washington.

The two amendments to the constitution and by-laws were discussed at this meeting. The first one dealt with changing the members of the arbitration committee from three to seven and making it a standing committee in place of one which the president appointed when conditions arose necessitating this committee. There was a great difference of opinion and much discussion on this subject, and when the final vote was taken the amendment was not passed. The second proposed amendment was simply changing the wording of Article 1, section 5 of the by-laws, which deals with the resignation and expulsion of members. This was passed and now the meaning of that rule is much clearer than it was before.

The membership committee made a preliminary report, naming a few of the proposed members, but nothing was done with it at this session.

Interesting Talks.

The program for Thursday morning comprised several interesting papers and talks on subjects of moment to the seedsmen. First, Kirby B. White, of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich., gave an interesting extemporaneous talk on "Promoting Larger and More Generous Plantings of Vegetable and Garden Seeds." His talk contained several constructive suggestions. He said that the use of seeds was bound to increase from natural causes. The growth of population, the increase of short railroad hauls, the decrease of long hauls, the transportation difficulties—all these would naturally tend to produce more intensive farming, the centralizing of the industry, and, therefore, to increase the use of seeds in all territories. While these and other naturally inevitable facts would all tend to build up the seed industry, the seedsmen themselves must do something to further the use of seeds. As individuals not much could be done. The amount of money spent on individual advertising in the seed trade during one year was so stupendous that he would not believe the figures when he heard what they were. He said that the best plan was to use a coöperative plan to sell the idea of gardening. Then, also, when the individual did do advertising he should do his best to make his advertising sell the idea of gardening. Selling that idea would sell more seeds than selling Smith's or Brown's store. The gardening idea was sold to many homes during the war and in a short time, and it can be more effectively sold now, for there is a longer time in which to do it. He also stated that the seedsmen should know more about the seeds which they sell. In place of selling several varieties of seeds of the same kind, they should cut out the varieties which were not better than the others and have a stock of only those varieties which were known to be the best. Selling only the best varieties of seeds will make satisfied customers, and satisfied customers are permanent advertisements.

Then followed a talk on "Promoting the Use of More and Better Field and Clover Seed on the Farm." This was presented by L. L. Olds, of Madison, Wis. His points were that high quality seeds and proper publicity would mean much toward gaining the desired end. He said that making a sale and getting away with it does no good. The seedsman should know that the seeds which he sells are what the customer wants. He talked long and earnestly on the necessity of dealing only in the highest quality of seeds. He urged that every seedsman be his own grower as much as possible, but at least have his own trial grounds. He showed the importance of attractive and correct catalogues. He urged that speaking be done at farmers' meetings and that seedsmen keep in touch with the work done at the state experimental stations.

The report of the garden bureau committee was then given by Leonard H. Vaughan and James H. Burdett, of Chicago. They told of the amazingly extensive work which has been done along the line of promoting the use of garden seeds through the free publicity given in the editorial columns of many newspapers in the country. The advantages over paid advertising of this free advertising were shown. The cost of this work is small when the amount of good it has done is considered. The report closed with a resolution to continue the garden bureau work and to request a contribution of $50 from each member of the association and additional contributions from members whose volume of business warranted it, the whole sum to be collected not to exceed $25,000 for the ensuing year. The report was then turned over to the auditing committee so that the expenses might be verified.

New Members.

An abbreviated business meeting was then held. The membership committee recommended that the rules be suspended temporarily and that the names of the members be voted on one at a time. Only two had been voted on, when an objection was voiced, a motion made, seconded and carried to vote on the proposed members at an executive session. Whereupon the meeting was changed to an executive meeting. During this session and that on Friday the following members were voted into the association:

John Lewis Childs, Inc., Floral Park, N. Y.
Atlantic Seed Co., Philadelphia, Pa.
Pedigreed Seed Co., Hartsville, N. C.
Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co., Louisiana, Mo.
N. Wertheimer & Sons, Ligonier, Ind.
M. & M. Seed Co., Chicago.
Craven-Dickinson Co., Buffalo, N. Y.
B. F. Metcalf & Son, Syracuse, N. Y.

The meeting Thursday afternoon was also devoted to the reading of papers and the delivering of addresses. Frank S. Love, of Montgomery, Ala., secretary of the Southern Seedsmen's Association, gave a talk entitled "Seed Trade of the Southeast." In preparation of the talk Mr. Love sent out a questionnaire to all the seedsmen in the southeastern states. The results showed that the seed business has grown from thirty-one firms in 1916 to 127 at the present time. He told of other results of the questionnaire, showing how the seed trade in the southeast had grown in the last twenty-five years.

Then Dick O'Bannon, of Sherman, Tex., presented a talk on "The Seed Trade of the Southwest." His talk was the opposite in material of the preceding one. He told of the why and wherefore of the wonderfully increasing business of the southwest and told the broad principles of this growing business. Taken together, he and Mr. Love told the whole story of the seed business of the south and both were intensely interesting.

Corn Breeding.

Eugene D. Funk, of Bloomington, Ill., gave an illustrated talk on "Latest Developments in Corn Breeding." His talk, together with well chosen stereopticon slides, was most entertaining and interesting. He told of and showed several of the latest varieties of corn and the method of obtaining them. His address was followed by a technical talk on "Mosaic and Angular Leaf Spot Diseases of the Cucumber," presented by Dr. S. C. Doolittle, of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Washington, D. C. His talk, telling the various diseases, how they worked, and methods of fighting

Committee Reports.

The meeting Friday morning was given over to reading the various committee reports. The report of the committee on necrology was the first to be presented. W. H. Barrett, of Adrian, Mich., chairman of the committee, gave brief outlines of the members of the association who had died during the year. Resolutions were passed to send a note of sympathy to Mrs. Edward C. Dungan, and one to Dr. Tracy, whose wife had died during the year.

The committee on postal laws next presented its report. G. F. Bradley, of Cleveland, O., the chairman, stated that the work of the committee had been light, merely pursuing a policy of waiting to see what was to be done. He stated that the proposed change from a minimum weight of eight ounces to a minimum weight of four ounces for catalogues to go at parcel post rates would be disadvantageous to seedsmen and suggested that the committee for the following year watch this point carefully. His report was accepted and put on record.

J. C. Vaughan, chairman of the tariff and customs committee, then made the report for that committee. On January 25 a brief was filed with the ways and means committee at Washington asking for a continuation of the present method of computing the tariff. Since then nothing has been heard from the ways and means committee. The emergency tariff did not affect the seedsmen. The new tariff will probably be before Congress about the middle of October, and until then nothing can be done with it. No information of the new tariff will be given out until it is presented to the house. Mr. Vaughan recommended that the committee of the association cooperate with the government tariff commission and that the small differences of the seedsmen in regard to the tariff be harmonized before the next committee is sent to Washington. His report was accepted and put on record.

Francis C. Stokes, of Moorestown, N. J., the chairman of the nomenclature committee, then made a report on the new code which this committee has prepared. There was a great deal of discussion over this report. He made four distinct suggestions, which were voted on one at a time. The session voted to go on record as being against the indiscriminate renaming of standard varieties of vegetables. The new code of naming varieties was accepted. It was also voted to publish a standard list of names to be distributed to the members of the association. And it was voted to have a committee for development and registration of new varieties.

The next committee report was that of the experiment station committee and was presented by L. L. Olds, of Madison, Wis. He read the reports which he had obtained from the various state experimental stations and from one in Canada. He also suggested that anything which these stations brought to the attention of the seedsmen was likely to be important and urged that seedsmen keep in touch with the activities of these stations.

J. C. Robinson then read the report of the committee on the president's address. The three suggestions contained in the address were recommended as desirable to accept. These were retaining Curtis Nye Smith as counsel, discouraging free seeds and appointing proper representation to the Interstate Commerce Commission, asking for relief both for the vegetable and fruit growers, as well as for the seedsmen.

A resolution was passed thanking the St. Louis entertainment committee for the wonderfully entertaining entertainment which the seedsmen had enjoyed during their stay in St. Louis.

Dick O'Bannon made the report of the auditing committee and reported that the secretary's and treasurer's reports and the report of the garden bureau committee had been audited and found correct.

to send a special vote of thanks to Eugene Funk for his address on corn, to thank and praise him for his life study of that subject, to ask him to continue his work along that line and to put his work on record so that everyone might know what he was doing and had done and will do. This was passed unanimously.

The fourth president of the association, John Fottler, Jr., was elected to honorary membership in the association. He was one of the first half-dozen original members of the association. The members of the association were assessed $15 each in order to meet the present deficiency in the treasury.

Invitations were then read from various cities for the convention next year. The cities included Chicago, Atlantic City, Omaha, Cincinnati, New York and Mackinac island. Action will be taken at the midwinter session of the executive committee.

Dick O'Bannon then presented the outgoing president with a beautiful 20-jeweled watch, with the thanks and appreciation of the association for his work of the past year. Mr. Hastings accepted with due thanks.

This closed the meeting and the convention.

Entertainment Features.

Clifford Corneli and the other St. Louis seedsmen on the entertainment committee were exceedingly busy during the convention. They had the entertainment features planned in great shape and everyone present was well pleased with the results. The golf game at the Kirkwood Country Club Tuesday afternoon, June 21, was a most pleasant game, and the dinner and dance which followed were enjoyed by all. Wednesday afternoon the trip through the Shaw, or Missouri Botanical, garden was interesting and instructive. On the way to the garden the party was conducted through the place where Budweiser used to grow; each member of the party was presented with a cool bottle of the new drink made by the Anheuser-Busch Co. For Wednesday night there was a vaudeville entertainment and dance given by the firms which had exhibitions at the convention. This was thoroughly enjoyable and was a great get-together-and-get-acquainted feature of the convention.

Thursday afternoon the women of the convention were taken to the Sunset Hill Country Club and entertained at cards and a dinner. They say they had a fine time. Thursday night the annual banquet was held. After an excellent dinner, speakers held the floor. A banker of St. Louis and two members of the Missouri Department of Agriculture told about general business and the seed business. The banker said that he did not look for things in the business world to be any brighter before 1922.

Newsy Notes About the Visitors.

Charles Dickinson, of the Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago, dropped in at the convention Wednesday evening. Dropped in was just what he did. He demonstrated the practical use of the aeroplane by flying down Wednesday and going back Thursday morning. The trip down was made in a little over three hours, as there was a stop on the way.

Among the exhibitors' booths was one showing the products of the Vaycide Chemical Corporation. This corporation is owned and operated by the G. B. McVay & Sons Seed Co., of Birmingham, Ala. The booth was decorated with several cleverly drawn posters, which were from the pen of George B. McVay, Jr. George, Sr., was the attendant at the booth and was ready to give everyone that stopped a talk about insecticides and chemistry, which Mr. McVay has studied for years.

Europe was well represented at this convention. Hjalmar Hartmann, of Hjalmar Hartmann & Co., Copenhagen, Denmark; Jacob Andersen, of Theodore Jensen & Co., Copenhagen, Denmark, and F. B. Dawson, of Charles Sharpe & Co., Ltd., Sleaford, England, were all there.

C. R. Root, president of the Colorado Seed Co., Denver, Colo., went from St. Louis to Rochester, N. Y. From there he will go to Chicago and to Rockford, Ill., where he owned a store many years ago.

David Burpee, of W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, came to St. Louis from the Pacific coast. He says that he will be glad to get back to Philadelphia, as he has been away for over five weeks.

C. P. Peppard, of the J. G. Peppard Seed Co., Kansas City, Mo., was attending his first seed convention. His father, J. G. Peppard, was there, but the older boys were at home attending to the business.

A. C. Brent, of the C. S. Brent Seed Co., Lexington, Ky., was there. When at home he has charge of the flower and vegetable seed end of the business. His brother, who attends the convention every other year, takes charge of the field seed business.

Frank Love, secretary-treasurer of the Southern Seedsmen's Association, talked so much in Memphis that he could not talk above a whisper when he arrived in St. Louis Wednesday morning.

The Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y., was represented by five men: Charles P. Guelf, Howard Earl, H. M. Hedges, John L. Hunt and G. L. Schideler. Mr. Hedges and Mr. Guelf came from the stock growing farm near Detroit, where they had been for a few days, inspecting the coming crops.

S. F. Leonard, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, made a hit when he rose and said, "S. F. Leonard, Chicago." He was given a great ovation.

John C. Bodger, of John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, Cal., is going from coast to coast. He went from St. Louis to Cleveland. From there he will go to Boston and a few other eastern points. He expects to be in Chicago about July 15 on his way home.

In his talk on how to promote the use of flower and vegetable seeds, Kirby White, of Detroit, suggested the use of the slogan, "Prosper with Potatoes."

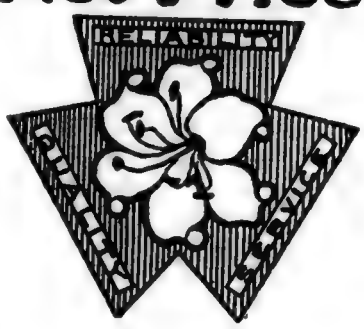
This, however, was not accepted by voting.

The report which Francis Stokes, of Moorestown, N. J., made for the nomenclature committee showed that the committee had spent only about $16 out of an appropriation of $250. Watson M. Woodruff moved that another committee be appointed to spend the other $234.



L. L. Olds, the new president, repeated several times that the seedsmen should keep in touch with the state experimental stations. He surely did his best to impress it upon the minds of those present.

While eating breakfast one morning, E. T. Robinson, of the J. C. Robinson Seed Co., Waterloo, Neb., said that he didn't eat cantaloupes because he grew too many of them. He also stated that the Robinson establishment was located in what was probably the richest corn territory in the world.

S. G. Courteen, of the S. G. Courteen Seed Co., Milwaukee, Wis., was found down at the depot waiting for the train out Tuesday night. He said that it was too hot for him, and that he would leave his son, H. B. Courteen, and W. H. Crossland to take care of the big convention. He said that he was in favor of holding the convention at some summer resort before the regular season opened. He might have had something to do with the invitation from Mackinac island.

C. E. Kendel, the ex, present and future secretary and treasurer of the association, rested from his strenuous duties over Saturday and Sunday and left for Cleveland Sunday night. He

STOKES WILL CONTINUE.

By a sudden reversal of conditions, the Stokes Seed Farms Co., at Moorestown, N. J., which was reported last week as going into voluntary bankruptcy, has found it possible to continue without a receivership. Francis P. Stokes, president and manager of the company, explains the sudden change thus:

"As a result of magnanimous offers on the part of certain of our competitors and creditors and of our local banks, we are given the opportunity to work our way out of our situation without going through the channel of receivership. The complete reversal of the situation did not take place until Friday morning, June 24, and in the meantime I have got in touch with enough of our creditors to know definitely that we will be granted sufficient time to work out of our difficulties. The immediate situation has already been improved materially. The happenings of the past week have shown me conclusively that the seed trade is made up of a lot of fine spirited men, for otherwise the seemingly impossible could not have happened."

JOSEPH STECKLER, SR.

Joseph Steckler, Sr., the new president of the Southern Seedsmen's Association, is the president of the J. Steckler Seed Co., Ltd., New Orleans, La. He was born at New Iberia, La., in 1870. He entered the employ of Richard Frotscher when he was 15 years of age. When Mr. Frotscher died, Joseph and Richard Steckler purchased a branch of the business. In 1898 they established the business under the name of J. Steckler Seed Co., Ltd. He is connected with many civic organizations and has a host of warm friends. He was married to Miss Pauline Muller, of New Iberia, when he was about 27 years of age, and has six sons and two daughters.

EVERYBODY STANDS PAT.

There is an absolute deadlock in the French bulb situation. With the usual date of shipment at hand, there is no sign of the crop's movement and it is certain growers, even if willing to pay the price, will be weeks late in starting their Paper Whites this season.

A meeting of the French growers' syndicate was held at Ollioules on Sunday, June 26, ostensibly to consider the demands for the reduction of the prices fixed some weeks ago, but the real purpose seems to have been to stiffen the backbone of any who were weakening. June 27 the cable brought word that the syndicate had reaffirmed its prices. At the same time export dealers at Ollioules who recently had quoted prices below those of the syndicate withdrew these quotations.

A second meeting of American importers was held at New York June 28 to again discuss the situation. It was the consensus that the French growers' demands were not and are not now justified by conditions and that the American florists will not buy Paper Whites in quantity at such prices. It therefore was decided not to buy until the exorbitant prices are reduced.

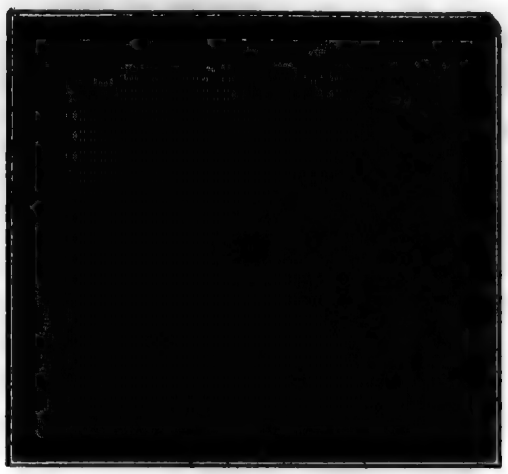
Club Meeting.

The Lancaster County Florists' Club June 23 held a sociability automobile run to Chester county. Thirty automobiles participated, with more than 175 guests. The first call was made at Mr. and Mrs. Edward Marshall's, near Kennett Square, where, after inspecting the carnation and rose houses which have made this place famous, the entire party sat down to lunch on the lawn. Mr. Marshall's lawn has a wonderful collection of trees, planted many years ago, which were admired by all. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall's hospitality will always be a cherished memory to the Lancaster County Florists' Club.



The next call was made at the home of Pierre Dupont, where Superintendent Mollis showed the party over the place. The perennial plants were in fine shape, considering that Chester county had no rain for six weeks. The Italian gardens, the rockeries, the rose gardens and the open air theater, with its unusual natural surroundings, were exceedingly fine. Superintendent Mollis conducted the party through the newly built Dupont conservatories, where $3,000,000 have been expended, making one of the show places of America. The orangeries and graperies, the nectarine houses, houses of muskmelons and many other plants attracted much attention. In one of the principal conservatories is planted a palm garden. An indoor stage occupies one end. A $50,000 pipe organ, on which a concert was given for the visitors, was much appreciated.

On leaving the Dupont estate, Percy Barnard and James Brown set the pace to West Chester, where the party was shown over the Sharpless gardens. There are miles and miles of the finest roads and extraordinary plantings of shrubbery and trees on this place, and in one visit the party could hardly do justice to it.

The delightful outing was arranged

Utica, N. Y.—A temporary injunction has been served on Vincenzo Farda, of Bleecker street, restraining him from using the firm name, Utica Floral Mfg. Co. This is during an action brought against him by John C. Brown, proprietor of the Utica Floral Co., on Genesee street. The injunction was granted on the application of the attorney for the plaintiff and provides that Mr. Farda shall show cause before the special term of the Supreme court, at Herkimer, July 9, why he should not be made permanently to discontinue the use of the business name. Mr. Brown alleges that he has done business since 1914 under the name, Utica Floral Co., and that he has advertised extensively as such.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE Neosho Nurseries, Neosho, Mo., has the heating equipment ready for a propagating house which will be erected when the price of glass descends from its present exalted level.

ONE of the faces missed at the Chicago convention was that of Ex-president J. Edward Moon. He is at present in Europe at the head of relief work being done by the Society of Friends.

WILLIAM A. PETERSON returned to Chicago in time for the A. A. N. convention after having spent a few enjoyable days visiting the peony growers about Boston while attending the meeting of the American Peony Society.

HAVING sold the property on which is located the Aurora Nurseries, Aurora, Ill., J. A. Young is now busily engaged in finding suitable land in the vicinity to which to move his stock. The property had become too valuable for nursery purposes and was sold for eight times the purchase price.

IN addressing the Rotary Club of Chicago last week former Congressman Martin L. Davey, head of the Davey Tree Expert Co., Kent, O., made a strong plea for attention to reforestation. He suggested government control of the lumber industry, immediate intensive reforestation and a tax of $1 on each 1,000 feet of lumber cut in the United States.

FROM the convention at Chicago, John C. Chase, treasurer of the Benjamin Chase Co., returned to Derry Village, Vt., for a week before traveling to the Pacific coast, there to take in the meeting of the Pacific Coast Nurserymen's Association in July and that of the California Association of Nurserymen in September, planning to spend altogether about four months west of the Rockies.

RETAILERS ELECT.

The American Retail Nurserymen's Protective Association met at the Congress hotel, Chicago, June 23. Besides discussion of individual problems, the main business was the election of officers, which resulted as follows: President, E. M. Sherman, Charles City, Ia.; vice-president, Earl D. Needham, Des Moines, Ia.; secretary-treasurer, L. J. Tucker, Madison, Wis.

PACIFIC COAST MEETING.

The Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen will hold its nineteenth annual convention at Seattle, Wash., July 12 to 14. The executive committee, composed of Seattle members, C. Malmo, I. F. Madlem and J. J. Bonnell, have outlined an interesting program.

The Seattle Horticultural Association, with the coöperation of the park boards, the agricultural department of the public schools, and the local nurserymen, will give an exhibition of flowers, shrubs and plants in Volunteer park.

The first day of the convention will be devoted to business. The propagation of evergreens and of seedling stocks formerly imported will be carefully considered. July 13, after a business session, an excursion is planned at 11 a. m. to Vashon island, where luncheon will be served. In the afternoon it is planned to visit the Puyallup raspberry and blackberry fields and canning factories.

Business will be concluded July 14. Then the association will view the show at Volunteer park and later inspect the parks and local nurseries.

C. A. Tonneson, of Burton, Wash., is executive secretary of the association.

A. A. N. ABANDONS TRADE-MARK.

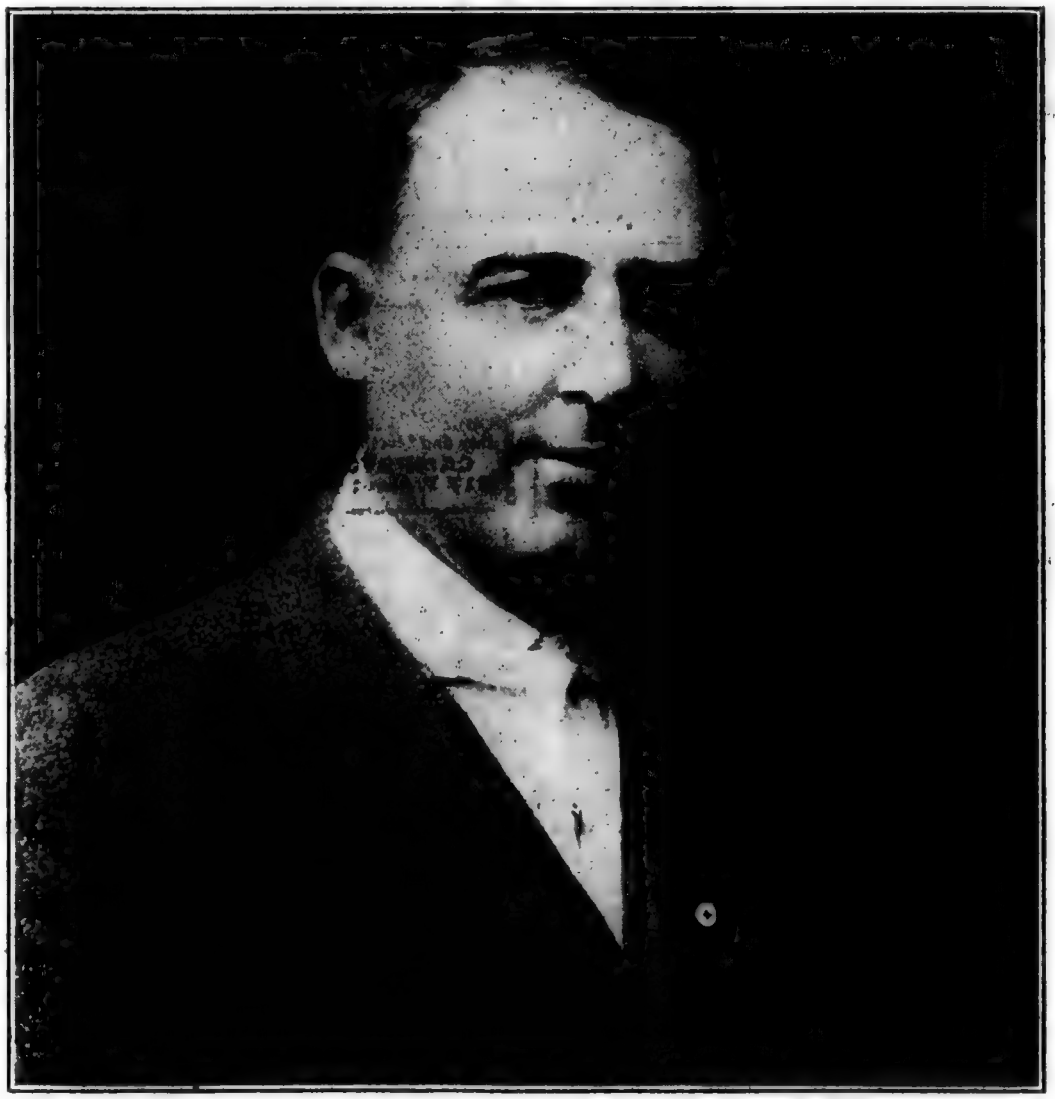
Curtails Publicity Campaign.

Two days and a half of executive sessions were filled with debate on the policies of the American Association of Nurserymen at the Chicago convention last week to determine whether the organization should follow the career of expansion its members set out upon in 1915 or whether a return should be made to those days before the memorable Detroit meeting. Behind closed doors the members threshed out the subjects set so clearly before them by the program commitete and the result was decision for a policy of restriction in activities and retrenchment in finances. In brief, the chief decisions were:

1. To cut dues to approximately one-third of last year's.
2. To abandon trade-mark.
3. To discontinue office of executive secretary.
4. To discontinue paid advertising in association's name.
5. To confine publicity efforts to the distribution of reader articles to newspapers.

The determination of the policies in detail was left to a large extent in the hands of the executive committee of the association.

Officers Elected.



The officers chosen on the closing day to carry out the new program were:

President — Michael R. Cashman, Owatonna, Minn.

Vice-president — Paul C. Lindley, Pomona, N. C.

Treasurer—J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.

Executive committee — Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa.; W. C. Reed, Vincennes, Michael R. Cashman.

Sizemore Again Secretary.

The office of executive secretary, maintained last year at Princeton, N. J., will be discontinued. The association voted to combine the secretarial work with that of traffic manager and move the office to Louisiana, Mo., where Charles Sizemore has his office. Charles Sizemore has been employed for the coming year as secretary and traffic manager.

No appropriation at all was made for paid advertising during the coming year, and a maximum of $5,000 was voted for reading articles to be sent out to newspapers.

The association was incorporated during the past year and at this convention the association voted to continue as a corporation. The incorporators were Frederick L. Atkins, John R. Hartung, Lester C. Lovett, Rudolph Roehrs and Fred D. Osman. The trustees for the first year, named in the charter, were Frederick L. Atkins, of Rutherford, N. J.; Lester C. Lovett, Little Silver, N. J., and Samuel E. Blair, Nutley, N. J.

New Schedule of Dues.

The dues were cut to about one-third of those of last year. They range now from $10 to $160. The exact schedule is as follows:

Membership fee, $10.00. Additional dues to be paid on volume of yearly business secured as follows:

$ 10,000	to	$ 25,000	$ 10.00
25,000	to	50,000	20.00
50,000	to	75,000	30.00
75,000	to	100,000	40.00
100,000	to	150,000	60.00
150,000	to	200,000	85.00
200,000	to	250,000	110.00

President Cashman's Statement.

In a statement regarding the actions taken by the association at the convention, President Cashman said:

"On account of the diverse interests of the many members of the association, located all over the United States, it was impossible to satisfy the membership with the plan for paid advertising adopted a year ago. For this reason, it was voted to drop paid advertising and the only money that will be spent for market development purposes the coming year will be about $5,000. This money will be expended under the direction of a market development committee, which will send out reading articles for publication similar to those used by F. F. Rockwell two years ago.

"The association, through its vigilance committee, will continue its policy of checking up every and any breach of business ethics made by its members. It will also scrutinize every application for membership and no one will be elected to membership who has not the unqualified endorsement of several reputable firms. We sincerely expect to place the American Association of Nurserymen on a still higher plane of responsibility before the American public."

Long Executive Sessions.

Beginning on the morning of the second day the association met behind closed doors, excluding from attendance associate members of the organization and members of the press. In this way it was hoped to secure free expression on the floor of the convention instead of confining open discussion to the corridors and lobby of the hotel. The publicity policies of the association were debated vigorously and the trade-mark was the object of much censure.

The association in the beginning of its press campaign started a search for a slogan. That of the florists proved so remarkably successful that it was desired to find a companion touchstone for nurserymen. "Trustworthy Trees and Plants" implied, it was found, a standard of honesty and quality that demanded steps on the part of the association to insure fulfillment. So the phrase was trade-marked, to limit its use to association members. The implication then that all members of the association were trustworthy and that nonmembers were not entitled to that adjective found many critics. The consequence was the abandonment of the trade-mark at this meeting.

During the last year the market development committee expended the money allotted it in two kinds of publicity. One was the use of small paid advertisements, featuring the trade-mark, in agricultural journals. The other was the sending of specially prepared articles on horticultural topics calculated to promote nurserymen's interests to the editors of several hundred newspapers in agricultural communities for use in their reading columns. These articles were widely used and their cost, in comparison, was much less than the paid advertisements of the trade-mark. Since the dues this coming year will admit only of small expenditure for publicity, it was deemed best to carry on the latter form and discontinue the former.

Vigilance Committee Report.

Though the findings of the vigilance committee were delivered to the executive committee, the chairman, Paul C. Lindley, in an open report to the association, expressed himself caustically regarding some practices of nurserymen, not matters of policy, but matters of honesty and conscience. He said in part:

"In many catalogues a collection of cuts which are absolutely foreign to the nursery business are used; a picture of a baby carriage would be just as appropriate. After carefully looking over one mailed out by one of our leading members, it recalled to my mind the old saying of Barnum, 'The American public likes to be humbugged.'

"Many still use the tomato-can type of cover and highly lithographed colored plates that could be called either a peach or a plum. If you look carefully, you will find in one Eve reclining on the bough of an apple tree, in others pictures of the mayor of our city, our political aspirations, affidavits of our trustworthiness.

"One of my correspondents covers the entire subject in the following paragraph, which I quote from his letter:

> Don't you think it about time that the nursery firms which think their goods should be highly painted, change their methods, so that public confidence in the nursery business may be increased and not impaired further?

"Around 1800 there was an interesting and eccentric character, 'Johnny Appleseed,' who sowed apple seed over the wild and woolly west; he considered pruning and grafting wicked. Now, jumping a hundred years, we have one 'Curculio' Lindley, chairman of a vigilance committee, who considers seedlings of all kinds listed by nurserymen in 5/6-foot and 11/16-inch and up grade, a wicked practice. Many years ago Russian Mennonites brought apricots to Kansas and Nebraska. A few of these seeedlings, named and budded, are a valuable addition for northern latitudes, but the O. R. variety, commonly listed and sold, will give many types. Russian and multicaulis mulberry are widely sold by enterprising agents as fruit-bearing trees, but their use should be restricted to windbreaks in the northwest, and the latter for propagating purposes in other sections. Angers quince is a seedling stock used for budding, also for dwarfing apple, and for budding broad-leaved ornamentals in the south. Prunus americana, common wild plum of the north, is a seedling listed by some concerns, not in their ornamental department, but with other budded and grafted varieties.

"As a retail nurseryman, you would not dare catalogue any of the above-named seedlings, any more than you would peach or apple seedlings, so why should they appear in a wholesale list?

"Cut back seedlings, especially pecan and peach, are in quite heavy demand, especially in some sections of the south. It is no trouble to point out the purpose for which they are wanted. When they are not cut back, then what? They get into the hands of irresponsible dealers and wild-cat nurserymen, who simply sell and deliver the trees for what they are not. Selling seedlings is not a credit to the nursery industry.

"Your committee has tried to catch and interpret the spirit of modern trends in business. Everywhere there are signs that coöperation is destined to be a dominant factor in the business of the future. A business such as ours, which strikes close to the roots of the American home, which is definitely related to the art of the countryside and the beauty in nature, and which contributes to the food supply of the nation, cannot be a truly great business until it is founded upon the ethical principles of fair dealing and coöperative effort.''

NEW PRESIDENT OF A. A. N.

The election of Michael R. Cashman as president of the American Association of Nurserymen for the coming term assures the association of a capable officer who has already shown his ability in executive positions. For, aside from the fact that Mr. Cashman is vice-president of the Clinton Falls Nursery Co., at Owatonna, Minn., he has filled several responsible offices in the A. A. N. He was a member of the executive board of the market development campaign for two years. He acted as chairman of the committee on distribution and his recommendations resulted in the appointment of an executive secretary to manage the association's affairs from central headquarters. Mr. Cashman was active in the formation of the Northern

The Market.

With the approach of July the heavy part of the work is over for the summer. Inventories are being taken and books are being balanced for the year. As the weather has not been warm enough to drive people to vacation resorts in any great numbers thus far, entertaining has been heavy at the country clubs through this month and reservations have been made for many dates for the coming month. Funeral work has been heavy of late. Orders have been on a generous scale. The handling of business has been easy, as stock has been good and plentiful. Outdoor stock is in good condition.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Max Chandler, of Jerome, Mich., is visiting her brother, T. J. Noll. Mr. Noll and his two children, Dorothy and Arthur, and Mrs. Chandler will leave June 30 for a motor trip to Chicago. From there they will go to Michigan, where the children will spend the summer with Mr. and Mrs. Chandler. Mr. Noll will spend two or three weeks in the east, visiting New York, Philadelphia and other places.

The Bennett Greenhouses are being stocked with ferns. Mr. and Mrs. Bennett will devote their attention entirely to this line. They are looking for a location where they will have room for more stock.

The Pinehurst Floral Co. will entertain the florists of both Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kan., at a picnic at Pleasant Hill, Mo., July 4. The picnic last year was such a success that the Pinehurst Floral Co. decided to make it an annual affair. The greenhouses are between thirty-five and forty miles from Kansas City, with good roads all the way, and many will drive down. A program will be given and refreshments will be served.

O. W. Longnickel's greenhouses, at Argentine, are in the path of a new boulevard being planned by the city. If his property is taken by the city, he will buy at another location and put up larger houses.

started by a lighted match or cigarette in the fireworks department, and a premature July 4 celebration took place. No serious damage was done to the store. Mrs. Boyd has purchased a Buick sedan.

A. Newell had a good week in funeral orders. He has had a number of weddings this month, in which he has featured old-fashioned bouquets.

The Longview Farms, at Lee's Summit, has one house of young Premier and one of Milady showing crop for early fall. Some of the benches are being dried off. Stock will be kept cut, so that they will not all come in at one time.

The Alpha Floral Co. advertised a sale of $1 baskets for Wednesday, June 22. The baskets contained various assortments of spring flowers, with a few roses and carnations in each. The baskets were attractive and the sale was a success.

John Lambert, of Ove Gnatt Co., Laporte, Ind.; Julius Dilloff, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, and E. Clifford Pruner, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, called on the trade last week.

One of the most elaborate weddings of the season took place Wednesday morning, June 22, at the largest Catholic church in the city. The W. L. Rock Flower Co. had the decorations, which were equal to the finest ever seen here. It was arranged in a tropical garden effect, with trees of yava plumes twenty feet high. Baskets of colored grasses hung from the ceiling. Alternating with the trees were tall standards of Premier roses, lilies and standards of gladioli. The center aisle was an avenue of palms and flowers, twenty-eight standards being used here. The five altars and the communion railing were massed with flowers. Eighteen prie-dieux were covered with white satin and on the top were clusters of roses. In all, twenty cases of huckleberry branches, 800 erica leaves, 200 palms and cibotiums, 1,200 Premier roses, 800 lilies and 500 gladioli were used in the church. The palms, ferns and greens were placed the day before and early the morning of the wedding. On account of earlier services in the church, only two hours were allowed for arranging the cut flowers. Fourteen persons worked at top speed in that time and finished fifteen minutes before the time for the wedding. Almost the entire force of the retail store, from Mr. Rock down, were at the church. Those who were not working were there as spectators. The Muehlebach Flower Shop furnished the bridal work. The bride's bouquet was of roses and lilies of the valley. There was a matron of honor, eight bridesmaids and a flower girl. The colors in all these bouquets were pink and white. It was a beautiful sight. J. E. K.

The Market.

Summer business conditions have set in. Flowers are poor and getting worse, and business is falling off markedly. It may be said, however, that trade to date has been better than in former years. It seems quite probable that the change of administration has been rather a good thing for florists, for more large wedding, dinner and ball decoration orders have been booked than was the case during the Wilson regime.

The wholesalers and growers are finding it a hard matter to fill out-of-town orders, because the flowers will not stand shipping. Prices have dropped considerably, although they are still higher than in prewar years. It is doubtful if they will ever return to the profitless levels of the old days.

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

BOILERS IN A BATTERY.

I should like to get information about connecting boilers in a battery. I have two boilers, one 22-5, the other 22-7, American Ideal boilers. One has two flows and four returns, while the other has three flows and six returns. Is it correct to use tees and ells to connect the two or three flows together, and to place a valve before connecting the front line, from which the pipes will branch off to the houses? And can the same be done with the returns? Will it make any difference if the returns are connected to one side of the boiler only? What size of stack should be used for a boiler with a grate, 24x48 inches? A. J. L.—Mo.

While it may be somewhat modified by the location of the boilers and the arrangement of the piping, if two or more boilers are to be connected so that one or more may be used for heating a part or all of a range of greenhouses, the simplest way of doing it will be by connecting all of the flow ports of each boiler with one or two headers large enough to handle the full capacity of the boiler. Then all of these headers are connected with one or more main headers, large enough to supply all of the radiation in the range. The return ports of the boilers should be connected in the same way.

In some boilers it will answer if the return ports on one side only are connected, provided they will return all of the water that a boiler will handle, but when boilers have vertical sections the returns should be connected with both sides.

So far as the actual operation of a battery of boilers is concerned, it will make no difference whether valves are used or not, as a boiler that is not being fired is cut out of the system. However, valves are always desirable upon the flows and returns from each boiler to the main header, as it will then be possible to cut off any of the boilers

BUY A KROESCHELL

When a man who is using a Kroeschell Boiler after having had experience with other boilers tells you to buy a Kroeschell, you are safe in following his advice. And that is what he will tell you every time.

There is more glass heated by Kroeschell Greenhouse Boilers than by any other make, and our factory is always kept going at full force to keep up with orders coming in. This alone should convince you that the Kroeschell is the best boiler you can get.

Kroeschell Boilers are sold direct at factory prices, and they soon save enough fuel to pay for themselves. They are highest in both efficiency and economy. No matter how you figure you will always come to the one conclusion that the best thing to do is to buy a Kroeschell.

KROESCHELL BOILERS have satisfactorily and permanently solved the effective burning of screenings. They will burn the worst grades of coal, even the dirtiest culm or sawdust and wood refuse.

and make repairs without interfering with the operation of the other boilers.

The size of the stack for a boiler varies with the height of the stack. While the stack for a boiler with a grate 24x48 inches might be as small as twelve inches in diameter if the stack is fifty or sixty feet high, it should be fourteen or fifteen inches when the height is only thirty or forty feet. The larger sizes will be desirable if the finer grades of coal are used.

PLENTY OF HEAT.

I am planning to build a new greenhouse, 21x50 feet, which I want to attach to my present greenhouse, 16x50 feet. The new house will be ten feet to the ridge, with a 5-foot wall on the south side. There will be two and one-half feet of glass on the west end. I have an Ideal hot water boiler No. W22-8, eight sections, with grates 2x4 feet. There is a 4-inch flow and a 4-inch return. The boiler is two feet below the level of the return. Is my boiler sufficient for both houses and sheds? How much pipe will be required to furnish 48 to 52 degrees in zero weather and how should the piping be arranged?

W. V.—Ind.

The boiler described is amply large to supply twice as much radiation as would be required to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in the two houses. For 50 degrees these houses will not require more than 600 square feet of radiation, and a boiler with a rating of 900 square feet would be amply large to supply all mains and heat the sheds as well as the two greenhouses. We do not have the rating of the boiler at hand, but if it has a grate 24x28 inches, it is certainly rated

To heat a greenhouse, 21x50 feet, with two and one-half feet of glass in one wall, to 50 degrees in zero weather, it would be advisable to use three 2½-inch flow pipes, placing one on each side wall plate and the other two feet below the ridge. For the return coils eight 2-inch pipes will be required. Three of these should be on the south wall or under the south bench, and the others should be distributed where most needed. The main flow and return pipes should be 3-inch or 3½-inch, if more than twenty feet in length.

Twice in one day members of the Hall family, connected with Hall's Greenhouses, featured in weddings. Franklin Edward Hall, who is in charge of the store in Toledo, was married at his home in Clyde at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, June 18, to Miss Lois Charlotte Smila. They will live in Toledo. The same day at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, at Toledo, his sister Amy Winifred Hall was married to Edware Liebold, of Norwalk, at the home of her cousin. They will spend the summer at the home of Mrs. Eva Hall, the bride's mother.

NEWARK, N. J.

Weddings, graduation work and funerals constitute most of the work. There is little transient trade. After this week the usual summer dull period will be upon us. Some of the biggest purchasers are already leaving on their summer vacations. Gladioli are beginning to come into the market in larger quantities. Carnations are getting worse each week.

The Rosary Floral Co., of Market street, reports a fair amount of wedding work, but that general business is getting a little dull. R. B. M.

The Market.

Market conditions have improved somewhat. Gladioli, mostly Halley, have been appearing in large supply and are of good quality. The demand for these has been brisk. Other stock has not been so plentiful. However, roses are in fairly large supply in mediums and shorts, but are not in active demand. Snapdragons are scarce. A few usable carnations still linger, but these will be available only a short time longer. The intense heat of June has hurt them. Some lilies are available. Outdoor varieties of lilies are also seen. A general line of outdoor stock is in the market, including zinnias, cornflowers, gaillardias, coreopsis, delphiniums, candytuft, etc.

Various Notes.

William Roepke has gone to Atlantic City with the Sahara Grotto, Masonic order.

There will be no July meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association. In August there will be a picnic for the florists and their families. Arrangements for the latter have not been completed, but it will most probably be held at the Young home at Cumberland.

Lee Rickenbach has been cutting some good gladioli.

E. E. Temperley has returned from the Shriners' pilgrimage to Des Moines, Ia., where the Shriners had the "best time ever." On the return home they took a trip on the Great Lakes, stopping at Mackinac island, Bay View, Petoskey, etc.

O. E. Steinkamp has built an attractive little home at 3904 Rookwood avenue, and will be at home with his bride after August 15. E. E. T.

The Market.

Business has been good with the retailers most of the last week, with, possibly, one or two days quiet. Prices remain about the same, with the quality of stock good, considering the extremely hot weather.

Various Notes.

E. Wenninghoff reports a brisk business for this week, trade having picked up considerably over the last week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Doswell and their daughter are spending two weeks with his sister, Mrs. Wickman, of St Louis. Mrs. Wickman was formerly Miss Rhoda Doswell. While in St. Louis they expect to visit a number of florists' establishments.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blossom are rejoicing over the advent of a baby boy.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are cutting some fine Shasta daisies and also some snapdragons. S. N.

we will publish a few of the letters we have received from growers all over the United States.

Mr. Guy O. Blondey, proprietor New London Floral Co., on July 3, 1920, ordered 5000; on Aug. 7, 10,000, and on Oct. 4, 5000. They must have proved satisfactory or the second and third order would not have come through.

This is what he writes:

New London, Wis., April 18, 1921.
MR WM. F. BUSCHARDT, Baltimore, Md.
Dear Sir:
We used 20 000 of your Wire Ties on our Chrysanthemums last year and found them very satisfactory.
Also found them to be a big saving of time over the old way of using strings or raffia.
No reason why they should not last for years.
Very truly yours,

The Market.

Considering the time of year, business is good. There is a good market for everything. Roses of the better grade are moving faster now than at any time since Easter. Carnations are not so plentiful, but those that are being cut are of good quality. Outdoor peas are coming in. A number of weddings and graduations are keeping some busy.

Various Notes.

The United States National Bank of Denver opened a new bank Saturday, June 18, and gave every depositor a carnation, of which more than 4,000 were used.

Louis Kintzele is cutting some fine Delphinium Belladonna.

Colorado florists gave a banquet June 22 at the Hotel Metropole. It was a great success, with eighty-five men and women from all over the state present, J. F. Ammann and H. V. Swenson being among the guests. Mr. Swenson gave a talk on what is being done in Chicago by the Allied Florists' Association in the way of advertising. Mr. Ammann also spoke on advertising, and he was instrumental in organizing a coöperative advertising association. After the talks there was a resolution read and adopted, whereby every grower and wholesaler is taxed one-half of one per cent on all sales and the retailer, one per cent on all purchases. A committee of six was appointed to arrange all the advertising. The committee is composed of three growers and three retailers.

There was a fire in the building in which the Boldt-Lundy House of Flowers is located. S. R. Lundy, manager, and Louis C. Hohmann were the principal fire-fighters. They had the fire under control and almost out when the fire department arrived. The damage was slight.

The Mauff Floral Co. is replacing two of its old greenhouses with modern houses.

SEATTLE NOTES.

This grower will have some late peonies this season.

The lighter cut of lily of the valley, with the demand occasioned by weddings and graduations, caused a real shortage. The Pinehurst Floral Shop was one of the places affected. Irvin Taylor, who saw service in France with the Ninety-first division, has been added to the force of this shop.

Vacation time has opened for the Woodlawn Flower Shop in earnest. Monday Mrs. Ruth Muench, Eddie O'Neil and Eddie Osborne started on their two weeks' vacation, while Miss Gladys Cohen returned from a rest of several days.

Melby's Flower Shop has been securing good results through the featuring of water lilies in its window display. With the closing of the bedding stock season, a check-up shows that business was fully equal to the 1920 total, and ahead of war-time figures. "Lot owners who were planting potatoes in the parking strip during war times are coming back to flowers," is the explanation Mr. Melby gives of this.

Felix Rosaia handled several large social decorations lately, and was kept busy by the school graduations last week.

An excellent crop of gladioli is being cut at the greenhouses of Bernard and Fred Gasch.

The Seattle florists are giving unofficial backing to the annual rose show of the Seattle Rose Society, held this year in the Forestry building of the University of Washington. A number of new varieties are to be offered by rose enthusiasts, and several of the professional growers are to have exhibits on hand. H. M.

W. M. Dyer is preparing to build a private greenhouse at 3107 West Kenyon street.

Sweetwater, Tex.—The Flower Shop was recently opened here under the management of Mrs. M. E. Brown.

Pekin, Ill.—The business formerly owned by John Bloompott is now conducted under the name of Bloompott Bros. John Bloompott died a few years ago.

3-INCH CYCLAMEN.
In the best commercial colors, consisting of light and dark salmon, wine red, Xmas red, Daybreak, lavender, white with pink eye.
The best strain on the market.

In shipping out our transplanted seedlings, we surely pleased our trade, as one customer at Reading, Pennsylvania, who ordered 1000 wrote back: "Well, I can only say they are wonderful, never expected plants like these."
One at Columbia, South Carolina, wrote: "I want 200 more like the ones sent." Another at Baltimore, Maryland: "Cyclamen just arrived and they are surely fine."
This stock will be shipped during June and July, and you must expect to get selected plants as fine in every respect as you have ever received in 3-in. Cyclamen, for some plants now run as high as 18 to 21 leaves and they will be strong for 4-in. pots the day you receive them.

PELARGONIUMS

HURRAH FOR EASTER GREETING.
Look on page 17 March 26th issue of Review and see what advertising we got free. The panel photo on next page was taken by us March 17, 1915—note the date March 17th.
This article is wonderfully well written except that it minimizes the great superiority of Easter Greeting over the common sorts. We do not deny the regal beauty of all pelargoniums, but we should all think of the housewife, the ultimate buyer and judge. The old type are sure to disappoint.
Every claim we made for Easter Greeting when we introduced it in March, 1914, has been doubly vindicated. Our claim that it blooms from early March to October has never been denied.
But now, we have a nice stock of 2¼-in., some of which should go to you, if you would have Easter Greeting in it's grand perfection for Easter 1922. Only $7.00 per 100.

FLOWERS IN EXHIBITIONS.

Commenting on the discussion by Thomas Allen, vice-president of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, on the arrangement of flowers in public exhibits, printed in The Review April 28, the editor of the Gardeners' Chronicle, London, remarks:

"So far as exhibitions in this country are concerned, there has been during the last few years a marked improvement from the point of view of artistic display. Serried ranks of magnificently opulent blooms are rarer, and spacing and variety are more frequently practiced. A great stylist once observed to an exuberant writer, 'You have no idea how it informs your style to leave out every other word.' Substitute plant for word and we have a golden rule for exhibitors.

"The critic, however, who has nothing to offer but condemnation is a useless person anywhere. The arrangement of plants in an exhibition is a peculiarly difficult art. Limitation of space and unnatural conditions are the chief difficulties; another which escapes the merely artistic person is that gardeners do not grow plants only for the purpose of making a scheme of garden decoration, but because they love the beauty of form and color of the individual plant. Hence the exhibitor has to make up his mind which he wants to do, to display each individual plant to the best advantage, or to produce a general effect. The ideal display, of course, succeeds in doing both and there are some exhibitors who possess this rare gift and who, as it were, 'touch nothing which they do not adorn,' by their skillful disposition of their subjects.

"The well known and frequently practiced device of interspersing foliage with flowering plants cannot, however, always be practiced. A display of Primula sinensis, for example, or of cyclamens, would, to our thinking, not be improved, but spoiled, if the individual plants were separated by ferns or smilax. In such a display the object is to beguile the eye with the beauty of the mass of flowers, and for this purpose numerous plants in almost unbroken succession must be staged. The word 'almost' should, however, be noted and in such a case the exhibitor's problem is to introduce some delicate and scarcely perceptible adjunct which, while not breaking the main effect, will give just that measure of almost imperceptible relief which will enhance the mass effect.

"Another fact which is to be borne in mind is that exhibitors put up displays not only to charm the eye of visitors but to attract their custom. The landscape gardener can afford to be sparing with his subjects and to space them widely, but the nurseryman must make an imposing exhibit in a limited space and cannot therefore afford to be too lavish with it. Even these few and slight observations will suffice to show that the art of exhibiting is not so simple as the looker-on might think, and perhaps they may suffice also to indicate that clearer thinking as to the object and nature of the display might lead to further improvement in the art of exhibiting."

Who Is to Blame?

Last fall several owners of ranges had to suddenly change their growing plans, because of delays in finishing the overhauling of their heating.

Who was to blame?

A number of others—one a notably big range—came near losing their entire crop because of last-minute boiler trouble that the owners knew was likely to happen almost any time, and still had put off doing anything about.

Who was to blame?

You remember early last spring how we commenced urging florists to start in overhauling their heating systems the very day firing stopped!

You remember how a lot didn't do it, thinking that pipe and other things would be lower.

But they were not!

So they had to pay the price for pipe, besides the extra cost of a last-minute rush job—which is always mighty expensive.

Instead of saving money, they actually gave a lot of money away, for which they got no real benefit.

So this season, the same as last, we urge growers to have their heating overhauled at once.

Send for us to come and look it over, make recommendations and submit an estimate.

After which, don't put off giving us the go-ahead order until the last minute and then expect us to do the impossible.

Pipe is lower.

Legs and Greenhouses

When asked how long a man's legs should be, Lincoln said: "Long enough to reach the ground."

When asked how large a greenhouse range should be, the AGMCO says: "Large enough to keep the income a long way ahead of the outgo."

There's a reason for this answer: You have a certain amount of overhead no matter how small your range. You can increase your range without appreciably increasing your overhead, and thus automatically decrease it. So

Build NOW and Decrease your Overhead.

This Extra House Will Greatly Increase the Profits

You may ask, "Why does this extra greenhouse greatly increase the profits?" The answer is simple enough. "Because it cuts down the overhead expense."

You have the same workroom and boiler-room, the same chimney, same heating mains and water pumping outfit; the same foreman can handle the additional greenhouse, etc., etc.

There are a great many items which are not increased by this additional space.

Even if you have to borrow money to put up the extra greenhouse you ought to do it, because it pays big.
